REACHED LIMIT OF CONCESSION, LAVAL ASSERTS

Premier Gives Answer to Mellon.

Laval's Final Word

PARIS, June 29.—(AP)—The newspaper Excelsior quoted Premier Laval as making the following statement at midnight concerning the Franco-American debt moratorium negotiations:

"In agreement with all members of the government, I have just given my answer to Mr. Mellon. The latter is going to transmit it to his government.

"Mr. Hoover can entrench himself behind his congress. I can entrench myself behind the chamber, which has given its opinion.

"I feel we have reached the extreme limit of concessions. Public opinion would not admit us going further.

"I remain cordial but firm. We shall know where we stand on Wednesday."

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—They tugged and they heaved, and they prayed and maybe they swore a little, but they could not make those ends meet, so the world does not get its moratorium on July 1.

PIERRE LAVAL. [A. P. Photo.]

It was 10:20 o'clock by the gilded clock in the tapestried anteroom of the ministry of interior when a handful of men who were trying to reconcile an irresistible force, represented by President Hoover's demand for a war debt moratorium without strings, and an immovable object, represented by France's reservations, gave the business up as a bad job and went home.

Up to Hoover Again.

They did not say the negotiations had broken down nor that there is no hope of agreement. There will be another conference Wednesday morning and meanwhile, Washington will have a final word to put in. But whatever comes in the end, the supreme effort to settle the business within the deadline set by President Hoover has failed.

The drama which led up to the impasse was a swift one. This morning Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Walter E. Edge, American ambassador, met Premier Laval, Foreign Minister Briand and Finance Minister Flandin and presented them with a cable from President Hoover saying that the terms of the French counter proposal were not acceptable and insisting that France withdraw the specific clauses which render it so. Mr. Mellon then outlined the maximum the United States could accept in the way of reservations.

Calls Cabinet Into Session.

At 6 o'clock tonight Premier Laval called a cabinet meeting to consider if further concessions could be granted.

Nothing was given out as to the decision reached by the ministers. Usually there is a great deal of chatting among newspaper men and members of the government and a certain amount of off-record information is put out. Today there was nothing like that. A French journalist who could call Laval by his first name if he wished to, tried facetiously to pump the premier on the general trend.

Gets Sarcastic Retort.

"What is your prediction for tonight—fair and warmer?" he was asked.

"Do you think I am a barometer?" Laval retorted and turned away.

At 9:30 p. m. a conference to acquaint the Americans with the French answer to the demands from Washington was opened in the small Louis Quinze private salon at the ministry of interior.

Nearly 50 French, British and American newspaper men loafed in the gorgeous anterooms of the ministry, waiting confidently for the big news which was going to add millions of dollars of paper wealth to the world when stock exchanges opened tomorrow morning. When the doors of the conference room opened an hour later they realized instantly that matters had gone awry.

Mr. Mellon was the first through the door, but the stoop shouldered,

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 29.—(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world flyers, arrived here tonight from Solomon, Alaska, at 9:25 p. m. (2:25 a. m. Tuesday, Chicago daylight time). They had landed at Solomon from eastern Siberia in midafternoon.

NOME, Alaska, June 29.—(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, 'round the world flyers, took off from Solomon, 36 miles from here, for Fairbanks, Alaska, at 5:30 p. m. [11:30 p. m. Chicago daylight time] today. They had arrived at Solomon on their long hop from eastern Siberia at 2:45 p. m. [3:45 Chicago daylight time]. Fairbanks is about 520 miles away.

With a rest of less than three hours, during which their plane was refueled, the aviators took advantage of the summer daylight to continue their dash eastward.

After leaving Norton sound and striking inland the flyers planned to follow the course of the Yukon river more than half the distance.

Landing Field Rough.

The landing field at Solomon is a rough piece of ground and aviators here said probably Post and Gatty flew on to Fairbanks for a better field on which to take aboard the heavy gas load needed on their next hop.

Post and Gatty got their plane off the rough landing field into the air only after it had nosed up, damaging the propeller, and Gatty had been hit by the propeller in starting it.

Struck over the heart and arm, Gatty fell to the ground in safety. He said he was only bruised and that "nothing was broken," and climbed into the ship.

Propeller Bends Again.

On another attempted take-off the plane hit rough ground and ended up, apparently bending the propeller. Post climbed out with a hammer and wrench and pounded on the propeller. The ship then got into the air and sped eastward. They took a small load of gasoline aboard for the flight to Fairbanks and said they planned to hop from Fairbanks at dawn tomorrow for Edmonton.

The change in their plans adds mileage to their world flight, with Fairbanks to the east of the course they would have followed in a direct hop to Edmonton.

The landing at Solomon was made 16 hours and 45 minutes after the take-off from Khabarovsk. The flyers averaged about 150 miles an hour in their dash over Okhotsk sea, Kamchatka peninsula, and Bering sea in their single motored monoplane, the Winnie Mae.

Solomon is a trading post and native village eastward on Seward peninsula from Nome.

By their long journey over difficult terrain and the hazardous Bering sea the daring American flyers completed the most dangerous leg of their record-shattering flight. Their stanch plane, the Winnie Mae, now has flown 11,460 miles of the projected 15,360 mile circle of the globe.

Elapsed Time 6 Days, 16 Hours.

When they landed at Solomon their elapsed time since hopping off at Roosevelt field, New York, was six days, 16 hours and 49 minutes.

Four coast guard vessels, several escort planes, and numerous wireless stations had maintained a continuous watch since the flyers raised their speedy plane from the Khabarovsk field.

It was presumed Gatty, navigator on the flight, who also was to operate the radio, did not take time to send out signals as long as all was well.

The arrival of airplanes from distant places is no novelty in this region of Alaska, as travel by air is almost commonplace transportation. It was at Teller, 60 miles north, that Amundsen and Nobile brought the dirigible Norge down after an epochal flight over the top of the world. Teller also was the focal point in the search for Carl B. Eielsen, noted Alaska flyer, who was killed in northern Siberia while air-freighting furs.

Hop from Siberia.

KHABAROVSK, Siberia, June 29.—(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, intrepid American flyers, soared away at 5 p. m. [4 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time] today on the perilous flight of 2,500 miles to Nome, Alaska.

Rested by their 26½ hour stop here, the Americans were confident they would successfully cross one of the stormiest and foggiest overwater areas in the world and finish their world flight in New York within their allotted ten days.

Their monoplane, fast and in perfect condition after about 9,000 miles, including the passage of the Atlantic, had proved itself capable of traveling

BREAK IN HEAT SEEN, BUT TODAY MAY BRING 100°

Nearly 50 Deaths in Chicago Area.

Cities Swelter

Aberdeen, S. D.	107	Minneapolis, Minn.	102
Pierre, S. D.	106	Evansville, Ind.	102
Birmingham, Ala.	106	Marquette, Wis.	100
Huron, Mich.	104	Memphis, Tenn.	102
Peoria, Ill.	104	Springfield, Ill.	100
Atlanta, Ga.	102	St. Louis, Mo.	102

Eleven other cities had readings of 100 degrees. Chicago yesterday's maximum was 93 degrees, at 10 a. m.

A break in the heat wave which has scorched Chicago and most of the country for the last five days is possible tomorrow night or Thursday morning.

This hope—it was not more than a slim one—was offered last night to a perspiring city by C. A. Donnel, forecaster in charge of the government weather bureau. He declined to forecast definitely the end of the sweltering spell, but intimated a fair probability of a break within the next thirty-six hours.

A remote disturbance centered last night in the Rocky mountain region may bring relief to Chicago and the central states. According to Mr. Donnel, the movement is slow. Its reflection here may come in the form of showers or variable winds, if it comes at all. That he is optimistic of a break was seen in his statement.

Holds Hope of Relief.

"Some hope may be held for relief for Wednesday night," he said. "It's a slim hope, but a possible one."

On the other hand, the weather chief predicted more heat today than yesterday. The mercury may reach 100, he said. It was climbing toward that point yesterday, Mr. Donnel said, but a heavy rainfall over Fort Wayne, Ind., and other Indiana points checked the rise.

Chicago yesterday had another occasion for appreciation of Lake Michigan. In the midst of another sweltering period, the city was suddenly and effectively cooled with a drop of 13 degrees in two hours. This occurred between 10 a. m. and noon when the wind, after veering several times, blew from the southeast. Similar shifting occurred late last week when the wind from off the lake brought temporary relief.

Nearly 50 Deaths Reported.

The temperature advanced slowly during yesterday afternoon, but did not reach the forenoon maximum of 93, although it ascended to 91 at 4 p. m. Because of the abnormal humidity, the heat was oppressive, however, and resulted in nearly two score deaths. In addition, seven drownings were reported in the metropolitan area.

As on the previous days of the heat wave, residents of Chicago and the suburbs flocked to the beaches. While no official estimate was obtained, it was conservatively estimated that more than 300,000 men, women, and children cooled off in the lake. Evanston alone, with its six beaches, reported 40,000 bathers, while suburbs to the north reported an additional 10,000.

A survey of the water pumped through the city mair showed that more than 1,000,000,000 gallons were used yesterday. The record is 1,214,240,000 gallons, pumped last Friday, according to City Engineer M. B. Reynolds.

Children Flock to Parks.

The heat acted as a deterrent to activity on the part of grownups, but not on the part of children. Sixty-five playgrounds opened yesterday attracted swarms of children now on summer vacations from school. Thousands of grownups flocked to movie theaters to keep cool.

Numerous offices were closed for the afternoon, giving employés half holidays. Summer school classes, opening yesterday, were sparsely attended.

Suffering was general, and an unusually long list of deaths attributable to the weather was received at the coroner's office. From midnight until 6 o'clock last night, forty-four heat deaths, which included drownings, were reported. Additional deaths were reported from other sources. The drowning victims, in Chicago and

MOTHER SAVES 8 CHILDREN IN BLAZING HOME

Mrs. Mary Breckman awoke in her home at 3042 Lincoln avenue this morning, smelling smoke and hearing the crackle of flames. She rushed into an adjoining bedroom and saw three of her eight children lying asleep on a blazing mattress.

The mother pulled Lucille, 5 years old; Rosemary, 7 years old, and Bertha, 4 years old, to safety and herded the remainder of her family from the second story of the frame building in which they live, aided by her husband, Henry. A son, Matthew, 17 years old, ran to the street and summoned Policemen Edward Meisterheimer and Stanley Kula, who were near by in a squad car of the Sheffield avenue station. The policemen entered the flaming structure and carried to safety Mrs. Augusta Lawrence, 65 years old, who was ill in bed. No one in the house was injured.

The fire had apparently started in a shed in the rear and had spread to the structure in front, which is occupied by a store on the ground floor.

Firemen worked for four hours last night to prevent a fire in a barn filled with baled hay at 45th and Aberdeen streets from spreading to other buildings in the stockyards. The origin of the fire was unknown.

SURFACE LINES TO DISMISS 400 WORKERS TODAY

More than 400 employés of the Chicago Surface Lines were notified yesterday that their services will not be required after tonight. Another 1,000 employés also face an indefinite layoff, it was admitted by Guy A. Richardson, general manager of the lines.

The suspension order met with an immediate protest from the workers. A conference will be held today between company officials and the unions affected by the order. In addition, the three local divisions, of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés will meet this morning in Carmen's hall to discuss a line of action. William Quinlan, president of the division which has the Surface Lines employés as members, hinted at a possibility of a strike.

Mr. Richardson said he was hopeful of a peaceful settlement of difficulties between the company and the men. It had been made absolutely necessary that the company retrench in some manner, he said, and the company did not want to cut the basic rate of pay, 77 cents an hour. The lines at present have from 1,000 to 1,500 too many employés on the pay roll, he declared.

Debt Holiday Born Here in a Hotel Room

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—The inside story of the genesis of the so-called Hoover one year war debt moratorium plan was learned today. The idea of a debt holiday had been floating about the financial centers for months but it did not take shape as an actual plan until a group of midwest bankers and financiers met with Senator James E. Watson [Indiana] in Chicago seven weeks ago.

The debt plan was born in the Blackstone hotel in Chicago, nourished in the central states, sold to the east and finally handed to Mr. Hoover as a full grown method of approaching a dangerous economic problem. Mr. Hoover accepted it with a suddenness that astonished its most ardent sponsors.

Watson a Prime Mover.

The war debt moratorium idea belongs to a hundred men. The sale of the plan belongs to the men who got together in Chicago and began to push it. Here is the story as it was told to a reporter today in an office just around the corner from Wall street.

Senator Watson was interested from the beginning, but he didn't believe "those folks over there could be lined up" and everyone was doubtful as to Mr. Hoover's willingness to consider the idea. The Chicago bankers began to talk among themselves and several of them agreed that a debt moratorium might be a good plan. Senator Watson was consulted several times. One of the financiers had a long talk with Senator George H. Moses while on a visit east.

Backers Get Together.

Finally the informal discussions reached the stage where a meeting was called. Representative bankers, financiers and several politicians gathered in the Blackstone hotel. THE TRIBUNE has learned that Senator Watson was there as were Herman Waldeck, vice president of the Continental and Commercial bank; Philip R. Clarke of the Central Trust; Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox Film corporation, and other leading midwestern men.

They got down to what was described as "brass tacks" and at the conclusion of the conference the propaganda work began. Senator Watson immediately called Mr. Hoover on the telephone. Various members of the cabinet were consulted. Other senators were approached, senators and bankers alike began to visit the White House. All this was taking place several weeks ago.

Then conferences were held in New York, where the idea already had been toyed with by banking houses heavily interested in European securities. The plan gained immediate favor, but there always was the much-feared stumbling block of President Hoover's previous unwillingness to take outside advice. The bankers and a lot of the politicians thought the debt moratorium "a great idea" but were extremely doubtful that it could be accomplished.

The President was interested but unconvinced and several weeks elapsed before the debt plan grew to the magnitude it reached before its final presentation and acceptance.

More than fifty persons contributed to the final form of "the Hoover plan" but the group that saw its birth in Chicago was composed of less than a dozen persons. Today its original sponsors are quite content to sit back in the shadows. Their aim has been accomplished.

BANKERS HERE RETICENT.

Mr. Clarke of the Central Trust company last night confirmed the story of the Blackstone hotel conference but was reluctant to discuss details of the meeting. Mr. Waldeck could not be reached.

Numerous deaths were reported in outlying towns. Four heat deaths occurred in northern Indiana. The victims were Mrs. Wilhelmina Mionski, Crown Point; Mrs. Susie Filkozich, Gary; Peter Blazic, also of Gary, and Luther Hart, Negro, an inmate of the state farm at Pendleton. At Aurora, where the mercury rose to 98 degrees, three deaths were reported. The victims were John L. Beebe, W. Witter, and Gustave Dalberg. Waukegan reported three fatalities, the victims being Edward Swanback, Justin Tunter, and John O'Gorman.

Few sections of the country escaped the heat wave, a survey showed last night. Aberdeen, S. D., baked in a temperature of 107 degrees, second only to the Sunday reading of 111.5 degrees.

HEAT AND RAINS BOON TO MIDDLE WEST CORN CROP

Oats Damaged by High Temperatures.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The record breaking hundred degree temperatures that have baked the entire middle west the last few days, preceded by heavy rains, have gladdened the hearts of farmers throughout the corn belt.

Almost without exception, reports received yesterday indicated the heat had been beneficial to the growing corn crop. Some damage to oats, where the grain was in the milk or dough stage, had been caused by the extreme heat, farmers reported.

The official government report on the size of the 1931 corn crop is not issued until July 9. However, private crop reporters have indicated that the corn acreage this year is the largest in 15 years, with prospects for a bumper yield.

Hot Weather Helps Corn.

The high temperatures were declared by Charles D. Reed, federal meteorologist at Des Moines, Ia., as beneficial to most of the leading corn growing states, particularly in the southwestern sections, where ample spring rains had taken up the deficiency in soil moisture, caused by the winter drought. Corn is much ahead of normal, Mr. Reed indicated.

"There may be some damage in the northwest counties, where there has been little moisture, but we have no reports of it as yet," Mr. Reed asserted. "The worst of the heat wave seemed to center near Waterloo, where an all time record of 106 was set on Sunday. Our records of previous hot spells at this time show that the oat crop, in the dough stage, is injured materially by hot weather late in June."

The corn crop is in excellent condition in the northern Illinois and Indiana counties, according to observers who drove through the country from the Mississippi river to Fort Wayne, Ind., on Sunday and yesterday. Much of the corn is expected to meet the old rural rule of "knee high by the Fourth of July" with a safe margin, due to favorable early spring planting conditions.

Reports Damage to Oats.

A. J. Surratt, federal crop statistician at Springfield; with two assistants, expects to return on Wednesday after surveying the damage to oats in central and southern Illinois. Corn in these areas, while in need of rain, has not suffered materially, early reports indicated. A bumper crop of apples, peaches, and small fruits is approaching the harvest stage unharmed by the sun.

"Four of our officials who returned today from trips into central, western and northern Illinois all reported the corn crop in fine condition but in need of rain this week," said George Thiem of the Illinois Agricultural association's Chicago office. "Some losses to live stock were noted."

All Outsiders Must Pay $1 a Swim at Evanston

Annoyed because thousands of Chicagoans visited Evanston beaches Sunday, the suburb's city council last night decided to charge a fee for all who wish to use the beaches in the future. The fee will be $1 a family for a season for those who live in Evanston and $1 a person for each visit made by non-Evanstonians. The council also fixed a fifteen minute parking limit on streets adjacent to the beaches on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, June 29.—The first cold wave of winter is spreading over wide areas of Brazil. The cold is reaching up into the torrid zone, and this city is feeling its effects. Heavy frosts have damaged crops in the interior. It is believed that a quarter of the Sao Paulo coffee crop has been lost. Buenos Aires, Argentina, reports freezing weather.

NEARLY EXTINCT SEA OTTER SLAIN; VALUED AT $2,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICTORIA, B. C., June 29.—The only specimen of a sea otter killed on the Pacific ocean in recent years was brought to the legislative building today by Bryan Williams, provincial game commissioner. It will be preserved.

The animal was killed by an Indian on the west coast of Vancouver Island and was confiscated because the sea otter is strictly protected. Six feet eight inches long, with hair of a dun color and of remarkably silky texture, the pelt is unlike that of any other fur-bearing animal. It is valued at $2,000. Williams said the species had been considered virtually extinct and few Indians had ever seen specimens.

Doctor Asks Divorce Suit Delay; Says Leg Is Broken

A supposedly broken leg appeared yesterday to complicate further the marital affairs of Dr. Henry J. Millstone, physician who is being sued for divorce by Mrs. Anna Millstone, 742 Marquette road. Dr. Millstone's attorney, Thomas Dillon, produced affidavits from two physicians stating that the doctor's leg was broken, when he appeared before Judge Rudolph Desort to ask a continuance.

"He has no bro'en leg," Attorney Vincent G. Gallagher asserted on behalf of Mrs. Millstone. "We'll give $25 to charity if he can show even a slightly injured leg."

Judge Desort continued the hearing for a week.

FLYERS REACH ALASKA; LAND AT TRADING POST

Hop 2,500 Miles from Siberia in 17 Hours.

150 miles an hour. The big crowd of Russians, foreigners, and natives who cheered their departure were hopeful, therefore, the dangerous voyage would be completed in about 20 hours [12 midnight Chicago time].

Weather conditions were on the whole favorable, with clear skies south of Kamchatka. Before reaching there they were due to pass through rain, thunder, and lightning over Saghalien island.

But Post and Gatty were optimistic not only of arriving at Nome but of completing two other great hops to New York to round the world in ten days—twelve days faster than the record established by the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin last year.

Atlantic Flyers in Berlin.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, June 29.—The Liberty monoplane carrying Otto Hillig and Holger, Hoirlis, left Copenhagen at 5 p. m. today and landed two hours and thirty minutes later at the Templehof flying field. Asked why they made the Atlantic flight, Hillig laughingly answered:

"It wasn't for any scientific purpose, nor to break any records. As a matter of fact I can't precisely tell myself why I hopped across. Perhaps, partly to make up my disappointment over being crowded out of the Zeppelin world trip a couple of years ago.

"I had paid $2,500 for my ticket for that trip and though I won a damage suit against the Hamburg-American line, that wasn't much satisfaction.

Planned Flight in 15 Minutes.

"So last fall when I met Hoirlis I thought I had found the right man and a plan was ready in fifteen minutes. We had the Liberty built for us at a cost of $22,000 and here we are."

As the chief pleasure on this return trip to Germany, Hillig promises himself a visit to Gera, Thuringia, where he was born, and seeing his brother who has a farm there. Wednesday the fliers will return to Copenhagen where they are to be presented to the king of Denmark.

IF YOU THINK CHICAGO IS HOT, READ ABOUT AFRICA'S 136 DEGREES

So you've been thinking that these last five days were hot? Take it from C. A. Donnel, the official weather forecaster at the Federal building, you haven't experienced anything yet. As a matter of fact and record, Chicago is one of the most desirable places to be when the ultra violet rays begin to radiate thicker and faster in this midwestern area.

For instance: Back in 1901, the month of July was characterized by heat so intense throughout Illinois that all records assembled during the previous three decades, or as long as records had been kept, went tumbling. Yet out of the 30 or 90 cooperative stations whose temperatures were recorded, Chicago had the lowest maximum mark.

At that time, the weather bureau files reveal, Illinois towns outside Chicago were reporting consistently high temperatures, such as 108, 111 and 115 degrees. The latter, the highest mark ever reached in Illinois in the last sixty years, was noted in Centralia on July 22, 1901. Chicago experienced its hottest day in the entire sixty years covered by the figures—103 degrees—on July 21, 1901. This was the lowest maximum heat for the state at that time.

Out on Greenland ranch, Death Valley, Cal., a high mark of 132 degrees was recorded as recently as July 10, 1913. No higher rate has ever been recorded in this country by a standard thermometer. Greenland ranch is 178 feet below sea level.

The hottest temperature recorded anywhere in the world by a standard thermometer was 136.4 degrees, in which the inhabitants of Azisia were scorching on Sept. 13, 1922. Azisia is a town in the semi-desert Jafara region in the north of Africa.

"You see, we've only been keeping records for the last sixty years," Mr. Donnel explains. "I haven't any doubt that there have been times when a temperature of 145 in the shade has been reached at some places on the earth. Only there didn't happen to be a thermometer around to measure it."

Sometimes it isn't the heat—it's the humidity. The African gold coast—"anywhere in Liberia, on the west coast," as Mr. Donnel locates it—is the most humid country in the world, yet it isn't the hottest. The moist air does not heat as rapidly as the dry. So in this region the mercury rarely gets up as high as 100 degrees.

YARROW FRIENDS WILL GUARANTEE RELEASE BOND

Supporters of the Rev. Philip Yarrow, crusader against alleged obscene literature, who is now in the county jail for refusal to pay a $5,000 judgment, yesterday met in the offices of the Better government association and agreed to guarantee a surety bond of $6,000 for the minister which will permit his release pending an appeal to the Appellate court.

Reuben Freedman, attorney for the Rev. Mr. Yarrow, said he would obtain a copy of the court proceedings in which his client was adjudged guilty of malicious prosecution of a bookseller, and then file a writ of error in the high court, asking for a reversal of the judgment. The minister may obtain his freedom today or tomorrow.

Among those who attended the meeting yesterday were Attorney Howard P. Castle, E. J. Davis, and the Rev. M. P. Boynton.

CITY DEALS BLOW TO SCHOOL SCRIP, BUT BOARD ACTS

Officials Doubt Legality of Trust Scheme.

Plans of the school board to pay its employes and contractors in scrip struck a snag yesterday. It was indicated that City Controller Szymczak and Mayor Cermak will refuse to sign the tax warrants on which the scrip, in the form of participation certificates, is to be based.

ERNEST A. HEMINGWAY.

The school trustees went ahead with their plan, however. In an effort to meet the objection of teachers' organizations, which have voted to refuse to scrip, they voted to pay 6 per cent interest on it. That, the trustees hope, will make it acceptable at banks.

Szymczak States Views.

"We have received no formal request from the school board for the signature of Mayor Cermak and myself on the tax warrants for use in the scrip trust fund," said Comptroller Szymczak when asked about the matter. "If we receive such a request, it will be sent to the corporation counsel for his opinion.

"However, we had an informal meeting last week, the primary purpose of which was to discuss payment of the school board bonds which fall due July 1. At that time it was suggested that the mayor and myself sign the warrants to be turned over to the trust fund.

"The representatives of the school board were told at that time that we would sign no tax warrants unless they were to be sold for cash. A tax warrant, properly executed and signed, is the equivalent of cash, and we will cash for it."

Suggests Legal Action.

Many of the city officials' stand disturbed the school trustees at their meeting yesterday. The tax warrants will be worthless without the signatures of the mayor and the city comptroller.

Trustee James A. Hemingway, chairman of the board's finance committee, suggested court action to force them to sign.

"I don't know about that. It will be up to the law department," said President Louis E. Myers. It was finally decided that he talk to Comptroller Szymczak and Mayor Cermak about the matter.

As finally revised and passed at the meeting yesterday, the scrip plan provides that the tax warrant trusts, one of $30,000,000 on the educational fund, on which teachers and civil service employes would be offered participation certificates in lieu of salary checks; one of $2,500,000 on the building fund for the payment of contractors, and one of $250,000 on the playground fund for payment of playground instructors.

Board Owes $13,677,000.

The plan provides for payments totaling $6,250,000. The board has unpaid bills totaling $13,677,000. The bills are divided as follows: two salary pay rolls, $7,726,000, two substitute teacher's pay rolls, $332,000; five civil service pay rolls, $2,000,000; five janitorial pay rolls; $125,000; five bills on the architects' office, $500,000; contractors' bills, $3,000,000.

"I don't think we should act until Dr. Zimmerman holds his conference and we know what is going to be done for the financial relief of the city," said Trustee Helen Heffernan. "We pay $16,000 or $15,000 for printing these trust participation certificates which we may never use!"

Opens Fire on Teachers.

"I'm sick and tired of hearing teachers complain that they do not want these certificates," he said. "No one asked them to take them. These jobs are a lifeline to employes who are drowning. Any one in deep water is not much for the line.

"The teachers are angry at the board. It is not up to the board to supply money. Go to the county collector, please, and desist from coming to the board of education."

NIGHT CLUB GIRL, BROKE AND OUT OF JOB, ENDS LIFE

Christine McHugh, 28 years old, a night club entertainer who had been out of work for two weeks, was found dead, a suicide, yesterday in her room at the Exchange hotel, 2924 Wentworth street. She had soaked a towel in chloroform and buried her head in it.

Police found 23 cents and a few soiled clothes in the room, with a farewell note in which she said:

"Do not try to find any one who knows me. I have no friends or family. I suppose I am a coward for doing this, but I'm tired of it all—I have made a failure of everything."

Records at the South Chicago station showed that on March 16 a woman of the same name tried to end herself by throwing herself in front of a truck. She was only slightly hurt.

An address on an envelope led police to 3248 Drexel avenue. There they were told by Mrs. Hilda Johnson that Miss McHugh came from Louisville and had lived with her for two years, working as a cabaret entertainer. Two days ago, Mrs. Johnson said, she lost her job and gave up her room.

WOUNDS BALL PLAYER; HELD.

Angered at the noise made by a group of boys near playing ball in the street in front of his home last evening, Lucas Wolanski, 50 years old, 4457 South Mozart street, fired several revolver shots at the group, it is charged. William Helweis, 26 years old, of 4455 South Mozart street, was wounded in the thigh. Police locked up Wolanski.

U. S. TEACHERS FIGHT CUTS IN SALARY BUDGETS

Hit at Moves to Block Unionizing.

The executive council of the American Federation of Teachers held a conference on educational problems yesterday at the Congress hotel as a preliminary to that organization's annual convention, which begins today.

Some of the matters discussed were the right of teachers to organize themselves into unions, the dangers of curtailing school expenditures, and the inadvisability of whittling down the teachers' salary budgets to finance the construction of school buildings.

W. B. Satterthwaite of Seattle, Wash., pointed out the dangers of what he termed the "yellow dog" contract, which would deny teachers the right to form unions. He said that efforts to foist this contract upon members of the profession should be combated by the force of public opinion.

Labor Backs Teachers.

John Frey, representative of the American Federation of Labor, with which the American Federation of teachers is affiliated, said:

"The American Federation of Labor will put its full strength and support behind the efforts of teachers to maintain their professional organization in affiliation with organized labor and will fight all efforts to curtail educational appropriations."

In a statement made after the meeting, Selma Borchardt of Washington, D. C., a member of the executive council, outlined the principles for which the teachers' federation is fighting.

"We wish to combat the pseudo-economy which would curtail school expenditures," she said. "There is no reason why a country with the wealth of the United States should deny its children the right of a full and free education. Teachers must be maintained at a high professional level and classes must not grow too large. We contend that oversize classes turn schools into factories in which children are ground out rather than truly educated.

Makes Attack on Propaganda.

"We feel that parents want their children taught by free teachers, unhampered by political or economical influences. We are bitterly opposed to propaganda of any kind.

"We do not believe that the construction of buildings should lead to the curtailment of other educational expenditures. Regardless of how fine a building houses the classes, the teacher remains the most important element.

"However, we wish to coöperate in every way with labor unions in urging appropriations for the construction of adequate school buildings. Small quarters mean overcrowding, forcing the adoption of a lecture method, which is educationally unsound for small children. Furthermore, we believe that building projects are essential to help relieve the present depression."

SWINDLER TAKES SCHOOL GROUP'S VACATION MONEY

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—More than thirty school teachers, private tutors, high school students and college students sat on or near their heavy luggage at 42d street and Broadway today waiting for two de luxe busses in which they expected to go to a Dude ranch in Wyoming for a 50 day vacation. The busses never came, nor did George Graham, a smooth spoken sponsor of the tour. The police estimate that the victims lost $30,000 in vacation money. They are hunting Graham.

Appeal Court Holds Club Must Pay Tax on Its Fees

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the decision of Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley that the Traffic club, with headquarters in the Palmer house, is sufficiently social in nature to be taxed 10 per cent of its dues and initiation fees. This is the first decision by the Appellate court in such a case, according to Assistant United States Attorneys John P. Barnes and William J. Duiker, and many similar cases are pending. Chief of these is that of the Quadrangle club of the University of Chicago, which Federal Judge George A. Carpenter has under advisement.

END WICKERSHAM COMMISSION AS FEDERAL GROUP

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—The Wickersham commission, appointed by President Hoover to lead the way out of the prohibition morass, will conclude its labors tomorrow and dissolve. Officials at commission headquarters today stated that the last of its fifteen reports is now in the hands of the printers and will be ready for publication at the pleasure of the President. All commissioners, it was added, will complete their work to morrow and leave Washington.

KENNETH MACKINTOSH.

According to one official, the board will turn back a part of the $500,000 voted for financing its investigations into prohibition and crime.

Two of its major reports, one on lawlessness in law enforcement and another on the administration of the probation and parole system in the United States, are yet to be published. It is understood that the parole system, as now administered, will come in for criticism.

Judge Kenneth Mackintosh, one of the members of the commission who favored modification of the dry laws, said today following a call at the White House, that in his opinion the commission had contributed to some extent toward a solution of the prohibition problem. He asserted that the commission's action in setting forth the facts about prohibition enforcement would be helpful in aiding the nation to reach conclusions on the value of dry legislation.

"We showed that the dry law is not being enforced," Judge Mackintosh said. "I do not believe any one would deny that fact now in the face of figures and findings enclosed in our report. I think we have made a real contribution to the solution of this problem, for we have set the facts before the public."

CAPONE AGREES TO START PRISON TERM JULY 30

Appeals Court Upholds O'Brien Conviction.

Developments at the federal building yesterday gave promise of important Chicago visitors to Leavenworth penitentiary in the near future. Chief of these is Al Capone, arch criminal, who became a certainty for a trip on the night of July 30 when he obtained a postponement of his sentencing for tax dodging and conspiring against the dry laws by waiving claim to the customary stay of execution after the imposition of sentence.

LAWRENCE C. O'BRIEN.

Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, the former Valley beer barons, moved a step nearer the penitentiary when the Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the income tax conviction of State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien.

Contingent on O'Brien Appeal.

Pleas of guilty on the part of Druggan and Lake were contingent as to felony counts on the appeals of O'Brien and Ralph J. Capone, Al's brother. The government's victory in the O'Brien case alone renders them subject to sentences to the penitentiary, and a decision in the Capone case is expected daily. Thus Druggan and Lake and the Capone brothers may all go to prison within a short time.

O'Brien, however, probably will appeal his case to the United States Supreme court, his lawyers said, because of a dissenting opinion written by Circuit Judge Samuel Alschuler.

O'Brien's chief contention in the appeal was that a man cannot be prosecuted for willful failure to file income tax returns [a misdemeanor] and for willful attempts to defeat and evade income taxes [a felony] on the same set of facts. In this respect, the opinion, written by Judge Evan A. Evans and concurred in by Judge Will Sparks, said:

"The offense of willful failure to file an income tax return is not the same as a willful attempt to defeat and evade an income tax. If the two counts are identical, element for element, in the necessary allegation and proof, then the two charges are for the same offense. But it is not the presence of a common act or acts condemned by two criminal statutes, but the presence in one of an element absent in the other that determines whether the two indictments define the same offense.

Cites Various Examples.

"A prosecution for willful failure to file a return might be maintained, although there was in fact no tax due. There could, however, be no such prosecution for willful attempts to defeat and evade a tax unless there was some tax due from the taxpayer. Moreover, there could be a successful prosecution for a willful attempt to evade a tax even though the accused filed his returns."

O'Brien, whose income of almost $1,000,000 for the years 1926, 1927 and 1928 was derived in the main from contracts with the sanitary district, also contended that he believed himself exempt from taxation because he was a public official and his income was from public bodies.

The point at issue in the Ralph Capone appeal, on which Druggan and Lake's pleas are also contingent, is whether a man can be prosecuted for willful attempts to "cheat, swindle and defraud the United States" in connection with a false offer in compromise of a tax liability.

But the main charge in all United States Attorney Johnson's income tax convictions is that of willful attempts to evade and defeat taxes, and the decision of the Appellate court was the first of them passed upon. The case is similar to that of Jack Guzik, Capone gangster, and County Assessor Gene Oliver, both of whom are appealing.

O'Brien was sentenced to eighteen months and fined $6,000 by Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Al Capone's attorneys, Leopold B. Melnick and Michael Ahern, explained to Judge James H. Wilkerson that he wished to be with his family for awhile, because his son was ill. The government did not object.

EXPERT FINDS STARR WROTE DEATH NOTES; LIKELY A SUICIDE

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Two additional items of evidence—a report on the so-called suicide letters written by Starr Faithfull to Dr. G. Jameson-Carr, ship's surgeon, and statements from members of the crew of the liner Franconia—were made public today at Mineola as authorities there indicated that they are swinging more and more to a belief that Miss Faithfull drowned herself in the waters off Long Beach.

The letters, which had been called forgeries by Stanley E. Faithfull, Starr's stepfather, were pronounced genuine by Albert D. Osborn, handwriting expert, engaged by the state.

District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, in making the report public, said that because of the expert's findings no charge that the letters were forgeries would be laid before the grand jury, scheduled to meet tomorrow. The investigation will still be continued, however, Mr. Edwards said, in an effort to exact manner in which the girl went to her death.

20 Arrested in Cuba; See New Political Plot

HAVANA, June 29.—Twenty arrests were made today in connection with what the police described as a new conspiracy against the government. The head of the national police force said there would be more arrests tomorrow, but that none of today's prisoners was of "particular political importance."

MEXICO AWAITS U. S. INQUIRY ON AUTO MURDERS

MEXICO CITY, June 29.—(AP)—Genaro Estrada, Mexican foreign minister, said tonight the government is waiting to hear the views of the American state department on the acquittal last Saturday of Deputy Sheriff W. H. Guess at Ardmore, Okla., before it takes any stand in the matter.

Guess was acquitted of charges in connection with the killing of two Mexican students, one of them a nephew of President Ortiz Rubio, on June 2.

Señor Estrada said he does not consider the incident closed, inasmuch as the American government had promised a complete investigation of the case.

FRANCE BLOCKS HOOVER SCHEME FOR MORATORIUM

Concessions Impossible, Laval Insists.

In the next room Premier Laval was waiting to read off a communique. He looked hardly less tired than the American secretary, with white set face, similar to the way he looked at the end of the all night debate in the chamber of deputies Saturday morning. His voice was almost a whisper as he read off the routine announcement that the conversations would be continued on Wednesday morning.

Warns French Reporters.

His only other statement was a warning to French newspaper reporters not to make too many guesses or they would guess wrong. One member of the government did indicate optimism regarding an eventual compromise, but he opined that it would be the result of further compromises from Washington.

At the embassy, where Mr. Mellon returned to confer with Ambassador Edge while waiting to put through a telephone call to the treasury department in Washington, relief was expressed that it is possible to continue the conversations at all.

Causes of the Impasse.

The causes of the present impasse in the debt negotiations are much more serious than official viewpoint would indicate. They are both of a technical and political nature, although it is understood that the discussion today was deliberately confined to technicalities.

The chief political questions involved, such as guarantees and control over Germany's finances, as demanded by the French, would constitute an insurmountable barrier if they assumed a concrete form, but in this direction compromise is always possible by reaching an accord on the academic principle involved without making the manner in which it would be carried out too definite.

Thus, a point of wording for lawyers to wrangle over subsequently would determine just what Uncle Sam has let himself in for.

U. S. Balks at Reservation.

But when it actually comes down to dollars and cents it is a different story. It was stated tonight that Washington will not even accept France's fundamental reservation that Germany must come through with the payment of the unconditional annuity and suggests instead that the German railways, which constitute a guarantee for the annuity, be made responsible for the payment instead of the reich itself. This is one of the points which resulted in the deadlock.

Then there is the question of how the $100,000,000 payment, whoever makes it, shall be refunded to Germany and at what rate of interest. It is understood that France is holding out for a very high rate.

How to Pay Back Advance?

More serious even than that is the difference of opinion over the time limit accorded Germany for paying back this advance, with the French again holding out for a minimum limit which the Germans insist is too low.

The feeling is growing in official quarters here that the only way out of the deadlock is to reach a complete accord with Germany before resuming the moratorium discussion—in other words, bribe or bulldoze the Germans into backing the French claims.

But the Germans, who are keeping in close touch with the American embassies in Berlin and Paris, will not play ball with the French.

This evening Premier Laval forced Briand to pocket his pride and invite the German ambassador, Leopold von Hoesch, for a conference at which the wish was expressed that Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius come immediately to Paris.

The German ambassador politely replied that he did not think this possible until the French settled their differences with the United States. So now it appears that the Germans will not come to Paris before the end of July.

Following the conference with Americans tonight, Von Hoesch was summoned a second time to the Quai D'Orsay and Briand presumably reiterated his request. He got the same reply.

Who Lost His Head?

Every one over here is thinking that President Hoover lost his head in rushing out so soon with the moratorium proposal.

And a lot of people think that Premier Laval lost his head when he exposed the details of the French note to the chamber of deputies just as the negotiations were starting. He certainly made a bad break when he called in the German ambassador Saturday and delivered an ultimatum that Germany must manifest confidence in French generosity.

According to THE TRIBUNE'S information—from a German source—Ambassador von Hoesch, who has one of the clearest heads of any diplomat around this town, squelched Premier Laval and nipped his scheme with a few well picked words.

Laval Takes a Razzing.

"Just what specific expressions of confidence do you want, M. Laval?" he asked. "Do you suggest the dissolution of the steel helmets or the abandonment of our naval program, for instance?"

Laval had no reply and the interview, outside the French press, got well razzed.

Finding the personal weakness of your adversary is the cardinal principle of European diplomacy. The French tried out Mellon yesterday with wine, food, horses, flattery and beautiful women, but the immediate results were not very satisfactory—at least to France.

Edge "Too Tough."

Ambassador Edge has already been given up as a tough egg, but the French shrewdly utilize certain phases of his unfamiliarity with the European scheme. Against the formidable opposition they are facing in this crisis, the American professional diplomats—that is the ones whose ambitions are not exclusively social—are inclined to bemoan that they have not a slush fund at their disposal, like their European confreres, and they cannot even hand out a few yards of red ribbon in a pinch.

DRESS SHOP HELD UP.

The Pandora Dress shop, 4862 Sheridan road, was held up yesterday by two robbers who obtained $24 after threatening Mrs. Iva Parker, the manager, and two clerks.

BELGIUM ACCEPTS DEBT PLAN; TO TAKE LOSS OF $20,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, June 29.—In a cable of about 800 words, the Belgian government today accepted the Hoover debt moratorium proposal.

The wording of the note will be kept secret until tomorrow, but it is learned that Belgium expresses hope that President Hoover's initiative might tide over the world's difficulties and expresses the wish that Belgium's special position in the reparations problem might be recognized and a way found to make her sacrifices less heavy.

Full application to the Hoover plan would mean a $20,000,000 loss to Belgium. To reduce this loss and balance the budget, Belgium hopes for three things—first, that the United States will include post-armistice loans granted by American banks to Belgium in the moratorium; second, that Germany continue payments on the recently recognized special marks debt to Belgium, and, third, that England also grant a moratorium for various loans to Belgium and the Belgian Congo.

Portugal Accepts Plan.

LISBON, Portugal, June 29.—(AP)—Portugal today accepted President Hoover's debt moratorium proposal, saying she was willing to make the sacrifice for the general good of the world. The announcement was contained in a budget statement.

BERLIN DEBATES WHAT TO DO IF DEBT PLAN FAILS

German Envoy Reports Hope Is Dwindling.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 29.—All the members of the German cabinet assembled at the chancellory tonight to discuss measures to be taken if President Hoover's proposal for a one year moratorium on war debts fails. Ambassador von Hoesch tonight telephoned from Paris that hopes for French cooperation with President Hoover's plan to revive world business are dwindling and that Premier Laval had told him:

"It will be impossible to start the Hoover plan on July 1. Who cares?"

Recall Stresseman's Words.

"In negotiations with the French no conference is complete without moments when defeat is imminent—then one must stick to one's guns and the French will come back to reason."

Wilhelmstrasse is hoping that "Hoover will remain firm," and again some officials pointed to the success of Stresseman as representative of a vanquished nation in negotiations with the victory conscious French.

Wilhelmstrasse emphatically denies rumors circulated in the foreign press that Germany is ready to make concessions to help the United States bring France to reason.

Keep in Touch with U. S.

"It is true that telephone conversations between Berlin and Washington have been numerous during the last 24 hours, but they were carried on mainly for the purpose of keeping Washington informed of the situation in Berlin," a semi-official spokesman declared.

"Anxiety has been felt since Saturday, when in a few hours about $13,500,000 worth of foreign currency was withdrawn. Today hopes for a favorable result from the Mellon-Laval negotiations were revived and only $7,000,000 worth of foreign currency was withdrawn."

Financiers expressed belief that the Reichsbank is bringing pressure to bear on the banks to withhold their demands for foreign currency.

LAVAL MOVES TO SEND A STURDIER ENVOY TO BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—Forseeing months of heavy tilting in Berlin with Germany's best diplomatic talent over the moratorium and other strongly economic problems, Premier Pierré Laval today took steps toward replacing with a studier negotiator the present French ambassador, Gery de Margerie, who has always been considered an "amiable weak sister."

M. Laval, it is said, wants to send Deputy Andre-Francois Poncet, undersecretary for national economy and one of the strongest financial experts, to Berlin.

A law passed in 1928 bars members of parliament from serving as envoys. M. Laval told chamber of deputies committee that several senators had informed him they intended to initiate a bill abrogating that law. He added that he will ask the chamber of deputies for the same legislation.

M. Poncet is taking an active part in the daily moratorium conferences between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Premier Laval.

Roosevelt Boys, Sons of Theodore, Take Up Flying

New York, June 29. — (AP) — The Roosevelt boys, Quentin II, and Theodore III, took up flying today. The young sons of the governor of Porto Rico were taken up by Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., who are awaiting the right kind of weather for a flight around the world.

WIFE DIVORCES ARNO, THE SATIRIC ARTIST; SAYS HE STRUCK HER

Reno, Nev., June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Peter Arno was granted a decree of divorce here today from her cartoonist husband upon her cross complaint charging extreme cruelty. Arno's real name is Curtis A. Peters Jr.

Mrs. Arno said her husband's acts of cruelty began soon after their marriage and continued until their separation last November. They were married Aug. 12, 1927, and have one child, Patricia, the custody of whom was awarded the defendant, Mrs. Arno.

The settlement provided that Arno pay to his wife $5,000 the first year, $7,000 the second, and $6,000 thereafter until such time as she remarries. He also agrees to pay $200 a month for the support of the child.

Mrs. Arno, who was Lois Long, a writer, did not appear at the hearing. Arno's only witness was Mrs. Vencill, who testified that the artist had established the necessary six months' residence.

It is at Mrs. Vencill's home that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. has been staying since her quarrel with her husband a few weeks ago, in which Arno figured prominently.

Mrs. Arno charged that her husband was jealous, that he took her away from parties they attended when she danced with men he did not know or did not approve of, and that following such episodes he wrangled with her until three or four o'clock in the morning. She said that during one period he went out fourteen consecutive nights and did not return until the early morning hours. On one occasion, after they had separated, she said in her deposition, she went to a restaurant with a gentleman friend and later Arno came in, dragged her out of the restaurant and slapped her in the face.

The Vanderbilt divorce tangle was not unraveled today as scheduled, it having been announced that another conference between attorneys for both sides is necessary before an agreement on the amount of allmony Vanderbilt can afford to pay is reached, if at all.

CHIEF OF LEGION TELLS NEED OF NEW LEGISLATION

Legislation to give war veterans from three to five more years in which to exchange their five year convertible governmental life insurance will be sought at the next session of congress, Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, made known yesterday in a speech at the luncheon of the Advertising Men's post at the Hotel Sherman.

Maj. Gen. Frank Park, Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, and Mayor Cermak were among guests at the luncheon.

Commander O'Neil said current industrial conditions had made it impossible for most of the war veterans to exchange their convertible insurance and more time would be needed. He praised the operation of the veterans' loans plan as having aided business generally and enabled the former soldiers to meet more of their obligations.

Mayor Cermak spoke briefly to the Legionnaires, explaining the taxing and financial situation which confronts Chicago.

Warn Residents to Observe Law on Lawn Sprinkling

Householders were requested yesterday by H. L. Meites, superintendent of the water bureau, to observe the ordinance limiting the sprinkling of lawns to the hours between 5 and 7 a. m. and 7:30 and 10 p. m. Excessive use of water for sprinkling purposes has lowered the water pressure and created a shortage, Mr. Meites said. Police have been instructed to enforce the law.

IF DEBT PLAN BREAKS SLUMP, TAXES MAY SOAR

Smoot Says 250 Millions Loss Must Be Made Up.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Should President Hoover's proposed suspension of debt payments have its desired effect and result in the restoration of prosperity, that very prosperity might enable the country to stand an increase in taxes in order to make up for the 250 million debt payment loss, Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, declared today.

Flotation of Loans.

Should the depression continue, the treasury undoubtedly must seek to get along by the flotation of loans, he said, in discussing ways to make up for the payments temporarily surrendered under the Hoover plan. But should an upcurve commence, then congress, he said, might well consider a return to pay as you go policy, which would mean an upward revision of the tax schedules.

Among the features of Senator Smoot's discussion was his pointing out that more than 100 million dollars of the quarter billion dollar decrease in the national income might be made up by pushing the corporations tax back up to 12 per cent from its present 11 per cent level. He was not suggesting or advocating such a step, he explained, but mentioned it as a possible means to increase the revenue.

Both Parties Eyeing 1932.

With a deficit for the fiscal year ending tomorrow which will total between 950 and 975 million dollars, and with today's treasury statement showing the receipts from the income tax this year have fallen 550 millions below those of last year, taxation, it is conceded, would be a prime subject of discussion when the next congress meets. With both major parties eyeing 1932, and the country depressed, leaders on both sides have insisted that the treasury could get along without any increase. The loudest demand was expected to come from the insurgents.

The statement of Senator Smoot was looked upon with interest, therefore, as the first recognition by a regular of the possibility of a tax revision.

Michigan Slayer Given a Quick Life Sentence

Ionia, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—Within 20 hours after he had held the head of his neighbor, Frank Sinkey, 64, under the surface of shallow water in Fish creek, Harold Rex, 26, Vickeryville farmer, late today received a life sentence in Jackson prison, pronounced upon him after he had pleaded guilty to first degree murder.

Rex had told Sheriff Francis M. Waldo he killed Sinkey Sunday afternoon following a drinking orgy in Sinkey's home in order that he might become beneficiary of his small estate, comprising five acres of farm land.

SOCIAL LEADER SUES AN OLD FRIEND OVER DIRT DUMPED IN YARD

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Washington society leader, demanded $20,000 damages in a suit filed in the District Supreme court today against Raymond T. Baker, former director of the mint.

Mrs. Harriman charged that Mr. Baker had allowed a contractor in his employ to dump 4,500 cubic feet of rock, clay and dirt in the front yard of her home on the outskirts of Georgetown. Both parties to the suit are Democrats and friends of long standing.

Mrs. Harriman advised the court that she had been greatly shocked on returning from a Bermuda trip to find the Baker dirt cluttering up her front yard. She charged that the dirt interferred with the enjoyment of her property and spoiled its appearance. Photographs were attached. She said she had attempted to settle the matter by friendly negotiations but had failed.

Al Smith's Son in Auto Collision; Escapes Unhurt

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Arthur Smith, a son of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, escaped injury tonight when a car he was driving was struck by a car driven by Ned Mills, 33. Smith's car overturned twice. Francis McCarthy, 24, who was riding with Smith, was injured.

DEBT PLAN NEAR A CRISIS; HOOVER CALLS FOR HELP

Summons Houghton and Morrow.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Following a radio telephone conversation between President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon in Paris the administration announced tonight that no agreement has yet been reached with the French government on the debt holiday proposal and that negotiations have been suspended until Wednesday.

DWIGHT W. MORROW. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Shortly afterward in response to summons by the President, Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey and Alanson B. Houghton, former American ambassador to Germany and Great Britain, arrived at the White House to aid Mr. Hoover in his efforts to carry his debt moratorium plan into effect. They are the guests of the President at the White House.

Talk More than Hour.

The trans-Atlantic telephone conversation between the President and Mr. Mellon took place late in the afternoon following the treasury secretary's last meeting for the day with Premier Laval and other French officials which left France and the United States still a considerable distance apart.

The connection was established in the cabinet room of the executive offices while Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle, Jr., and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills were discussing the situation with the President. Mr. Hoover talked with Mr. Mellon for more than an hour. Neither Mr. Castle nor Mr. Mills would say anything for publication upon leaving the conference but a little later after consulting the White House the acting secretary of state made this statement:

"It is our understanding that all governments have now agreed in principle to the President's plan except the French government. Some differences have arisen in reconciling the French position with the spirit of the President's proposal. Discussions are still continuing."

Mr. Castle added orally that because of the meeting of the French cabinet tomorrow, which will require the presence of Premier Laval and the French officials, the negotiations likely have been suspended until Wednesday. Officials here doubt that agreement can be looked for before Sunday.

No French Concessions.

While Mr. Hoover has receded in one important particular from his original proposal of a complete suspension of all reparations and allied war payments for one year, the French so far have made no concessions in return.

Suggestions that the whole moratorium plan might fall through as a result of the failure of France and Germany to agree were brushed aside by Mr. Castle, who said there is no ground for pessimism at present.

The emphasis laid by Mr. Castle on the statement that all governments except France have now accepted the Hoover offer in principle is evidence of the American strategy in the negotiations, which is to impress them with a sense of the penalties resulting from the good opinion of the world if the debt moratorium plan fails by virtue of her insistence upon the position she assumed in her reply to the President's proposal.

It also appears, from what is learned in administration circles, that an effort is being made to bring France into line with the threat that if she blocks the President's plan American public opinion will react unfavorably to the extension of any further help to Europe for many years to come.

Doubt France Will Scare.

Whether the French can be frightened into line by such tactics is regarded in some quarters as doubtful, inasmuch as France pays on her debts less than she collects from Germany in reparations. Since the Young plan went into effect she has betrayed only an academic interest in war debt cancellation.

The concession that Mr. Hoover has made to France in the negotiations pertains to the payments of reparations by Germany in kind. In her note France proposed that Germany continue to deposit the unconditional reparations in the international bank to be loaned back, less payments in kind on current contracts, to Germany and other needy countries. Mr. Hoover instructed Mr. Mellon to agree that Germany be required to make such payments in kind on contracts in course of fulfillment and that France be allowed to retain them.

Morrow Experienced Hand.

Mr. Hoover sent for Senator Morrow and Mr. Houghton because of their familiarity with the European situation.

As a member of the American delegation to the naval arms conference at London last year Mr. Morrow specialized on negotiations with the French delegates. He returned recently from a stay of several weeks in Europe during which he talked with numerous statesmen and obtained information on the political and economic conditions abroad. What he reported to Mr. Hoover upon his return had a good deal to do with the decision of the President to propose the moratorium.

Mr. Houghton was American ambassador in Berlin during the formulation of the Dawes plan for the settlement of German reparations. Later he was embassador to the court of St. James's The President places a high value upon Mr. Houghton's experience in Europe at a critical period.

Recently Mr. Houghton gave it as his opinion that "this siphoning process to which Germany is being subjected must be completely suspended, not for one or two years, but until Germany can recover her strength." By siphoning process Mr. Houghton said he meant "taking something for nothing."

He ended by saying that if adequate relief were not given Germany there might shortly be "no reparations payments to discuss."

The financial situation in Germany has been considerably improved by the extension of 100 million dollar credit to the German Reichsbank by the Federal Reserve of New York, the Bank of England, the Bank of France and the World Bank at Basle.

MacDONALD ASKS NATIONS TO HELP ARMS REDUCTION

Claims England Alone Has Cut Forces.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 29.—"Future reductions of world armaments must be international." That was the keynote of a striking appeal by Prime Minister MacDonald when in the house of commons tonight he urged the nations of the world to recognize their duty and responsibility by multilateral agreements and arrangements. One nation by its own example could not bring about disarmament, the prime minister declared, although "Britain has gone pretty near to the limit in setting an example."

Presents Arms Figures.

The implied moral in Mr. MacDonald's speech was that Britain was the only power which had taken disarmament seriously. As proof of this contention he presented the house with statistics intended to show that in all branches of defense Britain had set an example of drastic retrenchment, while other countries had substantially increased their expenditures.

Taking the naval figures first, Mr. MacDonald credited Great Britain with a reduction of $118,500,000 in expenditure since 1914, and a $17,500,000 reduction since 1924.

U. S. Expenditures Rise.

The United States, he said, showed an increase in naval expenditures since 1914 of $180,000,000, and since 1924 of $43,500,000. France had a decrease in similar expenditures of nearly $25,000,00 since 1914, but an increase of $50,000,000 since 1924.

Italy showed a decrease compared with 1914 of $6,250,000, but compared with 1924, an increase of over $35,000,000.

Japan, he said, showed an increase since 1914 of over $55,000,000 and since 1924 of approximately $17,500,000. He pointed out that German expenditure was limited by the Versailles treaty, but that before the war she had spent on her navy $155,000,000, and at the present time is spending approximately $46,250,000.

In army expenditures, British figures of 1914 were well over $200,000,000, Mr. MacDonald continued. In 1924 the figure was $225,000,000, and in 1931 practically $200,000,000. Since 1925, the military expenditure of France increased by $104,115,000, Italy by $77,000,000, and the United States by $78,400,000.

His comparison of the nations' air force expenditures gave France at present $165,000,000, showing an increase of about $20,000,000 for 1929 alone.

"So far as we can estimate," the prime minister said, "the United States increased her air expenditure since 1922 by something like $100,000,000. Italy shows an increase of $30,000,000 over her 1922 figures."

Great Britain, Mr. MacDonald declared, showed no such marked increase. The air expenditure was only $10,000,000 in excess of the figures of ten years ago, and actually lower than five years ago. The present expenditure, he said, is $90,000,000. Britain possessed only 800 first line aircraft, he said, of which only 400 are permanently available at home.

HURLEY PLANS TRIP TO PHILIPPINES TO INSPECT CONDITIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.] — Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley announced today that he had practically decided to sail for the Philippine islands on an inspection trip the latter part of July. The purpose of his visit, if made, will be to secure a first hand report on the political and economic situation of the islands for submission to President Hoover prior to the convening of congress in December.

P. J. HURLEY. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

With the question of Philippine independence certain to be a live issue in congress this winter, Secretary Hurley has been instructed to obtain all possible information about the islands during the next few months.

The question of whether Dwight F. Davis, the present governor general of the islands, will remain after Jan. 1 will also be a subject of conferences.

WHILE RAILROADS COLLAPSE RUSSIA PLANS HUGE CITY

Glibly Talk of Mysterious "Electropolis."

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VLADIVOSTOK, May 24.—[By Mail.]—The Turkestan and Siberian railway, a thousand miles long and running from nowhere to nowhere as Mark Twain said about the narrow guage line in Barbados, is one of the prize pure white elephants in the bolshevik herd.

Formally inaugurated more than a year ago, officially opened for traffic a few month later, with a "new" time table of trains issued on Jan. 1, last, there is still no service over this line of single track, laid across the desert steppes of Kazakstan.

Work Trains Only.

The only trains operated are strings of flat cars carrying dirt and gravel to reinforce embankments, and to provide ballast, which is constantly being washed away by rains and floods from melting snows.

Bill Shotoff, notorious in the United States as a labor leader and strike fomentor, built the road for the reds and he has now moved on to Irkutsk, there to superintend the building of another line thrusting far into the Arctic wastes. This line is planned to transport gold from the mines, formerly the personal property of the Tsar, although the entire output of the Russian gold mines last year would not fill one standard sized American freight car.

Nobody knows just how much money was squandered in constructing the Turkestan and Siberian railway, and the job was certainly completed in record time, although nobody seems to know why.

Pass Tent Cities.

The territory through which the line passes is populated entirely by Usbeks, Kazbeks and other beks, who live with their herds in cosy but slightly discolored white felt tents, called yurts, and who hide their faces every time a work train passes because these new-fangled contraptions are against their religion and against their principles. There are mighty few potential passengers among them.

An existing branch of the Turkestan railway from Tashkent goes as far as Alma Ata, where Trotsky was exiled for a couple of years, and a branch line proceeds as far as Kokand, near the Chinese frontier and on the direct road to the only mountain pass which would be available for a railroad even with considerable tunnelling, at Kashgar.

An existing line from the trans-Siberian drops down from Novo-Sibirsk to Semipalatinsk, and taps all the country worth while in that region, taking in one end of the Kusnetsk mineral basin. Between these points Tashkent and Semipalatinsk, the lofty ranges of the Pamir and Altai mountains definitely shut off any expansion to India, Afghanistan and China, leaving the arid Kamkstand desert and the extremely brackish waters of Lake Blakash the only hinterland for the steel highway to thrive on.

Lines Lack Connections.

The new road does not provide an alternative route to the trans-Siberian for transcontinent traffic, as it loops too far to the south, and when it makes connections with the Turkestan line, it only contacts with another single track route, already glutted with its existing business.

As a strategic railway, backing up a frontier, the kind that general staffs fairly gloat over and find never too expensive, the Turk-Sib is an ace, but a civilian obeserver might remark that the Pamir and Altai ranges have been backing up that particular boundary for ages without cost.

Most any day the Turk-Sib threatens to start regular traffic, freight and passenger, but almost every day there is a new section of the line washed out, which is discouraging and tends to delay matters.

Americans Build Dam.

One other mastodon among the soviet's menagerie of prize blooded behemoths is the Dnieperstroi dam in the Ukraine at Zaporojnie. It stands out as the one simon-pure achievement being built according to schedule, in fact ahead of schedule, in the whole long list of 518 different projects which the 5 year plan embraces.

It is coming along ahead of time because the New York engineering firm headed by Col. Hugh L. Cooper, with Milton T. Thompson of Montclair, N. J., as engineer in charge, is whooping things up and making the 16,000 workmen "step on it."

Now Col. Cooper's contract is to build the dam, which contains more concrete than any other dam in the world, and is situated right below the Wolf's Throat, at the beginning of the rapids in the Dnieper river. It is not Col. Cooper's job to see that the nine turbine generators are installed in the powerhouse on one side of the river, nor to find some means of utilizing the 810,000 horsepower, which the electricity from the spillways will generate, nor to find the 3,000 ton canal and river boats which should ply through the locks and up the stream, over the submerged rocks to Kieff.

Plan Big City in Future.

It is up to the Red director to accomplish those slightly more complicated tasks, and he is going ahead with a vengeance doing it. On the very day I visited the outfit, he had selected a name for the future city, casually estimated at a million population, which is expected to rise there by 1940.

"Electropolis" is the fitting name that he chose, and electricity there will be, regardless of any other shortages which may exist. There will be electricity to eat and to warm, and to live in and to smoke and drink, and worship, too, perhaps, for the bolsheviks have decided there will be no church in that proud metropolis.

They plan an electrical industry and an aluminum industry [that is to get even with Mr. Mellon because the treasury department barred the northern timber], and several other industries that will simply put all competitors in capitalistic countries right out of business.

There will be a one thousand room hotel, twelve story office buildings, six story apartment houses, and a race track and a stadium, and 35 barber shops, and a free library with books in it, and all sorts of conveniences and even luxuries. Laugh that off!

But until the electric power plant starts functioning and until Electropolis gets going, and until the river boats start paying tolls for passing through the locks, the dam will serve the useful purpose of creating a lake 80 miles long and 10 miles wide, where the boys and girls can go swimming free in summer and skating free in winter.

That is, if they have any bathing suits and any skates.

HOUSE IS BOMBED; 1 MAN SHOT, 1 BEATEN IN OHIO MINE STRIKE

St. Clairsville, O., June 29.—(AP)—A house was bombed, one man was shot and another was clubbed in the eastern Ohio coal strike region today during disorders near mine properties.

The foundation and side of the home of Harry Blackers, a working miner at the Fairpoint mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal company, were damaged by a dynamite bomb set off under the house. Blackers, his wife and four children escaped injury.

Stanley Karnich, 32, was wounded slightly by a bullet and Gabo Kado, 29, was clubbed with a gun butt in a disorder at the Bradley mine No. 1 at Smithfield. Deputy sheriffs said the injuries resulted when mine guards attempted to disperse about 100 National Miners union pickets who had gathered around the workings.

Karnich and Kado were taken to Smithfield jail while deputies made an investigation of the shooting. They said a gun in the hands of a mine guard had been discharged accidentally during the melée.

Sheriff Howard Duff of Belmont county said Blackers told him the dynamite bomb was set off under his home because of his refusal to leave the mine. He said he had been threatened if he failed to quit work and join the strikers.

FORCED SOVIET LABOR PRODUCTS MAY BE BARRED

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—The imposition of strict treasury regulations on Russian imports produced by forced or indentured labor was predicted today by Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee.

Senator Smoot helped frame the new tariff act which carries provision for an embargo against such goods. The provision goes into effect Jan. 1.

Smoot believes that under a strict interpretation of the law, all Russian products would be subject to scrutiny.

"Congress knew what it was doing," he said, "and I have no doubt whatever that the treasury will carry out the intent of congress."

The treasury already has placed upon importers the burden of proof when the status of imports is questioned. Some shipments from Russia are now under consideration, including cargoes of lumber and pulpwood.

Senator Smoot believed both lumber and pulpwood would come under the forced labor ban after July 1. He did not say all Russian products would be barred and there is no indication that a complete ban against all soviet articles is contemplated.

EVANSTON MAN INJURED.

Newton, Ia., June 29.—[Special.]—Cecil Armstrong, Evanston, Ill., unconscious from head bruises in accident Sunday morning at Colfax, 12 miles west of here. A tire blew out, turning car over at foot of hill. Unidentified woman companion was uninjured.

Slayer of Woman Put to Death in Electric Chair

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

What effect have harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos upon the throat? A famous authority, retained by us to study throat irritation, says:

"The tissues above and below the vocal chords and the vocal chords themselves may become acutely or chronically congested as a result of the inhalation of irritating fumes, in the case of chemists for example."

LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays, expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. So "Consider your Adam's Apple"—that is your larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Prof. Page Explains His Devastating Theory.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

PROF. PAGE.

In this ultra-modern atmosphere, therefore, the unorthodox, devastating theories of Prof. Page, which, he says, science dare not accept, fell without a ripple of surprise.

Calls Science All Wrong.

"Of the 13 great phenomena of nature," said the professor, "not one is correctly explained today. There is not a professor who can explain them. It is because they have accepted false as authority.

"Scientists say there are ninety-two chemical atoms. They imagine a force called cohesion. There is no act called an actor. I add a ninety-third atom, a universal repellant force, which I call the Rex atom. When two like atoms touch they fly apart. All other atoms cohere to Rex atoms, which repel themselves.

"Electricity is Rex, flowing in currents. It is cohesion that holds it on its wire and repulsion that drives it on. Nervous force is electricity.

Fed by the Stars.

"Three-fourths of the atmosphere is Rex. The sun cannot supply enough of this, and so every night the stars are blowing Rex into the earth. It causes earthquakes and volcanoes. It poisons the atmosphere. Vegetation is storing up Rex. Coal is not stored by plant matter, but stored up Rex.

"The Rex atom is an essential portion to any chemical combination. Why does ice present a solid? Because other atomic elements will cohere to Rex, and by heat we put more Rex into the ice and the Rex atoms repel it into steam."

Prof. Page says that science will some day accept his physics. He received his degrees at the University of Illinois and taught mathematics at Iowa colleges until he retired sixteen years ago to devote his time to physics. For his work on the atomic theory he was nominated for a Nobel prize in 1924.

CONVICT MAN WHO STOLE TREASURES OF DICKENS HOME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 29.—John Lewis Wynn Bostock, 35, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment at hard labor today for stealing manuscripts by Charles Dickens and letters and books valued at $5,500 from Dicken's London home, now a museum.

Bostock visited Dickens house, describing himself as a magazine writer. Exceptional facilities were afforded him to inspect Dicken's books and manuscripts. During the absence of the secretary he removed autographed letters of such notables as Carlyle, Disraeli and Gladstone and valuable Dicken's first editions. He disposed of these to a dealer, to whom he showed a letter from Sir Henry Dickens expressing his appreciation of the interest Bostock had shown in his father's work.

HUSBAND SUES RICH CHICAGOAN AS LOVE THIEF

Richard H. Coyne, wealthy Chicagoan, was named defendant in a suit for $500,000 damages, charging alienation of affections, filed in federal court here yesterday by Jess Floyd Martin of Indianapolis.

Martin's suit accused Coyne of alienating the affections of Mrs. Blanche Martin, his wife, charging that he had caused the plaintiff to lose his social position and also giving him "mental anguish." Martin is an interior decorator. His wife is 24 and Coyne is 39, a bachelor, and resides at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

The suit said that in September of last year Martin found Coyne's card in his wife's pocketbook and after that the husband started trailing the couple. He said they were in an automobile accident near Racine a few weeks ago in which another woman was killed.

Reports of that accident, which occurred on June 8, said that Coyne, a Miss Beatrice Martin, Miss Leah Cohn, Leigh Seigel, and Mrs. Mollie Cohn of 5249 Sheridan road were passengers in an automobile which turned over in a ditch between Racine and Milwaukee, killing Mrs. Cohn. The others were only slightly injured.

It's really expensive to do without a Majestic Refrigerator

That's because a Majestic will pay for itself. The cost of ice and spoilage of food, the saving from buying in quantity and the use of left-overs soon amounts, for the average family, to the price of a Majestic. After that—it's built to last a lifetime—the saving is big interest on the investment. When you consider that the terms of purchase are so easy they about equal your present ice bill, it's an extravagance to be without a Majestic.

NEW DEATH RIDE VICTIM LINKED TO EARLIER MURDER

Chief Collins Connects 2 Gang Slayings.

WILLIAM COLLINS.

For the purposes of the record, the murder of Joseph Partell, 30 years old, 6920 South Lincoln street, whose body was found yesterday morning in a prairie near Willow Springs, was just another case of a hoodlum having been taken for a ride.

But Chief William Collins of the highway police saw a little farther than the record. He connected this murder with the killing of Edward Fitzgerald, 7886 South Union avenue, on April 21.

Collins had been looking for Partell since June 20—had a detail on Partell's home. It was on that day that Dominick Latronico, 20, 8934 South Wood street, was found dying alongside the road where Partell's body was found yesterday. Latronico murmured to detectives, "Where's Squint?" and when asked the name of the man who had shot him, he said, "IDK—I don't know his last name; he's from the neighborhood."

Body Found in Prairie.

"Squint" was Partell and he had been killed at the same time as Latronico, who lived but a short time after being found. Partell's body was found 300 feet in the prairie, off the road.

From a girl, Frances Murphy, 8421 Bishop street, Chief Collins obtained evidence indicating Latronico was involved in the killing of Fitzgerald, who was one of the lieutenants of Frank McErlane, beer and gang boss of a certain portion of the south side. She was Latronico's sweetheart and he had wished to put his automobile under her name, saying that in the event of his being killed he wanted her to inherit everything he had. She said he feared to go near the corner where Fitzgerald had been killed.

Then it was recalled that Fitzgerald had resisted the efforts of four men to take him for a ride. "Nix, you are not going to take me for a ride, Joey," witnesses heard Fitzgerald say. Then one of the four shot Fitzgerald. The name, Joey, would fit Partell, Collins remarked.

Believed Hired to Kill.

An attempt was made to kill James L. Quigley, 3004 South Marshfield avenue, shortly after the Fitzgerald murder. Then Quigley was identified as one of the four who tried to force Fitzgerald into the automobile. Chief Collins' theory was that Latronico and Partell, who were minor thieves and budding gangsters, had been hired to participate in the Fitzgerald killing.

No connection was found between the murder of Frank Scavo, 26, 1301 West Taylor street, whose body was found near Willow Springs Monday morning, and any of the other murders which were attributed to the south side beer war.

BATTLE BANDITS IN BANK; POSSE CAPTURES TWO

Frankfort Robbery Attempt Fails.

Five gunmen who attempted to hold up the State bank of Frankfort, in Will county, were routed yesterday after a pistol fight with the cashier. Two of the robbers were captured by a posse of citizens as they sought to escape.

The five bandits drove up to the bank in an automobile, three of them entering while the two others remained on guard outside. One of the robbers approached the cashier, J. A. Luhring, and asked to make a deposit. Then he drew a pistol and ordered Luhring to hold up his hands. Instead, the cashier reached for a pistol and fired at the robbers.

Robbers Return Fire.

The robbers returned the fire as they backed out of the bank, but no one was wounded. The two who had stayed outside turned and fled as soon as the shooting started, but were captured as they ran down the E. J. & E. railroad tracks by a posse of citizens headed by William Lankenau, president of the bank. The other three escaped in the automobile.

Taken to the county jail at Joliet, the two captured robbers gave their names as Jack Strong, 20 years old, 2617 South Kostner avenue, and Mike Griffin, 20 years old, 2657 West Monroe street, Chicago. They said they had met the other three men in Chicago Heights last Thursday and knew them only as Larry, Joe and Farmer.

Planned Earlier Robbery.

According to Strong, they had planned to rob the bank last Friday but at that time there were too many people around so they postponed the attempt until yesterday.

The Frankfort bank was robbed of $3,200 in a holdup a year ago.

GIRL IN LOOP SHOP ROBBED.

Miss Clara Becker, clerk in Andes Candy store at 53 East Adams street, was robbed of $20 by a bandit yesterday afternoon.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ellie Frazier, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in Pontiac reformatory; Grover Fryor, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

William Launne and Thomas Armstrong, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Phillip Finnegan.

Williams Roberts and Walter Weltz, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory; George Gilbert and John Simpkins, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary; Eugene Sarnowski, John Lisowski, and Charles Sadowski, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in the Bridewell by Judge John Prystalski.

A series of roadhouse robberies along various highways south of Chicago early yesterday ended in a pistol fight between two Calumet City policemen and the bandits at 151st street and Michigan City road. The robbers, at least one of them believed to be badly wounded, wrecked their automobile but escaped, leaving a trail of blood north to 147th street where the wounded man apparently entered another automobile and fled.

Later one of the suspected robbers and two young women companions were arrested in a beer flat near 138th and Halsted streets. The man, Tony McGowan of Riverdale, and the two women, Mary Zimmerman of Riverdale and Peggy Dawson of Hammond, were taken to the county highway police station at Homewood.

Police Seek Trio.

Scotty McGowan, brother of Tony, Adam Simon, suspected leader of the gang, and another man whose name was not learned, are still sought by the police. Scotty was said to have been wounded. Police learned that a wounded man fitting his description had applied to Dr. David Omens, 1235 Independence boulevard, for treatment of a wound. Dr. Omens said he went to call the Fillmore police and when he returned the man had gone.

After having terrorized several road houses, including the Gary Inn at Oak Glen and Joe's place in Thornton, where the robbers obtained $700, the gang appeared at Spina's place in Dolton, near the Calumet City boundary line.

Police on Lookout.

Meanwhile police had been on the lookout for the gang, and Capt. Frank Miotke and Sergt. Paul Prenz of the Calumet City police, were ready when the gang arrived at Spina's place.

When the police ordered the robbers to surrender the fight started and the robbers fled in their automobile, firing as they raced away. The police pursued, returning the fire, but the robbers outdistanced them and escaped after wrecking their car.

CONVICT ARGUES CASE IN COURT; PICKS OUT FLAWS

Carl J. Bates has had plenty of time to study law during the last two years. He has spent them in the Joliet penitentiary.

That his studies were successful was indicated yesterday by Judge Joseph B. David. He expressed surprise at the number of flaws Bates had picked in his sentence when he appeared before the judge and argued his own case.

Bates was sentenced to serve from one to ten years for the embezzlement of four sewing machines after he pleaded guilty on July 1, 1929, before the late Judge Frank Comerford. Most important of the points which he raised in seeking his freedom, Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach said, was the contention that he should have been charged with larceny, not embezzlement.

Approve $35,000 for Work on Buildings at Camp Grant

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—Contracts for more than $35,000 worth of construction work at Camp Grant, Illinois, were approved today by Maj. Gen. William G. Everson.

ADVERTISE FOR NEW P. O. BIDS AS DEED IS PASSED

U.S. Pays Over 5½ Million for Air Rights.

Advertisements for bids on Chicago's $30,000,000 postoffice were carried in newspapers in various sections of the country yesterday. This action on the part of treasury department officials ended five years of governmental delay and indicated the beginning of work on the world's largest and finest postoffice early in September.

Coincident with the calling for bids, Assistant United States Attorney Henry Balaban handed a check for $5,500,000, signed by W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States, to Theodore Schmidt, assistant chief counsel for the Chicago Union Station company. Mr. Schmidt handed Mr. Balaban the deed to the air rights across the company's tracks from Harrison to Van Buren streets, where the structure will rise.

Must Be In by August 10.

Aug. 10 was set for the last day of submitting bids to the treasury department. At least ten days will be required for the officials to analyse the bids, it was said, before awarding the contract. Then the successful bidder will need another ten days to prepare his bond and secure its approval. The limit of cost for the construction project is $14,500,000.

The treasury officials estimated that sixty or seventy contractors would ask to submit proposals for the construction job. Close to 20,000 blue prints, covering every section of the building, are printed and ready to send to the contractors. It is estimated that the work, when it is in full sway, will provide employment for 1,200 men.

The building, to be of Indiana limestone and brick, will be the largest federal structure outside of Washington, with 2,309,000 square feet of floor space. It will be 800 by 350 feet and twelve stories high.

Warn of Possible Delay.

In January, 1927, the postoffice and treasury departments announced that a site for the postoffice would be acquired within six months. From then until April, 1930, preparations were made to build on the Marshall Field site bounded by Canal, Clinton, Harrison and Polk streets. Then this plan was abandoned, and, with the old site still retained, negotiations for the purchase of the air rights, which ended yesterday, were begun.

In placing the time for the beginning of the work at "early in September," treasury officials warned more time might be required if new obstacles arose. One possibility suggested was the question of the financial responsibility of the successful bidder.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Bridget Kenny, 81 years old, 1 South Peoria street, died yesterday at St. Bernard's hospital of blood poisoning developed after she fractured her hip in a fall on April 28.

TWO NEW LAWS TAKE JOY FROM GUNMAN'S LIFE

Governor Signs Bills Aimed at Gangsters.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 29.—[Special.]—Three bills striking at crime and gangland, to curb gun toting and the bail jumping evil, were signed by Gov. Emmerson today, as the legislature began to trickle back for the windup of the session tomorrow.

E. J. SCHNACKENBERG. [Tribune photo]

Conjectures tonight are that if the revenue conference which the governor has called for Wednesday in Chicago is productive of a program, the lawmakers will be back in special session before the seersucker and shirt sleeve days are over. The governor has received acceptances from most of the citizens invited to the Chicago conclave.

Gangsters and machine gunners who have been able to escape the concealed weapons act, even when caught redhanded, by shoving their guns into the pockets or on the cushions of their car, within arm's reach, but not actually on the persons, are faced with a different deal by one bill signed by the governor. It is H. B. 833, introduced by Elmer J. Schnackenberg, and it has been backed by the Chicago crime commission, the police and other law enforcing agencies.

This new law, which goes into effect Wednesday, makes it unlawful for any person to carry in a motor vehicle any firearm with the intent to use it in the commission of any crime, or for any person, who habitually associates with thieves or frequents houses of ill fame or gambling places to carry any firearms in a motor vehicle.

The new law also makes it unlawful to change, alter or obliterate the name of the maker, model, number or other identification mark on any firearm. Possession of any firearm so altered shall be prima facie evidence that the possessor has changed the markings.

Also it shall be unlawful for any person to carry a firearm in a motor vehicle within ten years after violation of the act.

It does not interfere with the carrying of firearms by peace officers or by reputable citizens for protection.

The other two bills to curb crime which the governor signed into laws were S. B. 403 and 454, by Senator Arthur Adam Huebsch, [Rep. Brookfield]. They were sponsored by the Commonwealth club.

A third bill in the group is on its way to the governor. These new laws provide for the licensing of professional bondsmen, who are required to deposit $5,000 worth of merchantable securities with the director of trade and commerce to guarantee payment of the bonds which they write.

The courts are given the power to revoke the licenses if the bondsman charges extortionate rates or attempts to interfere with the administration of justice. The bills also correct a defects in suspersedeas bond and provide for the collection of forfeited bail bonds by means of a proceeding in chancery which will enable the county to make out merchantable titles to real estate which it acquires through bail bond forfeiture.

Advocates of the new law cited that between Dec. 1, 1916, and Dec. 1, 1930, over $13,000,000 worth of bail bonds were forfeited in the Criminal court of Cook county alone. The county realized a little more than $54,000 on these bonds. Only nine bonds during this period were collected in full, and bail bonds were little more than scraps of paper.

As to revenue and the likelihood of a special session, some advisers of the governor today have been setting it down that the phase of the subject that should invite attention is that of frying the fat out of public pay rolls, from the local county and municipal governments up to the statehouse departments.

Some of the statehouse experts are declaring that a retrenchment of perhaps 79 per cent of expenditures of tax moneys might be accomplished by trimming out superfluous job holders, and Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield] and some other senators are already urging that a cut in governmental expenses is quite as essential a phase of the revenue situation as is the question of developing new sources of revenue.

The governor also signed the following house bills:

H. B. 66 [Thon]—Validates certain park elections.

H. B. 377 [Bratton]—Amends administration of estates act as to sale of lands.

TAXICAB BUSINESS BEGINS TO PICK UP, CONVENTION TOLD

Taxicab companies, among the first to feel the depression, have enjoyed a steady increase in business during the last two months, W. W. Cloud, president of the National Association of Taxicab Owners, pointed out at the opening of that organization's annual convention yesterday at the Sherman hotel. This, he added, is especially remarkable in view of last year's high record. In 1930, he said, one billion passengers yielded a gross income of $550,000,000.

Mr. Cloud, who is president of the Yellow Cab company of Baltimore, Md., advocated the placing of taxicabs under the control of state or city public utility commissions. He warned against the danger of an overabundance of cabs and urged that before any more are licensed it should be shown that they are a public necessity.

Calls Cut Necessary.

Assessor Conroy informed Mayor Cermak that the 5 to 35 per cent cut in 1931 valuations was necessary if the assessment roll was to stand up in court tests. Present low values of real estate combined with low rents and a shortage of tenants, he said, account for the proposed assessment reductions.

"Just where and to what extent the reductions will be applied will be determined by field inspections and the assembling of data on present day costs in real estate construction," Conroy said. He added that some valuations in the loop would be lowered, but it was probable that the total of downstate assessments would be increased.

The board of assessors yesterday sent the 1930 tax assessment books for the town of Lake View to the board of review. The 1930 assessment total was $314,740,098, as compared to the 1929 board of review total of $310,-668,515.

EDISON SERVICE.. WHAT IT IS.. WHAT IT DOES

HOW MANY JOBS HAS ELECTRICITY

Edison Service works day and night on 750

WHEN the average man thinks of the service electricity contributes to human welfare, he thinks of light for the streets, the office, the work-shop, and the home; of power for the factory and the street cars—and he hopes, some day, for railroads in general. There he stops. The average woman will add a few more uses—and leave out some of those the man thinks of. She will include in her list the electric refrigerator, cleaner and washing machine; perhaps the electric coffee machine, waffle iron or toaster, and, maybe, the electric clock. Both, most likely, will forget that the radio and the telephone are electric services.

Even if they remember radio and telephone, however, they will only have started upon the enumeration of things that electricity does for men and women of every occupation, and for the community at large. How many of the best informed would even guess that EDISON SERVICE furnishes electricity for more than 750 common uses of its product!

These 750 and more tasks which EDISON SERVICE constantly performs for Chicago are things which were either poorly done before electricity took them over—such as lighting for all purposes; things that men and women previously accomplished in the sweat of their faces, or things which can be done better and cheaper by electricity than any other way.

These 750 constant services of EDISON SERVICE include six general undertakings of the community as a whole; 360-odd general power tasks where either steam, animal or man power was used before the advent of EDISON SERVICE; upwards of 200 special services such as electro-chemical processes; and, perhaps the most appreciated of any of its services, more than sixty of the routine tasks of home-making. To these can be added a score of health services which give length of days as well as happiness to Chicago's people.

In this Electrical Age, EDISON SERVICE is equipped and qualified to hold its place as a public servant.

CITIZENS DIG UP 33 VARIETIES OF ILLINOIS TAXES

But Statutes Label Them with Other Names.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The word "taxes" means something entirely different in New York and Massachusetts from what it does in Illinois. When one uses the term "taxes" here, he refers to general property taxes, yet Illinois has 32 other different kinds of taxes.

When it is suggested that Illinois has other than general property taxes, public officials usually reply that the others do not amount to much. But $84,646,000 was collected in 1929 in Illinois taxes, which were not levied against general property.

Examples of Other Taxes.

In that year in taxes on motor vehicles and their fuel, Illinois collected $38,166,571, while New York with 70 per cent more population collected only $32,484,545.

In that same year Illinois collected $8,170,542 from insurance companies while New York collected only $7,136,375.

In 1929 Illinois collected $642,325 in taxes on attendance at race tracks and a percentage on the gambling on the races. New York collected nothing.

In that year Illinois collected $224,000 for inspecting grain, while New York collected nothing. In 1929 Illinois collected an aggregate of $73,646,419 in taxes from sources other than levies on general property.

Taxes Under Other Names.

If the phrase "taxes" continues to be limited locally to general property taxes, then Illinois in 1928 levied only $369,023,362 in 1928 as taxes. However, the actual total was actually $423,670,950. By the same token the general property taxes in 1929—Cook county has not yet levied for 1930—totaled $404,781,318, while the total was $478,427,800 when license, franchise, and privilege taxes are added.

In the east these are listed as taxes in the official tax reports, but not in Illinois, although perhaps they will be considered as such in Gov. Emmerson's conference tomorrow.

To the community research committee of the University of Chicago must be credited the compilation of the 33 kinds of taxes in Illinois, with which the state is directly concerned.

This state how has more kinds of taxes than either New York or Massachusetts, and Illinois has an adaptation of every kind of taxes these older commonwealths utilize—except income and stock transfer taxes—but its method of utilizing them are much different in most cases.

Table Is Compiled.

In addition to the general property tax the University of Chicago has compiled a table listing the 32 other variety of Illinois taxes, which its authors claim is comparable with table 12 of the annual report of the New York state tax commission for 1927. The university does not pretend to give the income from these 32 kinds of taxes, and the state of Illinois has never compiled it by tax years.

The state, however, does give the income from these taxes by fiscal years, which end June 30. From these reports it has been possible to compile the accompanying table, which purports roughly to compare the taxes levied in New York state and Illinois for the years of 1928 and 1929. Because of the difference in methods of taxing it may be that some of the money credited to one particular tax belongs to another in the New York classification, but all of the money represented as taxes in the Illinois columns have been levied.

Comparison Is Shown.

The table is illustrative of the kinds of taxes used in New York and indicates the amount of money obtained from each kind for each of the two years.

It also shows to what extent Illinois has copied the New York system and the amount of money it gets for the same or like service, or levies upon the same business. In very few instances are the items exactly comparable in the two states, but the table gives a bird's-eye view of the results obtained by the two systems for the two designated years.

Illinois Levies Listed.

In addition to the general property taxes, Illinois has the following levies:

ONE—Tax on organization of corporations and increase in stock. Payable to the secretary of state, and the tax is a percentage of the capital.

TWO—Similar license tax on foreign corporations.

THREE—Franchise tax on both domestic and foreign corporations.

FOUR—Tax on issuance of public utility securities.

FIVE—Seven per cent of the gross receipts of the Illinois Central railroad.

SIX—Privilege tax on foreign insurance companies.

SEVEN—Filing fee for various insurance companies.

EIGHT—Premium tax on fire insurance companies and agents.

NINE — License tax on fire insurance agents.

TEN—Inheritance tax.

ELEVEN—Motor fuel tax.

TWELVE—Motor vehicle license tax.

THIRTEEN—Chauffeur's fees tax.

FIFTEEN—License tax on referees, contestants in boxing shows.

SIXTEEN—License tax on admissions to athletic exhibitions.

SEVENTEEN—Admission tax to horse races.

NINETEEN—Registration fees for stallions.

TWENTY—Hunting, fishing and trapping license tax.

TWENTY-ONE—Game and fish license tax.

TWENTY-TWO—License tax on occupations and professions.

TWENTY-THREE—License tax on agricultural occupations.

TWENTY-FOUR—License tax on itinerant vendors.

TWENTY-FIVE—License tax on warehouses.

TWENTY-SIX—License tax on private employment agencies.

TWENTY-SEVEN—License tax on dealers in foreign exchange.

TWENTY-EIGHT—License tax on dealers in securities.

TWENTY-NINE—License tax on registration of securities.

THIRTY—License tax on loan companies.

THIRTY-ONE—Gross premium tax fire insurance agents of unauthorized companies.

THIRTY-TWO—Another occupational tax.

The $73,646,419 collected in 1929 in these 32 kinds of taxes comes out of the pockets of some one.

Added Taxes in Chicago.

That $73,000,000 is not all. In addition to paying a large part of that sum Chicago has about $15,000,000 of local taxes which are not represented in the general property taxes. To illustrate, the surface lines pay $5 per cent of their net receipts to the city and the Commonwealth Edison and the telephone companies pay 3 per cent of their gross. Those are "taxes" in the opinion of eastern tax commissioners.

The state gives the utilities the privilege of collecting rates and fares sufficient to insure that these payments come out of the pockets of the public. Yet Illinois and Chicago officials have never accounted for them as "taxes."

Illinois and New York Taxes Compared

The following table is a comparison of the various kinds of taxes collectible in the states of Illinois and New York for the years 1928 and 1929. The comparison is approximated as closely as possible in view of the differences in the taxing systems of the two states. The first 22 items in the table represent the kinds of taxes in the New York system. Illinois has 32 kinds of taxes besides the general property tax, and an effort has been made in the tabulation to fit the Illinois collections with those of the New York system for purposes of comparison. In some instances, however, as shown by the blank spaces in the comparative table, the collections are not on a comparable basis. The table follows:

UNSPENT CERMAK CONTRIBUTIONS BACK TO DONORS

Refunds of a portion of campaign contributions made by Chicago business men to the Cermak mayoralty campaign were received yesterday by seven or eight hundred of the donors.

Probate Judge Henry Horner, who as treasurer of the Cermak business men's organization made the refunds, admitted that it was practically an unheard of thing for political contributions to be returned, but that in this case all the money had not been spent, and therefore was being returned.

The refund amounted to approximately 6 per cent, Judge Horner said, and the individual amounts returned to the contributors ranged from 18 cents to about $200.

NORGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

The story of a buyer who got hard-boiled

He faced the problem of selecting one make of electric refrigerator for a thousand metropolitan apartments. By elimination he narrowed his choice to four—Norge and three others.

From then on he refused to take anything for granted. Norge had to prove itself in a room heated to 120° Fahr. And Norge did prove itself!

THE ROLLATOR

This buyer of a thousand electric refrigerators wanted to know exactly the things you want to know about the refrigerator for your home.

Impartial time and temperature recording instruments gave him the facts he wanted . . . and he chose Norge.

When you are ready to select your new refrigerator, by all means see the Norge before you buy.

Norge is manufactured by Norge Corporation, Detroit, a Division of Borg-Warner, one of the world's largest makers of automotive parts, including free wheeling.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE LIMIT OF TAXABILITY.

The address of Mr. James L. Donnelly, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, at Rockford serves to clear the ground for the governor's conference on revenue tomorrow.

The fact which the conference must face is that the governments of this state are spending more money than they are collecting. Mr. Donnelly has effectively disposed of those who say that the problem can be met if only the legislature will devise some new taxes to supplement the existing levies.

New levies will only make matters worse. They will drive industries now established here out of the state and they will discourage new industries from coming to Illinois. Already the tax spenders are asking more than the public will pay. New taxes or a boost in existing taxes can only result in further refusals to pay.

There is a limit to the amount which governments can collect and in Cook county that limit has been reached and passed.

During a decade and more of steadily mounting expenditures the legislature and the local government officials regularly increased the tax rates. Even in the era of prosperity it was becoming evident that the limit of taxability was being approached. The coming of an era of depression merely hastened the crisis. Governmental costs which the public was barely able to meet in times of plenty have become an impossible burden now. No amount of ingenuity in funding debts and devising new forms of taxation can alter that fundamental fact. The only remedy lies in reduction of expenditures to meet the capacity of the people to pay.

The tax on real estate in Chicago, now in collection, exacts 2.27 per cent of the full value of the property. In some instances the tax amounts to a confiscation of all the income. In many more it takes so large a proportion of the income as to discourage further investment. Necessarily it serves to depress values. The 1930 tax rate is to be even higher. It will exact 2.58 per cent of the full value of the property. There can be no thought of retaining the present rates, which are already prohibitive, much less of advancing the rates to meet the tax spenders' notions of what the public ought to pay for the privilege of being governed.

The governor's conference will merely waste time if it undertakes to set up a program of additional taxation. However handsome the program may appear on paper, the fact remains that the taxpayers will not stand for it. Their limit has been reached. The books of the county treasurer attest the fact. A thousand instances, from the days of the children of Israel in Egypt to the kulaks of today, illustrate the truth that governments cannot squeeze more from the governed than they can pay. There comes a point at which higher taxes result in lessened yield. That point has been reached in this state, and especially in Cook county, today. The sooner the governor's conference recognizes that fact, the better its chances of making a constructive contribution to the solution of the revenue problem.

MR. STIMSON AND THE OTHER GROUSE.

Mr. Stimson's plans for Europe include three weeks of August grouse hunting in Scotland. England and Scotland have made such a good job of game preserving that, although the swarming population almost proves that Malthus was right as to the insufficiency of the soil and crops, the hunting remains as one of the delights of persons privileged to enjoy it. Mr. Stimson will be. British hunting is a fair social index. It has marked a division between people who have found Britain the pleasantest imaginable land and more people who have found living hard.

Pheasants have survived more easily than peasants under the old laws, which kept the small farmer from knocking down his dinner on his own land. If he was over the law's hundred pounds a year income he could take his partridge; otherwise his covey was driven for his betters to shoot and he went without his meat. Even so admirable a man as Sir Roger de Coverley complained that Jones would be a good neighbor, but he killed so many partridge.

Australia got many compulsory immigrants whose crime at home was poaching. (Probably one reason why Australia is wrecking itself with proletarian legislation; the reaction.) Before deportation was accepted as a mitigation of penalty, the gallows did the work. There is difference between a people whose game has been reserved for aristocracy and a people who have gone over the country shotgun in hand. One system is careful of game and wasteful of people, the other is careful of people and wasteful of game. The partridge has had a hard time surviving in Wisconsin, and the quail in Illinois and Indiana, but the average man hasn't had.

Mr. Stimson should have a very pleasant three weeks at some lodge in Scotland. His diplomatic position as secretary of state of a great creditor nation will bring him all the amenities of a land in which privilege is something more than vestigial. The hunting will not be following a cocker spaniel through the brush with some sharp-eyed native off to the right. The American commoners have knocked down so many grouse that most areas here are closed to all hunting now. Mr. Stimson might not be able to get any birds at home. His fellow countrymen wish him luck in Scotland, hoping at the same time that one of his hosts does not make a Pickwickian mistake. It would not be so good if the bag of the hunt were discovered to contain also the American secretary of state.

GERMANY PAYS FOR THE AMERICAN SHOW.

The cost to Germany of the little pomp and circumstance in which the American army was indulged after the armistice in the occupation of the Rhine country is $164,670,000, payable over thirty-seven years at six millions a year. There is another sum under the awards of the mixed claims commission bringing the total annuity to $16,000,000. The army occupation costs ought to make an uneasy American conscience. This collection is the only one tainted. The other debts represent generous settlements and much forgiveness of just and due obligations. European scurrility regarding them is so much rain water on a duck's back. The debtor squeals who would welsh.

In collecting from Germany for the army which so long remained so needlessly on the Rhine, the United States is doing something wrong and offensive to its own self-respect. It was feeding off a prostrate enemy when that enemy had done what the American government prescribed for it as a measure to gain the sympathy and cooperation of this democracy. It threw out its military autocracy and became a republic. Upon the republic the United States fastened the commissary of an army of occupation and the other costs of its upkeep. America stood aloof from every other imposition upon the defeated nation, but it took part in this picayunish one.

The army command had a military satisfaction in joining the occupation of invaded territory after the war had been won. It polished up some outfits into fine parade condition. The sum may not seem large, but six millions a year is an item in the budget of a country which has been looking at bankruptcy and trying to get around the corner. It is large also in its reflection upon the fair dealing of the United States, upon its pretenses of sympathy for a democratic people trying the republican form of government under great pressure from right and left. In effect, a sturdy and well kept army was turned upon a hungry people. The episode does not wash.

One relief the United States can grant without consultation with any other nation, and that is the release of Germany from the $164,670,000 which the occupation of the Rhine by American soldiers is costing the republic. The United States can well afford to pay that bill itself.

EXIT THE RACKETEER.

A new leaf seems to have been turned in the affairs of the Chicago journeyman plumbers' union with a free election of officers which it is hoped means the end or the beginning of the end of gangster domination. Organized labor has been victimized by criminals who captured unions as pirates captured ships, took and held control by force, and used it chiefly for their own benefit. The plumbers' union was ruled for years by such men as "Skinny" Madden, Mossy Enright, Frenchy Mader, Big Tim Murphy, Dapper Dan McCarthy and Billygoat Taglia, heroes of the underworld who had no regard for labor, for unionism, or for anything else but their own profits. The real union men were helpless under gunman rule and this sort of unionism became a serious phase of the crime problem of the city. With the awakening of the community to determined warfare upon organized criminality, the labor gun boss or racketeer could not be overlooked. What was needed was support for legitimate labor organization, protection of the law-abiding elements in unionism from violence, defense by the agencies of the law of the union members' rights.

The notion that racketeer control is in the long run good for a union or its members ought by this time to be discredited. It is based on the theory that what the racketeer took from employers was no loss to the union. In times of plenty the falsehood of that notion might not appear, but in lean years the cost of building has a very plain bearing on the jobs to be had and the take of the racketeer was not a small part of that cost. A business concern that hired men like the labor racketeers as its agents would not prosper and in the long run a labor union will lose by such agents and for the same reasons.

The plumbers' union has taken back its own government and should keep it. The racketeer should be expelled from organized labor. He is in the long run an expensive fraud.

Editorial of the Day

"BELLS ON BICYCLES."

[Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press.]

President Hoover, we learn with consternation, has raised the tariff on "small bells for bicycles and velocipedes."

The flexible tariff seemed an excellent thing, and the President the best man to do the flexing, but we never supposed Mr. Hoover would protect American small bicycle and velocipede bell manufacturers with an increase almost certain to result in perils to limbs and dignities on a thousand street corners.

Small boys, or the fathers of small boys, will be leaving the bells off bicycles due to the boost in price. And while that may have been a matter of small consequence ten or even five years ago, every city dweller knows that it is something to stay awake about today. The bicycle no longer, except for commercial purposes, is street traffic. It went over the curb and up on the sidewalk about the time that cities were putting traffic lights at back street intersections. Police, who once arrested children for riding on the sidewalk, found the sidewalk suddenly cluttered with bicycles. Today the dealers are brazenly, openly, and quite prosperously selling "sidewalk bicycles" for use on sidewalks alone.

The child world is safer, but the shopper with an armful, the matron with a baby cab, the portly gentleman with a dignity know that the adult pedestrian world is not. When a bicycle or velocipede bell wears out it is in the public interest to see that it can be replaced at the smallest price such warning implements may be obtained anywhere in the world —tariff or no tariff. How would you, Mr. Hoover, like to come around a drug store corner and find a bell-less bicycle spilling you before a group of braying Democrats?

APPENDICITIS FATALITIES.

It is up to the people to do something about appendicitis. This is one of the conclusions drawn from a study made by Frederick Hoffman.

The appendicitis death rate in 59 American cities in 1929 was 18. The same cities had a death rate of 12.3 in 1910. In other words, in nineteen years the appendicitis death rate of these cities went up nearly 50 per cent. The American city with the highest rate was Detroit. It came first with 20.1. Chicago had a rate of 19.5 and New York 16.5.

In comparison, in New York City, the diabetes death rate was 23.54; the automobile death rate was 17.25, and that due to measles, scarlet fever and whooping cough combined was 16.18. Appendicitis is in mighty bad company. Few diseases outrank it in the deaths it causes. A study of Canadian statistics shows that conditions are almost as bad there. In 1928 their appendicitis death rate was 14.6 and there is the same upward trend.

The study shows that men have about 30 per cent more fatal appendicitis than women. This covered appendicitis in some dozen European countries and to some lowly civilized peoples. Spain has the lowest European rate, Italy being a close second. Holland is third. Sweden, Scotland and Switzerland have the worst European rates, the last named being as bad off as were we 21 years ago.

On the other hand, primitive people almost escape it. Dr. Hoffman quotes Dr. W. Shrubshall as saying the Bantu natives in South Africa practically escape appendicitis. This freedom Dr. Shrubshall attributes to the diet and habits of these African Negroes. They go to the toilet three or four times a day. A man who pays only two visits a day regards himself as constipated and does something to correct matters. Their diet contains a great deal of roughening. They eat rough grains and breads made from coarsely ground grains and vegetable fiber. They are very fond of meat, but they seldom get a chance to eat any of it. When they do get meat they are likely to gorge.

Dr. Shrubshall follows his description of the diet with this statement: "These people do not suffer from appendicitis, and, moreover, are not afflicted with gall bladder affections." He thinks that some of the constipation habits of people in civilized lands are due to the comforts of the toilet seat.

CURE BASIC TROUBLE.

K. O. writes: About six years ago I had amebiasis and trichomonas, and last summer there was a recurrence of the amebiasis. I took treatment and a test last fall revealed no germs. Last fall I had hemorrhoids and was lanced, and have had no trouble since. However, for the last three months I have had itching locally. Can you tell me the cause of this and what I should do about it? It is not painful but quite annoying.

REPLY.

Pruritis is frequently encountered as a complication of hemorrhoids. If the basic trouble is cured there is generally no difficulty in curing the complicating symptom.

IF HORSES DO NOT KICK.

H. C. W. writes: Would you please tell me if it is all right for a woman to go horseback riding after a Cesarean operation?

REPLY.

No objection to it. Somebody must ride the horses.

TONSILS AND JULY.

H. K. writes: Is it advisable to get tonsils cut out in the month of July? A person told me that it is bad to cut them out in summer and they have a tendency of growing back.

REPLY.

LOOK INTO OTHER THINGS.

H. H. writes: Would it be harmful for a person with a nervous heart to spend the summer in Denver?

REPLY.

Probably not, though something other than altitude should be taken into consideration. Is tobacco used to excess, or coffee? Is there goiter? Is there any organic heart disease? What is the type of nerve derangement?

TAKING "AS IS."

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented a store for a term of five years. A turkish bath and boiler, for heating the bath, is located underneath the store, and the heat from this boiler is unbearable. The landlord failed to tell me of this boiler when I rented the store. What action can I take?

M. F. S.

In general, a tenant is supposed to inspect the premises and to accept them in reliance on such inspection. You do not state that the landlord concealed the condition from you or that any change was made after you rented. It might be worth your while to submit all your facts to a lawyer in a personal interview.

OUT OF LUCK.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a cashier's check from a bank, paying cash for the check and also a five cent fee. Two days later the bank closed. 1. Can I collect my money? 2. Would the fact the bank charged me five cents for the check help me to collect the money? J. H.

1. You will have to take the same dividend as other creditors.

2. No.

"If any banker . . . shall receive . . . any money . . . or other valuable thing which is transferable by delivery, when at the time of receiving such deposit, said banker . . . is in his . . . knowledge insolvent, whereby the deposit so made shall be lost to the depositor, said banker . . . shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement and . . . shall be fined in a sum double the amount . . . and in addition thereto, may be imprisoned." TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO NAMES MENTIONED.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Where could I secure information regarding the standing of a reliable lawyer? 2. Do lawyers charge a consultation fee? M. W.

1. In order to guard against the suspicion that The Tribune law department is conducted to secure business and fees for favored attorneys we have been forced to adopt the rule of never supplying the names of attorneys. 2. Yes.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

QUICK! QUICK! ANOTHER MORATORIUM!

There is only one thing to do about this heat wave and it ought to be done right away. Declare a moratorium. We've learned you can cure anything by making some kind of a law about it. The debt moratorium is going to cure all the financial ills of the world. All right, then we've got to have a weather moratorium to stop having hot days like we had last Saturday and Sunday and yesterday. All we have to do is to proclaim a weather moratorium for a year and the thing's done. A debt moratorium will cure others, then why not a weather moratorium to cure this hot weather? Just have Washington make a proclamation and serve notice on the weather man and we won't have to sizzle and bake like we've been doing. And after we get that over let's have a moratorium preventing any more droughts. Then we can have a grocery and meat shop moratorium for a year; we can get all we want at both places and they can't charge us a nickel. Then a moratorium on tailors; they're the birds we want to see tied up good and proper for a year anyhow. But first the moratorium on the weather. No more heat waves. We can do anything by passing a law. Write to your congressman today!

AN EIGHTY-NINE POUND Chicago woman is contesting a divorce decree won by her two hundred pound husband on the ground of cruelty. CABLES FROM PARIS say that pencil line eyebrows are out of style and the girls are ordered to have an eyebrow wide at the nose and tapering to a finer line at the end. "THERE IS no question," says E. Ernest Johnson in speaking of the fifty-two persons connected with the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ who have accepted "honoraria" from Deacon Bill Hays and the movie bosses, "of bribery or subsidy involved. It is a question of ethics." But, E. Ernest, we ask you, when only such nice, pleasant words as "honoraria," or in the singular "honorarium," should be mentioned, why drag in such low, uncouth words as "bribery" and "subsidy"? Really, E. Ernest, how could you? Deacon Hays will feel quite hurt.

A SAN FRANCISCO LAWYER commits suicide because of gossips. Which is our idea of zero in reasons for sending one's self due west. People who are annoyed by gossip mongers should inscribe on their flag the cheery old motto, "They Say, They Say! Well, Let Them Say!" and keep it flying at the masthead.

SUICIDE is no answer to gossips. That doesn't hurt their feelings a bit; it just tickles 'em pink. The real way to discourage a gossiper is to hit him a biff on the snoot. Or if the gossip is anonymous, and most gossip is anonymous, for gossipers are a cowardly crew, then don't notice it. Nothing makes a gossiper quite so sick as not to be noticed.

UNDER TREATMENT

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1915.

CHICAGO. — The allied building construction and material interests at a meeting last evening decided to put their general shutdown into full effect, beginning tomorrow. This means that all building construction by big contractors and all allied industries, including lumber yards, limestone and cement works, brick yards, planing mills, and material plants, will be closed until a complete settlement is reached with organized labor in the building industry. The order to shut down, it is estimated, will throw more than 200,000 men out of work.

CHICAGO.—The "tip trust" dies at midnight. Gov. Dunne signed the anti-tip bill last evening and at 11:01 o'clock tomorrow morning the dimes and quarters passed into hotel and restaurant checkrooms will stop tinkling into the treasure boxes of the padrones. It will then be against the law for the "house" to take tips collected by employés.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Democratic leaders have received definite information that William Jennings Bryan intends to exert his influence to defeat the renomination of President Wilson. The opposition of the former secretary of state will be based not upon the administration's foreign policy but on the single term declaration in the Democratic platform adopted at Baltimore, to which, the Commoner will contend, Mr. Wilson is committed in principle.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1901.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—The steamer Mohawk, owned by John H. Starin and used by him in carrying excursionists to Glen island, struck a rock just off New Rochelle with 900 passengers on board, and sank in less than twenty minutes. It is believed all the passengers escaped, although a few are not yet accounted for.

BERLIN.—French flags are flying in Berlin and cheers for France are sounding from German throats for the first time in half a century. Frenchmen and Germans are clinking glasses, German bands are playing the "Marseillaise" in Unter den Linden and French tongues are trying to master the intricacies of "Hoch der Kaiser." All this is because the great automobile race between Paris and Berlin ended today. It was won by M. Fournier.

CHICAGO. — Automobile "scorching"—not at an immoderate speed but about twice the pace now permitted by city ordinance — probably will be allowed to Chicago automobilists. The Chicago Automobile club took Mayor Harrison and members of the city council out for a spin and persuaded them that an automobile in general is perfectly safe. After the ride the mayor said that eight miles an hour is too slow, and that except in the business streets he was willing to make the limit twelve and even allow drivers to hit it up to fifteen.

JUNE 30, 1881.

CHICAGO.—Chicago surrendered yesterday to the tuneful hordes of its invaders and "gemuethlichkeit" on a universal scale characterized the opening of the great biennial musical festival—the Sängerfest—and the scenes attendant upon its successful inauguration. From almost early dawn until night fell the streets were given up to marching bands of white hatted and dark coated members of "bunds" and "chors" from almost every conceivable locality. The street decorations were profuse. The opening exercises were in the Exhibition building with between 6,000 and 8,000 persons present.

CHICAGO.—The new city directory, compiled by Thomas Hutchinson, will be issued in a few days. According to the book, the estimated increase in population since last year is 37,406, which would give Chicago an approximate total of 540,711 inhabitants. The volume contains 183,292 names.

CHICAGO.—John Griscom continues his wonderful feat of abstaining from food. At noon yesterday he had completed his thirty-third day of fasting, leaving twelve more to go before the end of the period originally fixed upon is reached. His total loss in weight so far is 36¾ pounds.

FROM A FOREST PRESERVE TENANT.

Chicago, June 26.—After reading your article on tenants in the forest preserves I wish you would permit me to answer the last line in your article, "No explanation was given for the low rentals."

Through ill health and financial reverses I was compelled to seek better air and cheaper quarters. I applied to the forest preserves. The management referred me to an abandoned farmhouse, 20 miles from the loop, just such a ramshackle, dilapidated place as you will find all over Cook county, going to decay. There was neither gas, water, sewer, nor toilet and the only way we can get to it is through the courtesy of a neighbor who allows us the use of his driveway, and that goes to the back door only. The roof leaked so badly that when it rained we used pails, tubs, and pans to prevent the water coming through to the first floor until I could fix it. The yard was littered with tin cans, bottles, abandoned farm implements, and the weeds were five feet high. The place had not been painted for fifteen years. It is two miles from a railroad depot. The only means of lighting was kerosene lamps and candles. The only equipment was for stove heat. When we want to take a bath we go nearly a city block to our neighbor's well, carry several buckets of water and take our bath in a nice new washtub alongside a smoky oil stove.

Under the foregoing conditions would you consider these nominal rents as low? The average renter of Chicago would not accept them rent free. I not only accepted them but I owe the forest preserve management a debt of gratitude, because I have not known a sick day since I moved out there. Some people might infer that there was graft in connection with these apparently low rentals. Don't you believe it. I have never met any of the people mentioned in your article, would not know one of them if I met him and have never heard of any transactions other than paying my rent. Give these men the credit they deserve.

A FOREST PRESERVE TENANT.

MEAT IS CHEAP, BUT—

Chicago, June 19.—When the meat packers stress the idea that "meat is cheap" they are apparently not reaching one of the most important purveyors of their products, and that is the restaurants. In looking over the average menu you will find practically no reductions as compared with last year. The restaurant in Lincoln park has the same prices to the penny that they have had for years, and it's mighty hard on men who take their families there.

A. H. WOODS.

PROHIBITION IN INDIANA.

Plymouth, Ind., June 20.—In Indiana the Supreme court declared the state prohibition law of 1855 unconstitutional, but that was before the 18th amendment. Since then, of course, they have changed their attitude. The decision in that case reported in Vol. 8 Ind. Supreme court reports on page 545, the case being Herman vs. the State, is mighty interesting reading, and I suggest you read the sound reasoning of Judge Perkins in declaring that law of 1855 invalid.

LEE M. LAUER.

LOWDOWN ON ALABAMA.

Montgomery, Ala., June 24.—Again I rise to the defense of Alabama—"unlovely Alabama" if you please. This time it is to refute the claim of Mr. W. S. Grieve of Chicago that it is unlawful to own a deck of playing cards or to be found playing a game of old maid.

I am informed by Thomas H. Knight Jr., attorney general of Alabama, that there are no such statutes in Alabama. Playing cards can be purchased in Alabama at 'most any corner drug store in the larger cities. A heavy license tax makes the sale of cards in the smaller communities almost prohibitive, but there is no law against them.

As for old maid—who plays it anyway? However, there is no law against it or any other game. Alabama law does bar the playing of cards in public places, but that is beside the point.

It is true we bar near beer; it is true we electrocute whites for murder and Negroes for rape; it is true we are slow. But don't libel us. TRAVIS K. HENDRIX.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS.

Chicago, June 24.—Not only is school extravagance incredible in our public schools but right now is the time for parents to express their views on the waste of time given to show work.

Assemblies may be beneficial in the schools once or twice a year, but the constant dress up or costume parade is getting to be a bore to parents. All of our children cannot be actors or actresses; neither can they be public speakers.

My child in fifth grade cannot read a verse in his Sunday school lesson and is ashamed to go to church, yet he is a product of this modern education and has an excellent record.

There are many of us who would like to see less show work and some real teaching. INTERESTED PARENT.

RENTS.

Chicago, June 26.—In this morning's issue I read with much interest the statements of the several real estate agents concerning the reduction of rents. At this time when rents have already been reduced I believe that these gentlemen should have given thought that this will be misinterpreted by some of the prospective tenants for fall or renewal leases. They should have considered the moral effect it will have on the public in general as regards real estate values. I thought they should at the same time have made mention of the increased taxes and other upkeep costs for buildings. ERNEST COOK.

TO SAVE SCHOOL MONEY.

Chicago, June 23.—Here is one surefire way the board could save expense: Eliminate the substitute center. This office is utterly superfluous as most principals have a list of subs whom they call direct from the school.

The center is supposed to distribute the work evenly and fairly among the substitutes, but unfortunate indeed is the girl who must depend on the center for a day's work. If her name is not on the preferred list she is just out of luck, and calling the center only nets her disagreeable and sarcastic remarks from the clerks in charge.

FARM BOARD IS COLD TO HOOVER HINT ON WHEAT

"It's Our Affair," Says Chairman Stone.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—The farm board will answer President Hoover's suggestion that it take a definite stand with regard to its wheat holdings by the announcement of a decision on July 1, Chairman James C. Stone replied today.

Furthermore, he said, in whatever decision that is made, the board alone is responsible for what it does or does not do, and under the law "is not amenable to the President or to the United States or to any one else."

JAMES C. STONE. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Observers have read into the fact that the board did not immediately reply to the President's suggestion a reluctance to tie itself up with a promise not to dispose of its wheat holdings, estimated at between 225 and 275 million bushels. This opinion was strengthened today when Mr. Stone admitted that many millers are opposed to such an action by the board.

Wheat May Be Needed.

"The millers will probably need most of the board's hard wheat holdings before the 1931 hard wheat begins to come in August," Mr. Stone explained at today's press conference. He stated further that for the board to commit itself to hold its wheat would tend to reduce wheat exports from this country.

"Isn't your present policy elastic enough to meet an economic emergency?" Mr. Stone was asked.

"We thought so," was his reply.

To an inquiry concerning a rumor that he would resign, Mr. Stone replied that he had never resigned any job while in a difficult position.

"And certainly the world is in the most difficult position in its history," he said. "To my mind the chief trouble is a lack of confidence. Our job is to help restore that."

It is expected, he said, that the board will be held responsible not only for what it did but for everybody's reaction to what it did. The board, he declared, was blamed for every unfavorable phase of the whole agricultural situation.

Trouble World-Wide.

"The truth is that every country has an agricultural problem," he declared. "Because of varying governmental regulations in Germany, for example, people are buying wheat from hand to mouth. That affects our problem. The board has not dumped wheat abroad and it has maintained a domestic price above the world market.

"Our holdings are paid for, cash and will keep in good storage for from three to five years, if necessary. It is not fair to blame the board for the whole state of agricultural depression."

Curtis Has a Plan.

Topeka, Kan., June 29.—(AP)—Vice President Charles Curtis has urged the federal farm board to withhold its grain stabilization corporation's wheat holdings from the market until its price advances to from 85 cents to $1 a bushel at Chicago.

Curtis said today he had forwarded his suggestions to the farm board and to President Hoover after a visit into north central Kansas and after receiving "hundreds of letters" from wheat growers and others in southwestern Kansas.

BATES $2,500; IS SLUGGED.

Jack Bates, superintendent of the Chicago Coal company, 7400 South Ada street, saved $2,500 belonging to the firm from a pair of bandits yesterday, but one of the robbers slugged him for refusing to add the contribution to the safe. They took $1,000 from the cash register.

OPENING SHOT IS FIRED IN DEFENSE OF FARM BOARD

Marketing Act Boosted at Conference Here.

American farmers have been able to add "many millions of dollars" to their income, in a year of adverse conditions, because of the efforts of the federal farm board, acting under the provisions of the agricultural marketing act.

This declaration was contained in a resolution adopted by the national conference of farm leaders representing nearly half of all farm producers in the nation, which met here yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. It was said to be the opening shot in a battle to be waged by organized agriculture in defense of the farm board, and against opposition to its activities and policies.

Urged to Mobilize.

"In view of the continued opposition of those groups and individuals who in the past have exploited agriculture to their own profit and advantage," the resolution said, "it is urged that each farm organization participating in the conference mobilize all of its power to properly inform the people of the merits of the agricultural marketing act and to insist that the act be retained."

The conference named a committee composed of Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation; L. J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, and C. O. Moser, vice president of the American Cotton Coöperative association, to carry out plans for rallying all organized agriculture behind its campaign.

Roused by Opposition.

Speakers at the opening of the conference emphasized that they were activated by opposition which has developed to the activities of the federal farm board. They also expressed concern that coöperative marketing might not become general "due to lack of understanding of the benefits of the agricultural marketing act."

CRASH WILL END ATHLETICS FOR BETTY ROBINSON

Betty Robinson, Olympic track star, who was critically injured Sunday in an airplane accident, will probably never be able to run another race. Dr. Jacob J. Minke, physician at the Oak Forest infirmary, after an X-ray examination yesterday, gave the following explanation of her injuries.

"The thigh bone is fractured in several places between the knee and the hip and when it heals it will probably be a little shorter than the other leg. It will be months before she is able to walk again. She has a fractured left arm and internal injuries which may be more serious than is yet apparent."

Miss Robinson was allowed to see only her mother, Mrs. Harry Robinson. Her father and her sister, Mrs. Jean Rochfort, and Bert Riel, Northwestern university athlete, were at the hospital most of the day. Wilson Palmer, Miss Robinson's cousin, was still in a critical condition at the Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey, yesterday. Palmer, a novice pilot, was at the controls of an ancient plane in which the two were riding.

LABOR AGENCIES FIND IT HARD TO FILL FARM JOBS

Unemployed "Choosy" or Not Skilled Enough.

Labor agencies reported yesterday that they are having more demand for skilled farm workers than they can readily meet. This is not because the supply is less than the demand, they stated, but is due to a complication of new factors in the farming situation plus the spurt occasioned by the harvest of seasonal products—vegetables and fruits.

In addition, the head of one agency said, there is a tendency on the part of some of the unemployed to be "choosy" in the matter of work. He cited as an example that upon Saturday he had an order from a canning factory not far from Chicago for 100 men to harvest the pea crop for packing and could get but ten.

Want Former Farm Hands.

Four agency heads united in the assertion that the difficulty in filling farm jobs is due in part to the insistence by the farmers that no one but former "hired hands" be sent to them. "They have no use for a carpenter or drug store clerk out of work," said A. A. Johnson, head of the concern at 102 South Canal street which bears his name. "If we shipped just any one to them he would be back on our hands in short order."

Yesterday he had calls for fifteen farm workers, Johnson said, and when his office had disposed of the long list of men wanting work late in the afternoon, six of these jobs were still unfilled. "Tomorrow," he said, "we will be able to fill these quickly, I believe, but there aren't so many men coming here who can harness a horse correctly and plow a straight furrow, or put up hay as it should be done."

During the day Johnson placed about 100 men in various positions. Normally he would place 150 or 200. There have been days in his 30 years experience as a labor agent when he found jobs for 1,000 men.

Want Men to Milk Cows.

At Joyce Brothers agency, 540 West Madison street, a sign in the window asked for skilled farm hands who could milk a cow. There or four jobs are open, it was said inside, and had been for some hours.

The Erie Employment agency, 514½ South Jefferson street, reported it had had no examples of men being particular of the kind of work they would do, but this has not been the experience of R. M. Diamond, manager of the Northwestern Labor agency, 625 West Madison street.

"We have been in this business for twenty-five years and there has never been a time when men have been so 'choosy' in their job tastes," he said. "The white collar worker must know a great deal about a position before he will take it. We have had many instances when they have quit their jobs for some petty reason after they have been fed for a few days."

There were six farm jobs open at Diamond's agency at the close of business yesterday, but, like Johnson, he feels he will fill them early today.

From downstate came reports that a number of old time field hands in the purely rural districts are not working this year because the farmer's sons and daughters, who have been in the cities, are now home, out of work, and are filling these places.

John Keane, superintendent of the six free employment offices maintained in Chicago by the Illinois Department of Labor, does not believe men are particular about the kind of jobs they do, unless they are family men. "It may be," he said, "that men with wives and children do not like to leave Chicago until they are forced to do so, but my experience is that when they feel the real pinch they will go anywhere at almost any money."

Overjoyed to Get Jobs.

Since April 1, when spring plowing and the truck farming and fruit raising began to open work, his office has found jobs for 85 men, Keane said, and these were overjoyed to find something to do.

Tony Blasi, inspector for the division of private employment agencies in the state department of labor, had a different story however. "I believe that as many as 75 per cent of those who quit new jobs do so for some petty reason," he said.

U. S. JUDGE REBUKES A DRY FOR HOLDING ALLEGED RUM TRUCK

Newark, N. J., June 29.—(AP)—Federal Judge Guy L. Fake today rebuked Deputy Prohibition Administrator Lewis J. Tutt and told him he had violated the Volstead act by his refusal to free trucks under bond.

The court said, "By your attitude you are setting up an imperialistic form of government and acting contrary to the Volstead act, which you are sworn to uphold."

The deputy administrator gave as his reason for refusing to release two trucks under bond the alleged fact that one of them previously had been seized and the other twice before seized.

One of the provisions of the Volstead act specifies that seized trucks, alleged to be transporting intoxicating liquors, must be released under bond until it is proved they were actually engaged in the practice charged by the government, it was pointed out.

Tobaccos like these require no parching

What good would it do to wrap Camel cigarettes in moisture-proof Cellophane if all of the natural moisture had been parched out beforehand?

Parching, as you probably know, is a high heat process sometimes used in an attempt to reduce the burn and bite of harsh strong tobaccos.

Camels, on the other hand, are a blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos that are so ripe, mild and cool they need no artificial treatment.

We use the Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane to preserve every vestige of that original flavor. It prevents the loss of natural moisture by evaporation, keeping Camels factory-fresh wherever you buy them.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, switch over to this brand for one whole day. After you have learned how cool and mild they are, how flavorful and fresh, go back to your old brand—if you can.

SPAIN'S ELECTION KEEPS ALFONSO IN KING SCRAP HEAP

Lerroux Looms as New Premier of Republic.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 29.—Spain has put on the brakes. Latest returns in the constituent assembly elections yesterday, which were to bring the Spanish revolution into the stage of political realities with parliament due to convene on July 14, indicate a triumph for the so-called "radical," but in fact relatively moderate, following of Alejandro Lerroux, old line republican chief and present foreign minister. The monarchists won only five seats thus far and the communists none.

ALCALA ZAMORA.

The Heraldo of Madrid tonight suggests that the government should telegraph Alfonso that his status as an ex-king is fully settled.

Vote Clarifies Situation.

With the constituent cortes two weeks off, the Spanish political situation has been clarified by the election to a degree undreamed of by anybody.

While it seemed on the eve of the national voting bee that there would be a confused multiplicity of parties with ill defined ambitions, there turned out to be in reality only four, and may soon be only three. The minority, which is small, is also widely divided.

The social horizon is not clear, with the powerful syndicalist group and an energetic handful of communists doing their best to set fire to the powder magazine that is south Spain. General strikes have been declared in both Malaga and Granada, and martial law has been clamped down as a poultice. Guns barked in both towns and tonight in Malaga there are four dead and 36 wounded, and at Granada six wounded. They are all rioters who braved the deadly Mausers of the nervous soldiers and civil guards. Ten were killed in election day disturbances.

Socialists Get 130 Seats.

Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, tonight said that although the returns are still incomplete, the Socialists will occupy about 130 seats. After them comes Alajando Lerroux and his "radicals," with an estimated 100 seats. For parliamentary purposes 30 or 32 followers of Manuel Azana, minister of war, who call themselves the Republican Action party, must be considered with Lerroux, who is generally slated for premier. Next comes the "liberal" right of Alcala Zamora and Maura, with about 30 seats.

Radicals Given 70 Seats.

Between this potential conservative bloc and the Socialists are the radical Socialists, who seem to have won only about 70 seats. That means only 90 seats for the Catalans, Basque Nationalists, and other minority parties. Not a single Communist got in.

Alcala Zamora now seems assured of the presidency of the republic, to ease the heartburn of his party's partial collapse. The Socialists are asking the presidency of the cortes for Julian Besteiro, former president of the party.

SECRETARY WILBUR AS SURGEON SAVES LIFE OF MOUNTAIN HOST

While escorting Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur through Mesa Verde National park yesterday, Delerchman became ill. He was taken to the park hospital, where his illness was diagnosed as acute appendicitus.

Delerchman's condition today was said to be very good. Dr. Johnson said the ruptured appendix would have caused death had the operation been delayed.

FATHER OF GIRL POISON VICTIMS UNHURT IN CRASH

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—John W. Simmons, father of Alice Jean and Virginia Simmons, the two girls who died a week ago Sunday from poisoned sandwiches served at a family reunion at Lebanon, escaped injury here today when his automobile was struck by an interurban car in a suburb.

Simmons, who was not hurt, was on the way to Lebanon, where Mrs. Simmons is being detained for the avowed purpose of seeking an indictment against her charging her with fatally poisoning her daughters. Ben M. Scifres, prosecutor of Boone county, announced today that he will ask that a grand jury be called at once.

Further investigation into the deaths awaits the return here of Judge John W. Hornaday of Circuit court, who is expected home Tuesday.

New Non-Laxative Method Drives Body Poisons From Blood

Nervous Disorders... Complexion Troubles... Among 29 Common Ailments Traced to Blood-Borne Acid Wastes

Millions Try to Eliminate Body Poisons the Wrong Way

PEOPLE who have suffered from nervous disorders—who have seen vitality and good looks disappear—are now jubilant over a new medical discovery. Doctors tell us that 29 serious common chronic ailments, as well as such afflictions as muddy skin, nerve tension, and constant fatigue, are caused by body poisons which have not been properly eliminated. This is known to millions—but the additional fact which doctors now reveal is known only to a few: That the poisons which are directly responsible for the actual illness, for the muddy skin, etc., are actually in the blood. There is no way to eliminate them except through the kidneys. The millions who try to drive these poisons from the body through other methods find it impossible to get lasting relief.

Victims of these poison wastes, under the advice of their doctors, have, however, found a method which brings back clear complexions, steadier nerves, and a new sense of well-being and vibrant health. Even victims of such serious disorders as diabetes, arthritis, neuritis, high blood-pressure and rheumatism report amazing results as this new treatment drives the poison wastes out of the blood.

This discovery is a totally different kind of mineral water, known as Sleepy Water. It is found only in two springs, located near Hot Springs, Arkansas. Peculiar natural processes here, which are not fully understood, cause Sleepy Water to have a content of balanced minerals which is unlike that of any other water known. This alkaline mineral content is exceptionally efficient in neutralizing the poisonous acid wastes, in the first place. In the second place it produces a mildly soothing, activating effect on the kidneys—increases their capacity for extracting and carrying out the blood-borne poisons.

So quickly and gently does Sleepy Water produce results that you can now make a wonderful test of it. This test will show you in thirty minutes how Sleepy Water carries off poisons and purifies the blood. Just tear out and mail the coupon and find out how you can make this test, or phone Chewaukia Mineral Springs Company, Kedzie 1228, at 3330 West Jackson Boulevard.

I DON'T EXACTLY FOLLOW YOU, MR. OBLONG.
WELL SUPPOSE THE ACTUAL VALUE OF YOUR TRACT IS SEVEN MILLIONS. WE WOULD INCORPORATE FOR TWENTY MILLIONS, PUT THE TRACT IN AT ELEVEN MILLIONS, RAISE THE OTHER NINE MILLIONS CASH BY SELLING STOCK. YOU WOULD MAKE FOUR MILLIONS RIGHT THERE AND STILL OWN MORE THAN HALF THE STOCK, A CONTROLLING INTEREST.
YOU TALK IN BIG FIGURES. IT SEEMS TO ME THAT TO PUT THE TRACT IN AT ELEVEN MILLIONS WHEN IT IS WORTH SEVEN IS WATERING THE STOCK CONSIDERABLY.
DO YOU REALIZE, MR. WALLET THAT IF THIS WAS A STOCK JOBBING PROPOSITION THE TRACT WOULD BE VALUED AT TWENTY MILLIONS AND FIFTY MILLIONS IN STOCK SOLD? MY ENGLISH CLIENTS ARE HARD HEADED SUBSTANTIAL MEN AND THIS IS A CONSERVATIVE PROPOSITION.
NOT ONLY THAT, BUT COMPETENT OPERATION WOULD PRODUCE ENORMOUS DNIDENDS ON YOUR ELEVEN MILLIONS AND DOUBLE AND TREBLE THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTIES AND OF YOUR STOCK.

Heredity Plays Its Grim Role in This Story

'Dwarf's Blood' Well Told Novel of Britain.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

EDITH OLIVIER, who wrote "The Love Child," "As Far as Jane's Grandmother's," and "The Triumphant Footman," is the author of "Dwarf's Blood," Literary Guild choice for July. The book is published today by the Viking Press.

MISS OLIVIER.

Miss Olivier says she prefers the lyric form for the novel, "for the lyric form isolates the symbolic element in life. It need not tell us everything, because it is all." Her prose has a delicacy and beauty about it that at times approaches poetry. It is almost restrained and, perhaps, on a slightly removed from the hurly-burly world in which most of us live and work. It has a strongly imaginative quality that sets it apart. It is positive, fine, artistic.

The descriptive passages in "Dwarf's Blood" are among the most memorable in the narrative. The author can sketch a scene indelibly on the mind of the reader. Nicholas, the English estate ready to fall from ruin by young Nicholas Darby, is pictured with great vividness and beauty by the author, who obviously loves the English countryside. So, also, is the spot in the Cornish hills, later brought into the story, and the odd and amusing little people in Cornwall where lives Miss Darby, a retired governess with a penchant for collecting assorted objects and animals.

The novel concerns itself with Nicholas, who comes from Australia to claim his inherited estate in England and with his wife, Alethea, a lovely, appealing woman whom life has given a bad break. How was she to know that there was dwarf's blood in her husband's family and that her unborn child would be born a pigmy never grow to normal stature? That her husband's childhood, filled with agonizing experiences, left a stamp on the man that time, itself, could not eradicate and that would be misery to her and to him? The theme of this story, the birth of a child in an English family of pride and position, is a most unusual one, and that perhaps only Edith Olivier would think of and which she handles with consummate skill. It would seem to be weird and difficult a theme to be made craftsman.

Little Hans is not in any way deformed. His body is perfectly made although he is a dwarf. His mother adores him, but to his father he is a ghastly reminder of his own miserable boyhood and of his dwarf mother who constantly reminded him that though he had escaped her small stature he had her tainted blood and was dependent on her for the wealth he enjoyed. Nicholas never tells his wife of this woman, never explains why his son is a pigmy.

But, one day, when Hans still is a baby, Alethea comes home to a terrible scene. She finds her tall, stalwart husband raging at a strange creature with the stunted body of a woman and the mind of a vixen. This person, his mother, so infuriates him with her taunts about his child that Nicholas cries, "Out of this house, and take the child with you. Yours is the dwarf's blood. You can take the dwarf away with you."

Alethea, driven distracted, runs to the nursery, catches up the boy, and escapes with him. Her flight to Germany, to the home of a beloved German aunt, is vividly described. The peaceful hill country shelters her and little Hans for a time, but in the end she realizes that she must go back to Brokeyates and help her husband in his strange, twisted fight with life. She is torn between her love for him and her love for her dwarf son.

The rest of the story, with its background of changes and the world war, and with the continuing theme of Hans must not be told for fear of destroying the element of surprise for the reader.

The normal sister of little Hans, Portia, who takes great pride in calling every one's attention to her height and who taunts her mystified brother continually, is a most disagreeable child.

REMARQUE WAR MOVIE OPEN TO GERMANS AT BERLIN THEATERS

BERLIN, June 29.—(AP)—Erich Maria Remarque's motion picture, "All Quiet on the Western Front," which last winter led to National-Socialist demonstrations with the release of smoke bombs and mice in the theaters, is now being exhibited to packed houses in two of Berlin's largest theaters.

Many persons wishing to see the performance have found little difficulty in obtaining tickets.

Good Morning!

I'm not in cahoots with the theater owners, but I'm trying to be in cahoots with you. I don't see WHY you don't take the children and go see a show in one of our heavenly cool movie houses! The blessed relief of stepping into one is worth double the price of tickets for the whole family. And, funny thing!—when you come out you're so thoroughly cooled off that the heat feels good.

Don't take my word for it. Just try it. I wouldn't swap jobs with anybody these days!

If the advice appeals to you, you might go over and see "Sweepstakes" at the State-Lake. Its one of the cleanest, most interesting and appealing program pictures that's graced our screens for many a day.

A racing story, it sings of the adventures of a gallant little jockey called the "Whooptedoo Kid." He's called that because he chants to his mount instead of using a whip.

A frameup, by an unprincipled race horse and cafe owner, places Buddy Doyle in a sad predicament. The picture must tell you the story from here on.

Eddie Quillan does some real acting! He gives an honest and sympathetic portrayal of Buddy and has you with him all the way. James Gleason [sometimes I think he's my favorite actor] is inimitable as the Kid's trainer. You'll find Marion Nixon adorable as the girl in the case. Lew Cody is sleekly expert as the villain. Supporting players are satisfactory. The director knew his job and was on it every minute.

THE STAGE

GREGORY RATOFF returned to Chicago yesterday, eager to deny reports that he has abandoned his plan to stage a revue here. He took solemn oath that Ratoff's Revue will become a reality.

But he begs to be excused from the risks of producing a theatrical entertainment under tropical weather conditions. He has postponed the date of the premiere until late in August or early in September. Edward Blatt, who was the impresario of "Subway Express," and Ralph T. Kettering, manager of the Adelphi theater and occasional producer of plays, will be associated with Mr. Ratoff in this venture.

Ted Fiorito has completed the score, and Gus Kahn has fulfilled his assignment to write the "book" and lyrics. A Russian baritone named Adja Kouznetzoff, who looks like Primo Carnera and sings like Chaliapin, says Mr. Ratoff, will be among the entertainers.

Dispatches from London announce that George Bernard Shaw is now furiously at work on a new play. Its title will be "Too Good to Be True," and it will deal with the war's aftermath. . . . Also that "Five Star Final" has begun a London engagement under the title of "Late Night Final," with Carol Goodner, the beauty who appeared with Grace George in "The First Mrs. Fraser," as a member of the cast. . . . And likewise that King George and Queen Mary have chosen Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton" for a command performance at Holyrood palace in July.

"Fine and Dandy" will end its engagement at the Erlanger theater next Saturday night. Joe Cook will pack up his gadgets and "stooges" for the summer, looking forward to a reopening in Philadelphia early in October. The show's record for the season, when the last curtain falls, will be 353 performances and 45 weeks.

Zamah Cunningham, of the "Apron Strings" company, at the Playhouse, will soon depart on a leave of absence, and will be replaced by Charlotte De Angelis, wife of the veteran comedian who leads the cast. The odd point in this arrangement is that it will mark the first time that Mrs. De Angelis has appeared on the same stage with Jefferson since they met in a "Mikado" company, years and years ago.

Chester Erskin, who staged "He" for the Theater Guild and is now associated with the Erlanger group, has returned from Europe with several play manuscripts of British and French authorship in his trunk. Moreover, he has secured an option on the American rights to all plays written in the next five years by Alfred Savoir, author of "He." Erskin's first production for the Erlanger estate will probably be "Bull Market," a drama of the New York Stock exchange, written by Arnold Bernhard.

"Paid Companions" and "The Wooden Soldier" were withdrawn from the Broadway stage last Saturday night.

Cornelia Otis Skinner has been giving her programs of character sketches in London in competition with that eminent practitioner of the art, Ruth Draper. She caught British attention by devoting one of her matinees to the impersonation of the six wives of Henry VIII. C. C.

MOVIE CLOSEUP

I would like to call your attention to the fact that the Paulist choir is singing at the Palace theater this week. This is the first time the seventy-five angel-voiced boys have ever sung in a theater. Under the direction of the Rev. Eugene O'Malley, C. S. Population of Erin at Last Getting Larger Tendency of Centuries Is Checked, It's Reported.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 29.—The remarkable fact has just emerged from official Irish Free State figures that for the first time in nearly a hundred years, the fall in the population of the south of Ireland has been definitely arrested. An increase of 6,000 persons has occurred.

This is an event of more than ordinary importance, for the steady depopulation of this country has been one of the great grievances from which it has suffered. It always has been urged as the main crime of Great Britain that while that country ruled here, the population of Ireland continued to fall. Now it might reasonably be accounted for righteousness to the government of President Cosgrave that within ten years of their taking office, in a virtually independent Irish Free State, they are able to record an upturn tendency in the population figures.

Ever since the famine years of 1846-47 when the population of all Ireland was 8,000,000 persons, it had continued to fall steadily. In 1921 when the Free State was set up and northern Ireland entered on its own career, the figure for the whole country was barely half that number. At the present moment the population of the 26 counties known as the Free State is estimated at 2,952,000.

The fall, apart from the appalling losses of the famine years when the people died off in thousands, was, in the main, attributable to emigration.

While the hard word was always given to the British government for its so-called attempts to remove the entire population by emigrating the people to the ends of the earth, there are those who say that the British did Ireland thereby a real kindness. For Ireland, in their opinion, was not able to support such a large number of people.

The main cause of the fall of the Irish population was, of course, emigration.

The fact that the exodus no longer continues must not be attributed to any falling off in the desire to emigrate. This desire, grown of the experience of generations, still exists, but the fact that there are fewer going abroad is due entirely to world economics. The depression in all countries warns the intended emigrant rather to bear the ills he has than fly to others that he knows not than fly to others that he know not of.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 29.—[Special.]—It's easy to explain why the nickname "Heartbreak town" is locally applied to Hollywood.

Fred Datig, casting director for Paramount, which in the course of a year employs more extras than any other studio, has revealed that out of 17,451 extras registered here during 1930 "only one of this vast number made enough money to pay an income tax." She was a skilled woman extra whose weekly wage approximated $40. But she has an investment of more than $1,000 in wardrobe. Forty dollars a week isn't much of a top wage without considering the amount of an investment."

Figures gathered at the Central Casting offices, which control the hiring of 95 per cent of all extras, show that of all the extras registered, only $33 averaged more than one day's work every week in 1930. Of these $33, according to Manager Gus Demling of the Central bureau, "the pay scale was: 13¾ per cent received $5 a day; 26.56-100 per cent received $7.50 a day; 43.23-100 per cent received $10 a day, and 5½ per cent in excess of $10." The average daily wage for the year was $9.74, but whenever more than a minimum wage is paid an extra, it is for his ownership of special clothes, such as sport togs, costumes or evening wear."

In spite of the discouragement in those figures gathered by Datig and Demling, Henry Hobart, executive on the R. K. O. motion picture lot, says an informal survey of extras, recently completed at that lot, "indicates that forty per cent of them arrived in Hollywood within the last three to six months." According to Henley, only twenty per cent of those interviewed at the R. K. O. lot over extra jobs were from Los Angeles or California.

"It's astounding," he said, "how many boys and girls come long distance to try their luck. It is a fact that the chances of any inexperienced youth or girl crashing into the big money now are far less that they were two or three years ago. And they weren't very good even then."

Dr. Lewis Censures Excess Imagination.

San Francisco, Cal., June 29.—(AP)—Certain surgeons who have made "extravagant claims" regarding the cure of cancer were criticised today by Dr. Dean Lewis of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., at the convention of the American Surgical association.

"I would like to say that the imagination of certain doctors is strong when they claim to be able to effect cures in 90 per cent of cancer cases," Dr. Ward said. He mentioned no names. The subject of his address was "An Analysis of 1,000 Consecutive Cases of Cancer of the Breast."

Dr. Alexander Primrose of Toronto, president of the association, also discussed cancer and said specialists and experts all over the world were waging warfare on it. More than 150 prominent surgeons are attending the convention.

Dr. William James Mayo, Rochester, Minn., gave the keynote in an interview with newspapermen.

"To the doctor," he said, "the only thing that is important is tomorrow and what it may bring to the little sum of knowledge we have. Constantly, we are like men peering through a half open door, tantalized by what we can almost see. There is so much to learn and so little time to learn it."

"Right now," Dr. Mayo added, "we are on the verge of obtaining great knowledge of many things. One of these is on the energy our bodies generate. There is no reason why men of 50 or 60 years of age should die of heart failure.

"We should be able to stop that. Our members are the men who are thinking and planning new things, and our meetings a clearing house of information."

New Asthma Treatment.

Successful treatment of asthma by the use of artificial fever produced by electricity was announced by Dr. Samuel M. Feinberg yesterday at the Chicago Medical society's post graduate clinic at the county hospital.

Dr. Feinberg said his announcement was based on experiments extending over six months. He explained that more time would be required to determine the duration of the results. However, complete temporary relief has been obtained by the fever treatmnt, he said.

The treatment consists of raising the patient's temperature gradually to 106 degrees by means of electrical applications.

Citizens Raise $25,000 for Concert Series

Band to Play Near the Buckingham Fountain.

The efforts of Mayor Cermak to obtain support for a series of band concerts in Grant park met with success yesterday. At a meeting in his office, the commission appointed by him to raise funds agreed to underwrite $25,000 of the cost. Announcement had been made earlier that with that amount assured the concerts could be started.

A site for a band shell has been provided by the south park commissioners south of Buckingham fountain and north of the Field museum. George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, said the band shell can be completed within three weeks.

Entire cost of the proposed forty concerts, four evenings a week between 8 and 10 o'clock, during ten weeks, has been estimated at $35,000. Besides the $25,000 underwritten by the commission, announcement was made that $10,000 more has been pledged and another $10,000 "is in sight."

The Chicago Band Concert association, sponsoring the plan, has a 70 piece band rehearsing now under the leadership of Victor J. Grabel. Among the members of the mayor's commission who attended the meeting were Rufus C. Dawes, Robert F. Carr, Oscar Mayer, Leon V. Becker, Charles C. Youngreen, Clyde H. DeAcres, William M. Cahn, Col. A. A. Sprague, Corporation Counsel Sexton, and Mr. Donoghue. Several other members sent representatives.

How Zion Groups Stand as Convention Opens in Switzerland

BASLE, June 29.—(AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said today the 258 delegates to the 17th Zionist congress, which opens tomorrow were attempting to establish coalitions pledged for or against Dr. Chaim Weismann, whose leadership and policies were bound up with all the problems facing the congress.

Of the delegates the general Zionists or Centrists have 87; the Laborites, 80; the Revisionists, 50; the Mizrachi or Orthodox Zionists, 34; and the Radicals, 7.

The General Zionists were reported sharply divided on the question of Dr. Weitzmann's leadership. A majority of their 87 delegates, including most of the Americans of the present administration, known as the Brandeis group, were seeking a coalition of all parties, including the Revisionists, the opposition to the Weizmann régime, but eliminating Dr. Weismann and his supporters.

How to enable the General Zionists to present a united front was considered at a meeting of the American delegation in which the Weizmannists and Brandeisists participated.

Larchmont, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—The elopement of 20 year old Clarence Busch, son of C. M. Busch, wealthy Florida realtor, with Arita Jensen, 15 year old daughter of a garage man, has resulted in charges of kidnaping against the young husband. The bridegroom's father and mother, however, have approved of the marriage.

STUDENTS TELL PROFS HOW COLLEGES CAN BE BETTER CONDUCTED

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—(AP)—Twenty thousand national educators opened today the fifty-sixth National Education association convention.

Speaking on "What I Would Do If I Were a College President," Herschel G. Langdon, a student of the University of Iowa, told the educators he would place less emphasis on administration and more on teaching.

"Too many professors," he said, "are concerned not with what should be done, but with what, under the circumstances, may be done. It is not that they feel the hand of control; it is rather that they unconsciously fear to step beyond a certain line, lest they meet the censure of high authority."

Virginia Potter, president of the senior class of 1931, Goucher college, Baltimore, Md., spoke on "My Ideal Curriculum." She said ample opportunity should be given students in junior and senior years for concentration in a chosen field.

For a liberal arts college, she said, the aim should be a preparation for social life in a community; stimulating intellectual diversity; introducing a student to his capacities.

School today is not a preparation for life, Lawrence Horton, of the Central High school, Memphis, Tenn., said—it is life itself. "Probably no expression in education has brought about such a wrong attitude as the word 'commencement.'" he said. "How can one begin to live well on commencement day if he has not lived well before the day arrives?"

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, young daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, is kidnaped and held for ransom. Iris has been separated for years from her dissolute husband, Marcel. They are enemies and the possible heirs of their tyrannical aunt, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou. Iris planned to divorce Marcel and marry Mal. Alan Charnwood. After a long and dangerous search Charnwood and his friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, find out that it was Clare's father who instigated the kidnaping, with a pair of criminals, Yetta and Pietro, the actual abductors, the motive being the monetary reward. Alan and Tommy engage in a battle with Marcel and his partners in crime in a deserted quarry near their hideout just as they are about to do away with a boy known as the half witted son of the couple to prevent his disclosing information detrimental to them.

INSTALLMENT LXII.

A DEATH AND A RESCUE.

Charnwood, too dazed to react quickly, stared in utter blankness after his disappearing companion. No good—the car was gone. He heard cries and a sequence of shots, but in a few seconds the crunching of tires had died to silence beyond the confines of the quarry. Obviously two of the three had made a bolt for liberty.

With a feeling of bitter frustration he pocketed his weapon and prepared to leave the scene, but scarcely had he set foot in the open when a terrific explosion came from the rear. He halted and turned towards the cliff and as he did so more bullets rattled round him and a hot pain seared his right shoulder.

In a flash he knew the truth. De Bertincourt had not helped the woman to escape. He was here, at close angle, watching his opportunity to pick off his enemies one at a time. An ambush—but where?

Scanning the base of the precipice near at hand he found the answer—a pale smoke cloud hovering round the upper corner of the very bowlder he had recently examined. As it drifted aloft, an inky disc showed itself for the fraction of a second and, swift as thought, slipped back again. At the strange apparition his heart stood still. What did it mean? Then he realised. It was the hidden man's face covered by his beret, used as a mask.

So De Bertincourt has been there all the time, crouched in an unsuspected hollow behind the rock! Moreover, this action of his revealed the fact that he still desperately hoped he had not been recognized. In other words, he was determined to wipe out the only persons who could testify against him; but meanwhile, in case they eluded him, meant to shield himself from identification.

With these ideas crowding into his mind, Charnwood moved quickly. Foot by foot he advanced towards the rock, eyes strained to catch sight of the mask when it should reappear. Soon he was deep in the muddy water, which sucked and dragged at his trousers, but hampered though he was, he kept going, doggedly, determined that nothing should stay him now. On the far side of the cabin he could hear Tommy swearing in a sort of astounded rage, but he felt neither curiosity nor the desire to call for help. The job was his; he would see it through alone. . . .

Up to his middle now, he took care to keep his revolver above the pool. His injured shoulder would probably impede his aim, but he must chance that. Blood ran down from his cut forehead and lodged upon his outthrust lip. He could taste the salt of it. . . . Why was De Bertincourt holding back? Had he only a single shot left which he dared not waste? The continued silence was uncanny. . . .

Two yards—three. . . . He was close, so close he could see the slime upon the rock, the clump of dead fern that had sprouted from a crevice. If he could only cover the remaining six feet in safety and make a lunge round to the side. . . .

Splash! His foot plunged into a hole. He strove to right himself, slid, and sank deeper. At that precise moment a trio of shots rang out in rapid succession. By a miracle he was unharmed, although his very hair seemed scorched.

A figure plowed past him, shouting, "That's done it! Quick, let's see the damage!"

It was Tommy. Charnwood clutched at him warningly.

"Stay where you are! Don't be a fool; he'll get you!"

But Tommy, already shinning up the bowlder, cried back in scorn, "Get me? I've plunked him, I tell you!"

Behind the hollowed barrier a horrible sight met their eyes. The Frenchman's slim body hung limp over a jutting ledge, all the upper portion of his skull blown to atoms. The torch fell on red, oozing brains, a sagging jaw, eyes beginning to glaze. In one nerveless hand a smoking revolver was still clasped.

Charnwood gazed, and with a long exhaled breath averted his head. "And the boy?" he asked, looking about. "Is he here, too?"

They had not far to search. Under the shelving rock lay a dark form, half in water. They bent over it, raised the ghastly face gently and examined it for signs of animation. Charnwood shook his head.

"Too late. I'm not surprised. Poor kid! Thank heaven he was unconscious during all this."

Tommy did not answer. Scooping a hatful of water, he flung it over the still features and frowned intently to watch the result. The expression did not alter, but something odd took place. A dingy stain, like soot dissolved, washed downward from the head on to the pale skin. Was it dried blood?

With bated breath Charnwood looked on while his companion quickly sponged the gaping wound above the left ear. More black ran down. Was he dreaming? The cropped hair seemed to grow lighter in hue after each wetting. Curious . . . one would almost think. . . . What was it about those thick, upcurling lashes which struck him as hauntingly familiar, that pointed chin, that—

All at once, his heart strained to bursting, Charnwood slid his hand tenderly over the thin, flat chest. Beneath the jersey his fingers encountered two faintly swelling mounds.

The face he lifted was as white as the victim's own.

"Tommy," he half sobbed. "It's not—it can't possibly be——?"

With a gesture of despair Tommy laid aside his blackened handkerchief. "You've guessed," he replied, tersely. "It's Clare de Bertincourt herself."

With sick hearts they lifted the body and bore it through the water back to the hut. There was as yet no rigidity, but the arms dangled free like those of a sawdust doll.

As they reached the doorway, Charnwood, glancing towards the spot where Lepin had lain, gave a dull start.

"He's not there!"

Tommy nodded. "It was he who went off with Yetta. How he managed to drag himself to the car God alone knows, but he did. That's how I knew those shots came from De Bertincourt, and hurried 'round just in time to see his beret over the rock."

Neither felt interested in this development. Their entire attention was focused on the poor, tormented being they might have saved had they stayed behind instead of pursuing the murderers.

They laid their burden upon the very rugs designed to keep her innocent blood from marking the floor.

"Is there the slightest hope?" ventured Charnwood.

"Im afraid not. The head wound itself is not very serious, but she was in a pitiably weakened condition from starvation and drugs."

"Drugs!"

All at once Charnwood understood the peculiar expression of the eyes which had helped to mislead him—the darkened pupils, the look of vacuity.

"Yes. Unless I'm much mistaken, she's been heavily doped for the whole twelve days. Still, she was alive twenty minutes ago, for Yetta was going to use this on her." He indicated the other bottle.

Charnwood tore open the jersey and felt the heart.

"I'm not sure."

Propping the head against his knees, Charnwood reached for his brandy flask, and, with Tommy's aid, managed to pour a little of the liquid into the mouth. Seconds passed, and apparently there was no alteration.

"Here, let's try this."

Tommy removed his wrist watch and held the dial a quarter of an inch from the parted lips. When he took it away the crystal was faintly clouded.

"Just alive—no more," he pronounced. "I'll stay here while you run like the devil for a doctor. Meanwhile, I'll do what I can. I've had some experience in resuscitation."

Charnwood dashed out of the cabin and across the rough ground to the road.

At the junction of the narrow byway with the Chartres road a pair of head lamps dazzled his eyes. He drew to one side and the following second bawled at the driver to stop.

Chinese Newspaper Men View "Trees to Tribunes"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 29.—More than 1,600 newspaper workers, including editorial, news, business, and mechanical staffs of leading Chinese newspapers as well as a considerable number of foreign correspondents and local Chinese and foreign officials, packed a local Nanking theater yesterday to view THE TRIBUNE film, "Trees to Tribunes." The film was shown under the auspices of the Chinese Newspaper association, which allowed two hours to enable the various staffs to view the film. Among the Chinese officials attending was H. H. Kung, minister of industries, who was specially interested in TRIBUNE production of print paper due to the Nationalist government's intention to establish paper mills in Manchuria.

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The cape collar on this dress is stitched in place and keeps its place perfectly. Coming over the shoulders as it does, it makes short sleeves unnecessary. The plaited skirt and pointed seaming where skirt and yoke meet is decidedly slimming. The belt is of self-fabric, but the collar will be smart made of a contrasting color. Gingham, chambray, flat silk crêpe, and crêpe de chine are lovely materials from which to choose.

The pattern, 3055, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅛ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Dressy Suits for Warm Weather Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Suits are being worn for every imaginable occasion, morning, noon, and night, this summer. True, they are sometimes so camouflaged that one doesn't recognize them as suits, but close inspection reveals them to be made up of skirt, blouse—and usually this item is a short peplum waistcoast or pullover tunic rather than a tuckin—and short jacket.

One piece dress and jacket suits are also much seen for afternoon, but many couturiers like Molyneux and Lelong are showing three piece suit effects for afternoon and evening among their latest creations.

The dressy afternoon suit for hot days, sketched today, is from Paul Poiret. The skirt and jacket are of cream silk voile printed with small figures in red, white, and black. All the scalloped edges are piped in black shantung, an unusual touch. The skirt has three groups of fine plaits in front and at both sides to give it comfortable fullness while keeping a slender line; the back is plain.

The bolero jacket has a drop shoulder yoke cut in one with its fronts. It's collarless, but a figured voile collar on the cream batiste blouse is worn outside.

This blouse has a horizontally tucked plastron and it's trimmed with tucked ruffles of the batiste edged with Valenciennes lace. Its puffed lower sleeves that show below the three-quarter slashed sleeves of the jacket are also trimmed with lace. It forms a tunic in front, while in back it tucks inside the skirt.

Ten Minute Doses of Sunshine Enough for the Beginner

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we got on the subject of sun rays, the hottest ones, and what they can do to a perfectly nice face and head of hair. Because it looks as if we were going to have a lot more of it, I take up the subject again today.

Now, sunning oneself is just one of the best little customs for buoying up a drooping spirit. You can treat your skin to a certain amount of it with most beneficial effect. And a hair treatment by Sol is something to take advantage of, too. The ultra-violet rays have a tonicizing, stimulating effect, as you know.

But it is so hard for us women, when we get a bee in our bonnets about a curative feature, to keep within the bounds of reason. We want to eat up all the sun that is going while the enthusiasm is on. And that way lie beauty fatalities.

Unless you've been a tennis girl, a golf girl or an outdoor long distance hiker, you must take your sun treatments in minimum doses until you have established, a resistance. Of course, if you tan handsomely, that's something else again, for which we redheads and blond inclined must go on hating you.

This year you have all the advantages of taking things easily at first. By which I mean, of course, that you can look 'ansum and be in the merry beach crowd while you are training for the longer periods of exposure. You have the coverall gay pajama costumes and the huge flopping hats to protect the neck at the back and the face and the hair.

And I'd suggest most heartily that you keep within this costume until you've a fairly hardy look and feel. Otherwise, not more than a ten minute exposure to the direct rays is advisable. Maybe you can manage ten minutes twice a day. But at one sitting, let it be no more than ten minutes at first. Then, gradually work up until you do not need to be conscious about time and effect. This blissful state will not be reached for the tender skinned for the entire summer. But they'll just have to get in their best work under the dancing pavilion lights, or at the supper table.

Race Meeting Opens Festively at Arlington

BY THALIA

By and large, yesterday's heat didn't seem to affect the bright spectacle that Arlington Park presents on the opening day of their meet. The scenic panorama was gorgeous in the intense sunlight, and the people, attired in effective and typical sports clothes, augmented the color. Albeit there was much mopping of brow and sighing over the weather, the Post and Paddock club's terraces and veranda, shaded with big gaudy umbrellas, were animated and gay with numerous parties that had gathered in the club previous to post time.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour's luncheon crowd was the largest of the parties. It included the Edward K. Hurleys, the John D. Allens, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. A. McCulloch, Otto W. Lehmann, Dr. Leonard Floraheims, Albert Keller, the Warren Wrights, the Charles Glores, and the Earle H. Smiths. Mrs. Armour was wearing a red and white print frock and a white knee length sport frock and small white sailor hat; Mrs. Hertz, a white ensemble with touches of brown; Mrs. Strawn, a flowered chiffon in orange, green and black; Mrs. Strawn, a sheer black and white chiffon banded in white chiffon and a wide weave white straw hat, and Mrs. Florsheim, a blue and white print.

Other Details of Gayety at Post, Paddock Club.

Guests in the Post and Paddock inclosure and the regular boxes included Mrs. John Wentworth in a pink crêpe frock and a small Juliet sort of cap, Mrs. Bayne Levings of Baltimore, who were with Mrs. Wentworth's father, George Brown of Miss H. Strawns' box party, which included their daughters, Mrs. Jack Cudahy in aquamarine blue with a wide black patent leather belt, and a white knit turban in black, red and white, and Mrs. Wesley Scott and his daughter, Mrs. Edward K. Welles Jr. Mrs. Stanley H. Marshall, who was wearing black and white printed chiffon, lunched with her daughters, Mrs. Harold Tinsley and Miss Dorothy Marshall, and Mrs. Joseph Beuttas.

Mrs. Sister, Miss Frances Ladley, were with a group of young folks that included Orville Taylor wearing a dark dotted printed dress with a white collar and a large brown straw hat, Mrs. Paul Walker in a blue embroidered frock, and Mrs. Robert Witherspoon in blue and white printed crepe were together.

There was much comparing of notes at the end and some exultation when one of the long shots came in. Mrs. J. F. Suter, who was a member of the old Mrs. Harry Watts' party, said it was told, one of the lucky few to have cashed in on the second race and paid $75 and nothing or other, and Mrs. Orville Tuttle played Knight Commander, the latter in the fourth race, across the board.

Some more of the regular attendants at Arlington who were present on the opening were Mrs. T. Clifford Allen, Mrs. Austin H. Niblick, Mrs. Ingham Spalding, Mrs. Frank E. Hinds, Mrs. Vincent Healy, and Mr. and Mrs. Ann Schuttler.

Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson Jrs., Mrs. Simpson wearing a smart ensemble of white and white dress with a brown belt and hat; Jack and William Simpson, the Botsford Youngs, Shreve Adler, and Mrs. Loyal Foley were also present. The mayor, jovial and welcoming with some of the directors, and the ushers in new and very dapper skipper blue uniforms were interesting features of the afternoon.

Invitations to Be Sent Out for Family Reunion.

Invitations for the Alfred H. Grdss family reunion, which will take place at York Village, Me., is to be the scene of a sort of a combination family reunion during the month of August. Mrs. Gross departed for the east recently to see that things were in order for the arrival of the 5 grandchildren. Mr. Gross is having July 1 escorting his granddaughters, Sallie Ann Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joan Haskell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Travelstetti's daughter, and Mrs. Joan Haskell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Haskell, and their nurse. Mrs. Dana Grant, children of Mrs. H. Grants of Pelham, N. Y., will join them shortly.

Many of the parents of the children are unable, because of Mrs. Grdss illness, but they all hope to be able to come some time during the month.

Mrs. Uri B. Clennis of Lake Forest, who went east for the commencement exercises at the Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., for her son, Balcolm, remained there for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, in Columbia, Pa. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart moved out to their Lake Forest house on Friday . . . The John H. McIlvaines are east for a short trip. . . .

Miss Carter Morgan motored over to visit her father, Harry Lee Williams, and sister, Mrs. Melvin Brorby, at the Williams' farm near Holland, Mich., on Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Brorby. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. John Irwin Marshall of Highland Park gave a buffet supper on Saturday evening for her house guest, Capt. and Mrs. M. Wayne Martin, U. S. A. of Indianapolis. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. have departed for their ranch near Santa Fe.

Plans and That About Visits, Weddings, and Yachting.

Did you know . . . that Mrs. Caswell Sharpe has gone east for a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, the Walter Rodigers, at Greenwich, Conn., and to go with them on a motor trip to Canada . . . that Miss Grace Dewes was among the attendants in the wedding of Miss Ruth Walker, daughter of Mrs. Robert Walker, and John French Jr., which took place in New York at the Avenue Presbyterian church on Wednesday. [The attendants wore turquoise green point d'esprit and large horsehair hats of the same color and carried roses] . . . that Mrs. Owen Barton Jones' sister, Mrs. Higgs, and her son, Charles, have come from Nassau for a 10 day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and that the latter gave a Sunday evening supper for them and afterwards took the guests out on their power cruiser, the Parthian?

Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. has been ill with pneumonia—not a bad case but a long drawn out one—and there have been "quiet zone" signs around the Clow place in Lake Forest . . . Nancy Leiter, who arrived a week or so ago with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, to spend the summer in Lake Forest, had to go to Alice Home, almost immediately after she got here, for an appendix operation.

Dorothy Caldwell to Become Bride of K. K. Knickerbocker.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Cardwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Cardwell of 1540 Lake Shore drive, to Kenneth K. Knickerbocker will be solemnized at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the gardens of Oak Knolls, the Cardwells' summer estate at Barrington. Y. Saturday. Behind her is Miss Barbara Joan Sindall, a college mate of the bride, her maid of honor. About 140 guests attended the wedding ceremony performed in the Universalist church. Martha N. Doubleday, Richard F. Hoyt, Wed in New York

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martha N. Doubleday, former wife of Nelson Doubleday, publisher, and Richard F. Hoyt, banker and sportsman, were married today in the apartment of Mrs. Doubleday at 825 5th avenue.

The ceremony, which was attended only by immediate members of the two families, did not come as a surprise, as persistent reports had linked their names at the time Mrs. Doubleday obtained a divorce in Reno a week ago. Mr. Hoyt's former wife, Katherine Stone Hoyt, obtained a divorce on May 4 of last year. In the application for the license the age of both bride and bridegroom was listed as 36.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt left for a trip of several months. The name of the clergyman who performed the ceremony was not disclosed.

Mrs. Hoyt is the daughter of Samuel Nicholson of Providence, R. I. There she was married to Mr. Doubleday in 1916. Mr. Doubleday is president of Doubleday, Doran & Co. She obtained the divorce decree in Reno on the technical ground of nonsupport.

Mr. Hoyt is a leader in the aviation industry and well known in the financial world.

Pleas for Ice Grow as Heat Scorches City

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

It doesn't make any difference to a quartet of enterprising youngsters whether the thermometer appears to be stuck in the 90 to 100 degree area. After all a job's a job, and it's got to be done despite the weather.

This particular job was raising money for THE TRIBUNE free ice fund, and when you sell lemonade your business naturally takes you right out in the street where there's likely to be trade. So Constance and Suzanne Bird, Oscar Daum and Peggy Habers tried very hard not to mind the broiling sun, while they dished out an ice cold and most refreshing drink to a number of thirsty patrons. Their reward was a total of 81 cents to buy ice for hopes that don't have any.

The brief businesslike note accompanying the gift declared: "We saw the article in the paper about the ice fund. We sold lemonade and got this money." But if you read behind those lines you'll know that children as well as grown folks realize how very much ice is needed in homes where wage earners are without jobs or the hope of any, and ice must necessarily become a luxury rather than a necessity.

With the need for ice distribution five times greater than in previous years, the ice fund finds itself in a dilemma. There is a daily increasing stack of notes pleading for ice, though the balance in the ice fund is only $190.61. How to provide ice to needy families all over Chicago with a fund of less than $200 is a puzzle that economists could scarcely solve.

THE TRIBUNE ice fund gratefully acknowledges these contributions:

CAMP ALGONQUIN FUND.

Mary F. Hawley	$ 5.00
Mrs. P. F. M.	5.00
Total	$ 10.00
Previously acknowledged	1,506.36
Grand total	$1,516.36

All checks should be made payable to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

"My baby's milk has soured for the last few days and I have not been able to get him any more. It would be wonderful if I could get ice," pleads a mother whose letter tops the stack. "My baby is ten months old and dependent on his milk."

"Am writing to see if we can get any free ice tickets," writes another mother. "My husband has been out of work since a year ago last October, and we have no money to buy ice. We have three small children, 7, 4 and 2 years old, and get milk from the county, but have no way of keeping it from souring."

There was, however, a note of encouragement in the larger number of contributors to the ice fund who sent gifts yesterday. Large or small, these gifts help, and if they come consistently the fund is bound to perform its increased task.

Food Talk

Thackeray would not have pitied himself had those muffins been good. And blueberry muffins even of mediocre quality, I suspect, would have been accepted without disdain by the great English novelist.

As we have said before in this column, the trouble with many cooks is that they beat or stir their muffin batter too much. When a muffin cracks across the top and the inside dough expands and runs out to form knobs and horns and large tunnels appear all through the inside of the muffin it is an indication that the batter was overstirred. Muffins with slightly rounded tops that are free from cracks and with golden brown crusts, tender and fragile in appearance and a fine, delicate, spongy texture on the inside are a delicious breakfast, luncheon, or dinner bread. Who would refuse the correctly made and beautifully baked muffin?

To make muffins it is important to have all ingredients at hand before starting to mix the batter. Oil the pans, light the oven, and measure the ingredients. After the dry ingredients have been sifted into the mixing bowl, the eggs beaten and the milk and melted fat added to them it is time for a minute or so of serious work. The liquid should be poured at one time into a "well" that has been made in the dry ingredients. Then rapid stirring mixes the dough, and this should not take longer than 20 to 25 seconds. In this time the dry ingredients will have become thoroughly wet and there will still be time to add three or four extra stirs to smooth the dough slightly. But avoid a smooth muffin dough.

If they are to be blueberry muffins add berries at the point where these last two or three stirs begin. I prefer not to use flour on the berries because too often the flour still is adherent to the berry in the cooked muffin, and this is not desirable. When the muffin batter is mixed lose no time in putting it into the pans. Then bake immediately. Muffins should be baked at a high temperature. The time for baking depends upon the size. So it is necessary to watch them as they cook so that they may be removed from the oven at the proper time. And once they are baked they should be served piping hot. Muffins, however, may be reheated and if this is carefully done they are not to be scorned.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

2 cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
4 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 egg
1 cup stemmed and washed blueberries

Sift the flour, then measure. Resift with other dry ingredients into a mixing bowl. Add the milk and butter to the beaten egg. Make a depression in the dry ingredients, pour in the liquid and mix as quickly as possible. Too much stirring results in ill shaped muffins. Add the blueberries with the last few stirs. Pour the batter at once into oiled muffin tins. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

Yield: Twenty-one medium sized muffins.

BAKED STUFFED TOMATOES.

3 anchovies
¼ cup milk
¼ cup stuffed olives
½ cup mushrooms, cut up
¼ cup chopped sweet pickle
6 tomatoes
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
3 tablespoons bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
Paprika

Soak the mashed anchovies with the milk. Mix them with the chopped olives, mushroom, and pickle. Scoop out the inside of the tomatoes with a sharp spoon or potato baller. Mix the tomato pulp, egg, and cheese with the anchovy mixture and fill the tomatoes. Top with bread crumbs, dot with butter, and sprinkle with paprika. Bake the tomatoes in a small casserole or baking dish for 15 or 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Sally Tells Changed Movie Party Plans; To Go to Oriental

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

News that was not such good news came to me yesterday from the offices of Balaban & Katz, but it was accompanied by such a marvelous announcement I know you won't mind it any more than I did. Unforseen complications make it necessary that we change the plans for our party on Thursday, July 9, and instead of seeing Maurice Chevalier at the United Artists theater we'll see another of those thrilling Charlie Chan pictures at the Oriental.

I know this change won't disappoint any of you, for it's going to be a perfectly thrilling picture with Warner Oland playing the suave Charlie Chan. If you've seen others of the series you'll be eager to see the "Black Camel," too, for it's simply full of mystery and excitement and the plot revolves around the life of a young actress. One can't reveal too much about a talkie of this kind or the story is ruined, so I'll let you find out for yourself when we see it on July 9.

Those of you who have already written to me about the party at the United Artists will not have to write again. Your letter will receive the same consideration as those which are mailed after this announcement. If you haven't written and would like to be a guest at this perfectly thrilling party, here's the way to do it. Just compose a letter telling me that you'd like to be one of the group of one hundred boys and girls who will be with me on that day. You must be extremely anxious to join us and your letter must show it. Every one is eligible and the only requirement is that your letter reach me no later than Thursday morning, July 2. Be sure to have it include your name, address and age.

Fathers Learn to Know Their Children in Jolly Vacation Days

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Of course, when you take your vacation you're going to "get away from it all." One man I know is going on a fishing trip, "way up in the Canadian woods. I think it's twenty hours from a railroad. Isn't that sport?

Another man is going where he can play 36 holes of golf a day. Well, if you love the game and you're hardened, that's a golfer's heaven.

A fourth goes bumming around, as he puts it, in a small sloop with a cabin. It would be wonderful to get your fill of salt and sailing some time.

"Rich man—
"Poor man—
"Beggar man—
"Thief—
"Lawyer—
"Doctor—
"Banker—
"Chief—"

Many men take their vacations away from their families. Many men, whose business or profession is so exacting that they have little time for their children during the year, have never thought of taking their vacations with their families.

One man I know, who had always followed this plan of going off with a group of men, overheard a conversation one day between his youngsters and those of a neighbor. Suddenly he decided to take his vacation with his children that summer—purely from a sense of duty. He thought his boys needed him.

"Never did I have such a good time," he said. "I'm going to do it every year, but not from a sense of duty, and it makes me laugh when I think I used to imagine I knew my children.

"Why, I learned more about them in those few weeks and we came closer together than in all the years before."

There are many fathers—busy, dutiful, conscientious fathers—who have not the faintest notion of what an interesting companion a child can be. Take your vacation with your children this year—not just geographically, but in spirit, too—not from a sense of duty, either—and see how much fun you have.

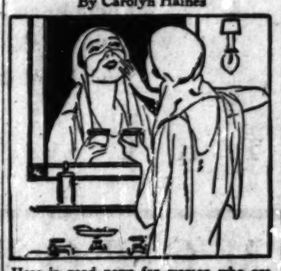
How to Whiten Dark, Sallow Skin

By Carolyn Haines



Here is good news for women who are troubled with dark, sallow, blemished or freckled skin. Beauty specialists, using a secret French formula, have produced a lovely new white facial pack that dries in ten minutes, fades out freckles and darkened skin, and removes fatigue lines and blemishes.

It contains fresh juice of the whole lemon, magnesia, and other secret ingredients. It is called Boncilla Lemon-Magnesia Pack, and is sold in all good drug and department stores. A large size tube or jar, containing many facials, costs only one dollar. The dealer will refund your money if you are not delighted. I advise that you try it at once.

Let System Simplify Your Household Task, Say Modern Experts

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A timely piece of advice reaching my desk and distributed by the Cleanliness Institute of New York City, is directed at brides in connection with the operation of their housework.

The biscuit and the juicy steak, while not denied their well known place in the scheme of husband content, still are not everything in the young bride's program. The business of taking care of the newly furnished home is something, too. Keeping things clean, instead of having to make them clean is the correct housework approach, according to the cleanliness sponsors.

Take the wedding silver, for one item. If it is washed in soap and water immediately after use there won't need to be a morning or afternoon set aside for silver polishing.

But the best feature suggested, to my way of thinking, is the advice to the young housewife to budget her cleaning time. Sit down with a paper and pencil and make a plan. List the daily cleaning duties and then scatter the weekly tasks throughout the page. Fit into the schedule the monthly duties and the special jobs.

The virtue of the cleaning plan is that it divides the work evenly. Too much is not undertaken in one day and thus is avoided those first seeds of discontent with a job that does not have to be arduous, but can easily be made so with poor management.

In other words, the system advocated is to put management into the duties. Have a system and stick to it, without, of course, becoming fanatical over it. There will be times when compromise may have to be made with today's regular duties. But, it is reasonable to believe that discontent creeps in where yesterday's task lops over until today, or possibly tomorrow.

And why shouldn't the modern young wife bring to her domestic job much of that efficiency she displayed in her pre-marriage work? Doing promptly the thing that has to be done and getting it completely over with, no matter how distasteful it may be, is one way of taking the actual distaste out of work.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Why Not Ask Him?

"Dear Miss Blake: When we go out my friend is not cheerful. What is the matter? MARGIE."

Why not ask him the cause of the gloom? The truth is preferable to suspense.

Ignore Rumors.

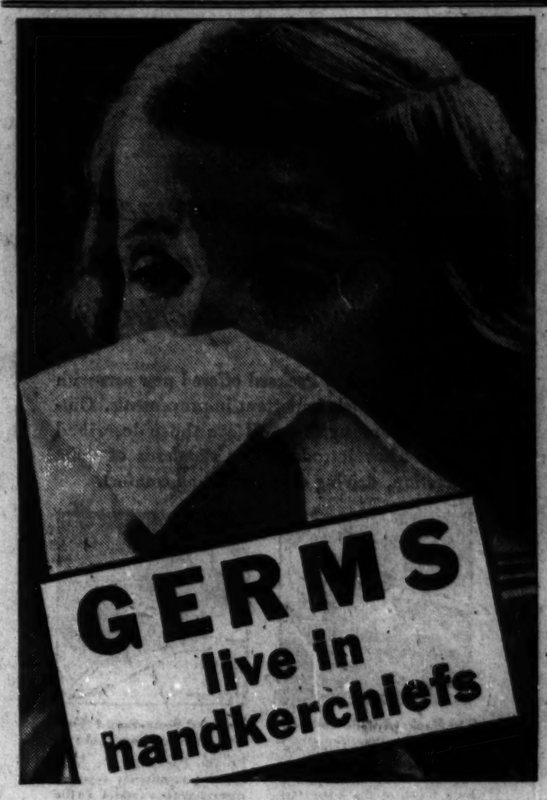
"Dear Miss Blake—I heard that my girl went with fellows while I was away. She denied it. Please advise. "TONY."

Rumors are often ungrounded, so I wouldn't be influenced by them.

Suitable Gifts.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend's birthday is soon. What kind of a gift is appropriate. ALICE."

Books, if he likes to read, a wallet, an umbrella, or a fountain pen would be suitable.



Use Kleenex

Soft Disposable Tissues replace germ-carrying handkerchiefs

PROTECT yourself from germs! Here's one way many health authorities recommend. Use Kleenex. It's a new handkerchief tissue. You destroy it after one use. Avoid self-infection. Germs that live in soiled handkerchiefs can't get back to your face.

Laboratory tests show as many as 240,000 germs may live in a handkerchief after a single use. Think of the risk of carrying these germs back to your mouth and nose again and again . . . every time you re-use a handkerchief. Be safe! Use Kleenex tissues instead of handkerchiefs.

Costs less than laundry

Kleenex is so low in cost that it actually costs less than laundering. Thus it is ideal for children; for use during colds and hay fever.

Use Kleenex for removing cold cream; dusting and polishing; for wiping spectacles and razor blades; in the nursery.

You'll find Kleenex at drug, dry goods and department stores, in packages at 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

The new PACKARD EIGHTS

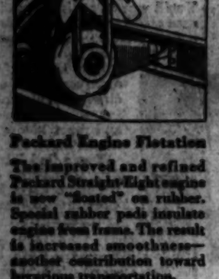
This new Packard Eight Five-Passenger Sedan is one of thirteen beautiful body styles, priced at the factory from $2485 to $3465. Twelve distinguished body types are available in the Packard De Luxe series, with factory prices ranging from $3690 to $4550.

Six Packard Improvements that give a new meaning to Luxurious Transportation

Never before has Packard offered new cars with so many or such important improvements. Outstanding among them all are those described below. They introduce new standards of quiet operation, driving ease and riding comfort.

The Packard Ride Control
Packard hydraulic shock absorbers are controlled from the dash—instantly adjusted by a touch of the fingers to meet varying conditions of road, speed and temperature, to compensate for the number and the weight of passengers.

Packard Four-Speed Synchro-Mesh Transmission
To the Packard-built, four-speed transmission synchronizers have been added. In the new Packard cars gears can always be changed easily, quickly and noiselessly regardless of temperature or speed.



Packard Engine Flotation
The improved and refined Packard Straight-Eight engine is now "floated" on rubber. Special rubber pads insulate engine from frame. The result is increased smoothness—another contribution toward luxurious transportation.

Complete Body Insulation
The new Packard bodies are thoroughly insulated against squeaks and rattles, against outside sound and temperature. Body walls and even the floors are heavily insulated against heat and cold much like the walls of refrigerators.

The Packard Stabilizers
On the long wheelbase models Packard has incorporated a new and exclusive stabilizing device. Cylinders with compensating weights floating between coil springs are built into each end of the front bumper. They dampen vibration and steady the entire front end at all speeds.

A New Interior Luxury
The new Packard bodies are more sturdily constructed than ever before, and the roomy interiors are more richly appointed. The deep spring cushions provide new comfort for passengers, while the modern interior accessories now offer a new note in personal conveniences.

From bumper to bumper, outside and inside, mechanically and artistically, the Continental Series Packard cars are entirely new—completely redesigned. While the characteristic beauty of Packard lines and the eight-in-line principle of motor design are retained, even these fundamental features show tremendous refinements. The new Packards are a truly great advance in luxurious transportation.

Come in and examine the new Packards in detail. Take the wheel of your favorite model and drive anywhere you wish. Then ride as a passenger. Only then will you appreciate that Packard engineers have done more than improve the beauty and performance of Packard cars, more than perfect new conveniences for the driver. You will find that true luxury and utmost riding comfort for passengers as well as driver were major considerations in the designing of these new and modern cars.

Bodies are lower and roomier, with lines refined and modernized. Wheelbases are longer and the tread is wider. The motor is far more powerful—quieter, smoother.

If you buy any other car than a new Packard this summer it will be at the sacrifice of supreme riding comfort. No other cars have all the modern features which make the new Packards not only the easiest riding cars in the entire world but also the easiest to operate. See these cars today. Why not own the only truly up-to-date car now available?

SILVERDALE CAPTURES ARLINGTON HANDICAP

TIES SCORE ON HOMER; TRIPLES TO WIN GAME

Eight Pitchers Get a Workout.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—Dick Bartell, Philly shortstop, committed four errors to make seven of the Cubs' ten runs unearned, but Chuck Klein, with his No. 10 homer, a triple, a single, and a double, canceled Dick's benevolence and more. Thus the Phillies today won a ludicrous exhibition, 11 to 10.

Klein drove in five runs and scored three others besides his homer. His homer, off Bush in the sixth, drove in three runs to tie the score at 9 to 9 after the Cubs had gone ahead with a six run foray in the sixth. His triple in the eighth, off Root, after the Cubs had gone ahead, 10 to 9, drove in the tying run. And Chuck scored the winning run immediately thereafter.

There were eight pitchers in the contest, not counting two who delivered singles in pinch hitting roles. Collins, Scheeler, and Bolen worked for the winners, and the Cubs employed Bascht, who got his ears pinned back before he had a chance to take a good, deep breath; Blake, who was fair; Warneke, who was fair; Bush, who was not so hot, and Root, who got his feet wet in the eighth, being charged with his eighth loss of the year and his second in two days.

Bad Boys Restored.

The humiliating trouncing came just when it began to appear that the Cubs were going to be one happy family once more. Wilson and Hemsley, who had just passed through three days of spanking for being wicked boys, were restored to the lineup.

The loose defensive play didn't seem to be worrying the Phils much when they came to bat in the last of the first inning and scored five runs. Bascht walked Brickell, who went to second while Bartell was grounding out to Grimm. Klein singled to center, scoring Brickell, and forthwith stole second, whence he scored on Whitney's single to center. Davis singled to right, putting Whitney on third. Koster also singled to right, Whitney scoring and Davis stopping at second. Blake relieved Bascht and Friberg greeted him with a double which scored Davis and Koster.

Cubs Score Twice.

The Cubs made two runs in the second and had the bases full when the inning ended. After Hemsley had fanned, Grimm and Jurges walked. Blake beat out a single which carried off Friberg's hand. Cuyler singled to left, scoring Grimm and Jurges, Blake stopping at second. Blake and Cuyler moved up on English's sacrifice, then Hornsby walked to fill the bases again, but Wilson grounded to Mallon.

Klein walked to start the Philly third, went to second on Whitney's sacrifice and scored when Davis singled.

Bartell was charged with his fourth error at the outset of the sixth when he made a wide throw to first after picking up Cuyler's grounder. English then doubled to the flag pole, Cuyler stopping at third. Ki scored and English went to third while Bartell was throwing out Hornsby. English scored while Mallon was throwing out Wilson. D. Taylor singled to right and stopped at second when Hemsley singled to left. Grimm singled to right, D. Taylor scoring the tying run and Hemsley going to third.

Dutch Schesler replaced Collins and

Frasier Finally Vindicates Bush; Starts Winning

Vic Frasier, the lad of few words who ran out on the White Sox a year ago because Chicago made him homesick for the peace and quiet of Mount Enterprise, Tex., is beginning to think working in the big city isn't so bad after all.

VIC FRASIER.

At the completion of his 9 to 7 victory over Washington yesterday, he had achieved his second triumph in a bit over a week and his third excellent performance in two weeks. Prior to that he had been kicked around with more or less abandon. Manager Donie Bush, even in adversity, maintained his prediction that Vic would win as soon as he could master a change of pace to mix with his speed.

Frasier scored the first of his three victories when he stopped the Browns 3 to 2 on nine hits at Comiskey Park May 1. Then he went through a period of depression, which endured until June 15 at Boston when he allowed only four hits in eleven innings. He lost that game, 3 to 2, because of his own bad fielding, but his pitching was impressive.

He followed the Boston showing with last week's 5 to 2 victory over the Athletics. His defeats for the year number six.

WILSON NAMES FAVORITE DRINK, CHOCOLATE SODA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—In the last few days thousands of pleasure lovers, more or less, have written or wired, asking for Hack Wilson's favorite prescription. Mr. Wilson obliges with the following:

"When all is said and done, I believe I like the double chocolate soda best of all, though a good banana split is not to be sneered at.

"I like the whole range of sundaes, except sarsaparilla. When I order a nut sundae I always insist on whole pecans. You know how they grind turnips in horseradish. Well, they also grind peanuts with pecans and walnuts for nut sundaes. To my way of thinking, this is an out and out swindle and an imposition on the public.

"Returning to the banana split, I would like to say to my friends that I never take whipped cream on same, on account of whipped cream being fattening."

Mr. Wilson made the foregoing announcement just before returning to the Cub lineup.

SOX WIN SERIES FINAL, 9 TO 7, FROM SENATORS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Hits bounced off the White Sox bats with surprising frequency yesterday, and they encountered no particular difficulty in jolting the Washington Senators' ambitions to catch up on the pace-making Athletics. The score was 9 to 7, and the second placers moved on last night, more or less regretful that they ever called. They won only two of five games against the Sox.

The afternoon's important development was a six run revolt against General Alvin Crowder in the fourth. Prior to that the Sox had displayed so much enthusiasm over Sam Jones' pitching that he was removed with three runs against his record. The six run attack put the Chicagoans well out in front, but the margin was needed, because along toward the finish Vic Frasier found it a bit difficult to keep the enemy in subjection.

Watwood Stubs Toe.

The few thousand fans didn't wait long for action. Myer picked out Frasier's first pitch of the day and lined it to center. Watwood ran over to get in front of what should have been a single, but stubbed his toe on a clover leaf. Myer made it a home run. For the remainder of the inning Frasier encountered no difficulties.

As a means of cutting down Jones' working period, the Sox jumped ahead with two runs in their half, the contributing items being three successive singles. Kerr led off with one between third and short. Blue lined a hit to right and Kerr took third. After a wild pitch had sent Blue to second, Jones tossed up a slow ball to Reynolds and it whistled over short for a single, Kerr and Blue scoring. Jones then applied the brakes and the next three batters accomplished nothing.

Error Helps Senators.

The Sox had all arrangements made for a nice little rally in the third inning, but Manager Johnson cut it down to one run by suddenly recalling Jones and calling Crowder. Blue started by singling with one out. Reynolds was walked. Fonseca singled through second, Blue scoring and Reynolds sprinting to third. Crowder stepped in here to retire Watwood on strikes and Cissell on a fly to right.

Luck provided the Senators with a run in the fourth. Rice bunted to Blue and Frasier covered first, but not quickly enough. Manush popped out and Cronin walked. The bases were filled when Kerr fumbled West's grounder. The next two fellows flied out, but Bluege's fly was deep enough to permit Rice to score after the catch.

The initial incident of what became six runs in the home fourth was a pass to Jeffries, who stole second before Tate could foul out. Frasier singled into center and little Jeff

They're Crazy Over Hearses at Schmeling's Fight Camp

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., June 29.—You may fancy your correspondent's sensations upon alighting from a high powered barouche at this gay haunt of pleasure this afternoon to find a hearse standing by the front door of the hotel and all over the front lawn of the place and also on the side lawns a profusion of coffins and artificial flowers in such funereal designs as the broken wheel, and the gates ajar surmounted by a stuffed white seagull or pigeon.

Following the colored bellboy, who seemed a little greenish and was showing a lot of white in his eyes, your correspondent entered a conventional lobby of a conventional, wooden, summer hotel beside a little lake, to find a convention of morticians just moving in for a session of three days.

Ma's Golf Fails to Interest.

The front parlor, or sitting room, was given over to a fascinating array of morticians' wares, and all the other public rooms such as the bridge room, the ballroom and the souvenir postcard writing, or having-a-wonderful-time-wish-you-was-here room, were hosts to displays of caskets, urns and shrouds of such alluring beauty as to make one's thoughts turn pleasantly and a little impatiently to dissolution.

Your correspondent had come all this way to see Max Schmeling train for his prize fight with Willie Stribling in Cleveland next Friday evening, but Max was out playing what he calls his golf, and, having just come from Columbus, O., where the big professionals played golf in the Ryder cup tournament last week, your correspondent did not pursue him. When your correspondent wishes to cover some golf he does not go to a prize fighter's camp to do so, for the same reason that he does not go to a golf tournament to cover fights.

Moreover, nothing that Herr Schmeling or any other prize fighter, including the intellectuals of the trade, has ever done has stirred your correspondent to such pleasant reflections on the ephemerality of it all, and the luxurious appointments of eternity.

Have an Eye for Business.

All afternoon the morticians, whose coming the keeper of the inn had been heralding for more than a week with the assurance that they were the liveliest, most up-to-the-minute bunch of gay devils that ever held a convention on this lake, were going about doing mental exercises at the expense of the other guests. Now here was a young man of rather swarthy complexion, and two of the morticians, seeing him reading his mail, fell to arguing as to which tint would be best for him. "I say," said one, "he'd take that No. 2 olive enamel. It's a little deeper than his natural complexion, but you have to allow for fading and ——"

The appointments of death may have made a grisly vacation background for some of the guests, but your correspondent, a little weary, anyway, after the heat of Columbus and a little depressed by the aspect of life at the pleasure resort, after one look at his room and the bill of fare, was disturbed by strange, delightful fear that something might happen any minute. Down in the cellar, where the bronze caskets and the satin throws were on display, the mind entertained the thought that life was never like this.

Your correspondent found particular charm in a roomy bronze case, somehow done in an iridescent green and upholstered in pillowed satin of the most tempting softness, and when he asked the undertaker in charge if these pleasant little homes came in standard sizes, like hats and shoes, the man said, "I'd figure you for about a number six, although progressive people nowadays are having them made to measure. How have you been feeling?"

Schmeling Misses the Show.

Herr Schmeling has not been lured to the parlors of the hotel as yet, but there is no escaping the intimation which pervades the entire settlement, largely devoted to an amusement park, instinctively reminding people that ptomaines sometimes dwell in hot dogs and that roller coasters have been known to fly off into space with fatal consequences.

The man downstairs said he didn't believe that Dion O'Banion's coffin nor the box in which the late Dan Iamascio of New York was laid to rest could have cost $20,000, as legend contends, adding that for $2,500 he would agree to furnish your correspondent a box as rich as ever man was borne away in.

"With your complexion, freckles, and all," said he, "I wouldn't advise the green bronze. Natural bronze, beautiful but simple, is what you need."

The war correspondents attending the training of Herr Schmeling were strangely subdued this evening. Those bottles set forth in such proud array under lively show cards reading "Ever Last appliances give satisfaction" contain a fluid of much the same color as the local Scotch, and the convention of undertakers is making better boys of most of us. But your correspondent can hardly wait.

Blake to Referee

CLEVELAND, O., June 29.—[Special.]—George Blake of Los Angeles, manager of Fidel La Barba, today was named by the Cleveland boxing commission to referee the 15 round bout between Max Schmeling, champion, and Young Stribling here Friday night.

CUSTOMERS WILL GET A BREAK AT CLEVELAND BOUT

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., June 29.—Visiting firemen, which becomes the status of boxing reporters on days when Young Stribling does not work, this afternoon officially were shown the Cleveland municipal stadium where $800,000 worth of spectators are expected to assemble Friday night for the title bout between Champion Max Schmeling and Will Stribling.

While W. L. and a party of friends attended the double header baseball game between the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees, we scribes went to the lake front, where work on the ringside seats is still proceeding within the big bowl. Since the stadium is only a comfortable ten minutes walk from the business section it was suggested the party might proceed there on its own power. Excessive heat, which the weather forecaster predicts for two more days, with a lifting before the night of the fight, suggested taxicabs.

More Like Football Bowl.

This huge structure, constructed with $2,500,000 of the city's money to which possibly another $500,000 must be added for adequate approaches and deficiencies, has outside dimensions of 800 by 710 feet. Lacking in many respects the impressive architectural effect of Soldiers' field at Chicago, it is constructed more on the principle of college bowls from which immense crowds view football spectacles. Even civic pride cannot prevent our admitting this gives spectators a better view of an event like a boxing match.

Estimated capacity of this stadium is 78,000 for baseball games, 90,000 for football games, and 110,000 for boxing. Maximum capacity will not be required Friday night and provisions are being made for 92,000 seats.

With prices of $25, $12.50 and $5.49, the higher priced seats are those known as ringside which extend back from the ring a distance of 139 feet with a gradual elevation of four feet off the ground, the first ten rows of the grandstand proper, and about ten rows of the first balcony. These latter look like the best points.

Visibility Appears Good.

The $12.50 seats are directly back of the $25 spacings on both first and second floors of the stadium proper. The cheaper seats are still farther back and also comprise the bleacher section. Visibility is good from all points and the usual squawks on that score will not be numerous.

Already the Cleveland ball club has nearly perfected negotiations with the city for lease of the stadium for a period of ten years, with what amounts to an option for fifteen years more, as the home diamond of the Indians.

Winston Guest, Polo Star, Hurt in Practice Game

Mineola, N. Y., June 29.—(AP)—Winston Guest, international polo player, received a fractured collar bone in a practice game with members of the Meadowbrook Country club polo team today. His horse fell upon him during the play. Physicians at Nassau hospital, to which he was taken, said his condition was favorable.

WINSTON GUEST.

The accident happened in the fourth chukker when a rider on the opposing team dashed in front of Guest's pony, which had been borrowed from John Hay Whitney. Guest's pony, in halting, fell and the player was caught beneath. Play was stopped and Guest taken to the hospital.

Other players on the Red team with Guest were J. C. Cooley, Gerald Smith and John Schiff. They were opposed by the White team of Robert Lehman, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Jack Fink and John Hay Whitney.

Guest is rated as the greatest indoor polo player in the world, having a handicap of ten goals, the highest possible.

FIELD HORSE, WINNER LAST YEAR, REPEATS

12,000 See Opening Day Races.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Silverdale won't be forgotten by the racing crowds at Arlington Park for a long time. He won the Inaugural handicap at Arlington last year. And he won the Inaugural handicap of the 1931 season yesterday afternoon, galloping in front throughout a dash of seven furlongs.

Silverdale beat the eastern sprinter No More by three lengths, and three lengths back of No More came old My Dandy, running faster than all of them at the finish. Satin Spar, the California champion, was fourth.

About 12,000 who journeyed to Arlington for the opening cheered as Silverdale, ridden by Jockey J. McCoy, romped to his victory. Most of them had wagered on him, for he was grouped in the field with No More, Siskin and others, and the field paraded to the post as the favorite. Silverdale paid $6.34 in the mutuels.

Epithet Is Disappointment.

There was a plunge on Tannery, on Ned O and Sch, but no member of this trio could get into a running mood. They were all far back, and Epithet, a star juvenile of last season, which also mustered support, was the biggest disappointment of the race. He ran back with the rear guard all the way and beat only two horses, High Foot and Don Leon, which also had many backers.

The richest racing program in the world opened under trying conditions. The hot weather continued until an hour before post time. Then the cooling breeze from the lake began to sweep across Chicago and its suburbs. The cooling breeze reached the race course. When the breeze arrived the crowd began to move toward the race track and by the time the field was called out for the steeplechase, the second event on the program, more than 12,000 were gathered at the track.

The crowd included many notables. C. V. [Sonny] Whitney was in the Post and Paddock club. Laurance Armour was entertaining a big party there. So were many others. A. D. Lasker, Herbert H. Swope, John Herts, Charles McCulloch, Otto W. Lehmann, James Simpson Jr. were mingling in the crowd.

Pair by Pair Wins First.

If it hadn't been for the hot weather I suspect that Mr. Herts would have tossed his hat out into the lake in the infield or at least on to the polo field as his royally bred 2 year old Pair by Pair won the first race, for Pair by Pair jumped into the lead at the start and held it all the way.

The steeplechase which followed brought victory to Contrition, owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark of New York. She beat Autumn Bells handily by half a dozen lengths after Autumn Bells had been taken all over the turf course. Jockey MacIver's effort on Autumn Bells was so weak that Mr. Simpson announced soon after the race that he had fired the jockey.

The Arlington track record was tied when Neverlads, from the east, won the Springfield purse at six furlongs. He ran the distance in 1:10 3-5, which tied the track record held jointly by those old roommates, My Dandy and Brown Wisdom. Neverlads is owned by Mrs. Ambrose Clark, and, ridden by J. Renick, came with a mighty rush in the stretch to overhaul Outbound and win by four lengths.

Galahad Pays $38.52.

In the Highland Park purse at a mile and a furlong Galahad, owned by Phil Reuter, was a surprise winner and paid off at $38.52 in the mutuels. His drive in the last furlong conquered Hot Toddy and enabled him to win by a neck. Hot Toddy saved second money from the fast finishing Calf Roper. N. Huff gave Hot Toddy a feeble ride or the decision might have been reversed.

AT THE OPENING OF RACING'S RICHEST MEETING

Steeplechasing adds thrills to the inaugural program of eight races. The field clears the first jump in Chicago's opening chase of the season, won by Contrition, with Autumn Bells second and Fichet third.

The camera man visits the exclusive Post and Paddock club and reveals the beautiful landscaping and clubhouse. The 12,000 who attended the Arlington opening saw a racing plant, already called one of the most beautiful in the world, that presented more improvements and conveniences.

CHICAGO SCOUTS SEE FIRST DEER ON RIVER TRIP

Porcupines Also Add to Canoeing Thrills.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oxbow, Flambeau River, Wis., June 29.—Mixing plenty of swift paddling with an occasional swim, the Chicago Boy Scouts who are traveling down the Flambeau on THE TRIBUNE'S annual cruise refused to be intimidated by a hot sun today and made a real march down the stream from camp site to camp site.

Fast water, exciting rapids, the sight of a deer at the river's edge and a chance to get acquainted with several porcupines, made up a program that kept the boys busy every minute.

Although the Scouts can handle several musical instruments, they lack a bugler. However, the services of such a musician to wake the campers early in the morning were not needed today.

Woodpeckers Rouse Them.

Shortly after daylight the big timber in which the boys camped last night furnished several wilderness buglers. Five or six woodpeckers assembled above the pup tents in the tall hemlocks and did so much of that rattattat stuff they wakened everybody in camp. As this program occurred about 4 o'clock, it was neither popular nor appreciated by the Scouts who were tucked under their mosquito nettings and quite willing to sleep a little longer.

For boys in this Scout cruise who never have visited the north country the porcupines are providing considerable amusement. Paddling down the wild, uninhabited river, which for miles is devoid of houses, the boys see a number of "porkies" feeding right at the water's edge. When the Scouts come upon one of these slow moving but well armored animals, the crack of paddles on the water sends him up a tree, giving every appearance of being outraged by such a reception.

Last night two of the Scouts, who wanted to get a real close up view of the first porcupine they had ever seen, landed their canoe and drove the irritated animal into a spruce tree where he sat on exhibition for some time.

The Scouts are finding the trip is adding considerable to their knowledge of campcraft. For example, last night they learned for the first time the advantages of hemlock bark for cooking. As camp was pitched among some big specimens of this tree, the bark was plentiful and several of the boys collected an armful to see it demonstrated as fuel for cooking fires.

Shoot Big Rapids.

This morning in coming down stream from a camp site below the Crowley dam down to the big bend in the river known as the Oxbow, the Scouts met the Barnaby rapids headon and with full loads in the canoes for the big water thrill of the day. After enjoying several miles of fairly swift water and some fair pitches, as they call the drops in the river, the Scouts heard the roar of Barnaby rapids ahead of them. Here the river drops several feet and provided an exciting ride for the canoeists.

The Scouts handled their 16 footers in fine style, swinging them to follow the channel above the big drop and then taking the rocky chute and the white capped water right through the middle. The water at the bottom rolls up so high that several of the canoes shipped some of the Flambeau over their prows. This happened to our heavily loaded craft.

Scouts Want More.

When the Scouts followed the roar of the rapids was drowned by their delighted yells and no sooner was the Barnaby party over than they wanted more like it.

So far only one deer has been seen along the stream, although the Scouts have inspected numerous deer trails in the woods and also looked over some beaver houses. There are lots of deer in this wild timbered country but they have been very shy about showing themselves when some 18 husky voices are singing or yodeling from mid-stream.

FREAK BASEBALL HAPPENINGS
by Irving Vaughan

In the days when Frank Chance's Cub machine and the Pirates, led by Fred Clarke, were chronic pennant contenders, strange plays were looked for almost daily. And they usually occurred. Freak happenings are rarer today in big league ball because there is less tension. Players now take things leisurely.

In one of the Cub-Pirate battles at the old west side grounds, on which huge medical buildings now stand, the Cubs won by inadvertently permitting a man to bat out of turn. But the joy was short lived. President Tom Lynch later ordered the game replayed on the theory that the umpire, at the moment of its occurrence, should have called the error to the attention of the Pirate management.

The rules say that when a man bats out of turn the umpire shall take no action until the team in the field complains. If no complaint is filed before the next batter takes his turn the mistake cannot be penalized.

In the seventh inning a situation arose which warranted the use of a pinch hitter. Cotter, then a rookie catcher, was chosen to bat for the pitcher. What he did has nothing to do with the story. When the next inning started Cotter was retained in the game as catcher. Thus, because he had batted for the pitcher, Cotter's legal place in the batting order was ninth and the new pitcher should have batted eighth in the spot vacated by the original catcher.

The ninth inning rolled around and the Cubs put two men on the bases with two out. The eighth man in the batting attack should have come up next. But instead of the pitcher Cotter, forgetting where he had batted as pinch swinger, stepped up and singled. The two runners scored, putting the Cubs ahead and ending the ball game. The players promptly made their daily dash to the club house and the crowd departed.

The umpire behind the plate, knowing that Cotter had batted illegally, waited for a possible protest from the Pirates' manager. None was made; so the umpire walked off the field.

An instant later a Pittsburgh writer caught the attention of somebody on the club and informed him of what had happened. The umpire was immediately summoned to hear a protest. He admitted that he knew of the blunder and that he had waited at the plate for a possible howl from the injured team. They talked over the matter and the umpire decided that he would stick to the rule which says that all batting out of order plays require a complaint. Otherwise the umpire shall not notice them.

President Lynch, himself a former umpire, when passing on the formal protest decided that the umpire had erred. Lynch's theory was that, so long as the illegal hit broke up the game and another batter could not appear, the umpire should have taken the initiative and ruled Cotter out as soon as he completed his illegal time at bat.

The ruling made by Lynch still is a matter of argument. Many authorities claim that the rule is plain and that a protest to the umpire in charge is necessary, no matter when the offense occurs. If the same play ever comes up again the probabilities are that the final decision would be opposite to that handed down by Lynch.

Come and Hear These Miracle-Working Words

Sox vs. Boston

Come and hear those life-saving words of the rasping umpire to the other side's man, "You're Out!" after he's torn around the bases to tie or win the game—and the game is yours.

Come out of your cells in the loop skyscrapers—blow the cobwebs and dust out of your brains—put "pep" into your muscles—send a regular man's red blood shooting through every vein of your body by jumping up with the thousands of other business men and cheering that "home run" over the fence.

Don't grind your life out by "sticking at" your nerve-racking work every minute of the day and every day in the week without a vacation or a rest—without a chance to let up. Come out today and every day all summer through and inhale the energising, revitalising atmosphere of the ball grounds.

If it's speed and action you want, you'll get it here. If it's accuracy, watch the Sox play ball—if it's "teamwork," a "love of the game," "something to talk about," and a clear, clean-cut, live, energetic, active brain that will get the dollars while you are on the job, watch the ball game—SEE THE SOX—THEY'RE THERE, BOY!

Baseball, the great American game that gives you that "grand and glorio-o-u-u-s feeling."

Torrid Wave Fails to Slow King, Hudkins

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Harry Krakow, better known as King Levinsky, will be on the spot tomorrow night at Mills stadium. Ace Hudkins, who is giving away more than ten pounds to his young opponent in his first engagement in the heavyweight ranks, is the man who has put the King there.

Incidentally, Jim Mullen, who has been promoting fights twice as long as Hudkins has been fighting and then some, is enjoying the King's dilemma. The more uncertain the King's status, the more certain Mullen is that the bout will show a profit, and Mullen, who deals in profit and loss, thinks it's about time for a profit.

Levinsky became known when he stopped Leo Lomski last September. Since then, the King has won and lost, but his defeats generally can be excused on the basis that he is not a boxer and that he was outpointed by boys who outjabbed him.

Now comes Hudkins. Ace is, or was until his temporary retirement, a fighter. He may drop Levinsky to the floor, and if he does, the King soon may be back at the small fight clubs going on for $50 or whatever he can get. Consider this and then compare it to his maximum purse, a matter of $17,000.

Buck Everett and Ed Wills, who are signed for six rounds, top the card tonight at the Congress stadium, 2233 Milwaukee avenue. Wills recently returned from Europe, where he campaigned with Rene De Vos. He has won his last nine fights.

Bud Saltis and Joe Mendoza, middleweights, also are signed for six rounds. There will be five sixes and one four on the card.

Eight amateur bouts have been arranged by Johnny Coulon for his weekly show at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. Scotty Sylvano, Golden Gloves intercity lightweight champion, will meet Ralph Lubansky of Hyde Park. Lubansky has scored 18 knockouts in 27 bouts.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Cleveland, O., June 29.—[Special.]—Jack Harris and Louis Thalheimer, representing Chicago, won the doubles championship in the national intercity tennis tournament here today. They defeated Clifford Marsh and Jack Castle of Buffalo, N. Y., 6-4, 6-3, 6-1 in the finals.

Golfers Vote for Old Ball at Big Oaks

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Other golf news on page 22.]

The new golf ball suffered one of its biggest defeats in the poll being taken by THE TRIBUNE in conjunction with the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association when the results of the vote at the Big Oaks course were made known yesterday. Twenty-five players at Big Oaks, which is one of the members of the daily fee association, favor the return of the ball discarded by the United States Golf association the first of the year. Only two wished to retain the ball which supplanted it.

The new ball had rallied considerably in a recent ballot at the Pipe o' Peace course, nearly matching the old ball's support among the members there, but the Big Oaks returns added a goodly margin to the old ball's advantage in the votes taken thus far. The ballots are now being taken only at the daily fee courses, where voting blanks may be obtained, but a poll of private courses and the public links will follow shortly.

Like to Putt New Ball.

The present ball still has some good points in the estimation of the voters, for many of them admit they like the approach shot or putt with the new ball, although they still want the old one back.

This was demonstrated in the Big Oaks poll, wherein seven stated they liked the shot to the green with the new ball against twenty, who did not, and six others prefer to putt with the new one, as opposed to 21 who don't. This peculiarity has been apparent at every course interested in the poll, and in some instances the vote has shown a majority for those who like the new ball's approach or putt, even while they vote for the return of the old one for general use.

Fill Out Every Blank.

A number of votes cast in the poll have been canceled because they were not completely filled out. The blank contains the following statements, each of which should be answered:

1. My average score is .....
2. My average drive with the new ball is ..... yards.
3. My average drive with the old ball was ..... yards.
4. I [like] or [do not like] the shot to the green with the new ball.
5. I [like] or [do not like] to putt with the new ball.
6. I [would like] or [would not like] to see the old ball come back.

The majority of the average scores reported in the poll range from 90 to 100, while the drives vary from 175 to 200 yards with the new ball not carrying as far as the discarded type.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

OUTLOOK IMPROVING.

Cleveland, O., June 29.—[Special.]—Interest is steaming up in the world heavyweight championship battle between Max Schmeling and W. L. Stribling at Municipal stadium next Friday night. At least that is the view expressed by the promoters. They base their view on increased ticket sales as well as the presence of newspapermen from all over the country, a delegation larger than for most title affairs, perhaps owing to the location in this midwest.

There is considerable difference of opinion as to what the bout must draw for the Garden corporation to break even. The crown figures are $300,000, and they say a gate of $600,000 is assured by the advance sale. Outsiders, from known expenses, figure the gate must be $450,000 at least before any profit accrues. Likewise, they are skeptical of estimates until the money is actually in the till.

Recent strength of the stock market is expected to augment sale of $25 seats. A Chicagoan among the advance guard has received several telegraphic requests from La Salle street friends to buy them choice tickets, whereas previously they had told him "they could not afford it."

Civic Pride.

Into the edge of one mirror in our hotel room is inserted a printed notice reading: "Lock your door. Neighboring cities report sneak thieves. Well, just as a measure of precaution last naughty sneak thieves from neighboring cities do invade Cleveland, we lock our door at all times.

Keeping Awake.

There's one custom in the hotel where we stop of which we approve. Because of the fanning bees usual to the presence of so many newspaper writers, retiring hours are late. So you put in a call for a certain hour of the morning. The call is made. Then, about two minutes later, another operator inquires "Were you called?" You were. In another ten minutes comes the voice of the first operator, asking in dulcet tones, "Are you still awake?" Isn't that something?

* *

Wife Coming.

The only members of the Stribling family not on the scene are the boxer's wife, his son W. L. III., 4 years old, and a daughter, 2½ years old. Mrs. Stribling was here with the boy when W. L. began training but returned to their Macon home that her husband might prepare for his most important pugilistic engagement without distracting thought of his family. She had not planned to return until after the battle. Now she has decided to return on the night of the contest but will not meet the challenger until she greets him afterward as champion or as defeated challenger.

LONDOS DEFEATS STEELE BEFORE CROWD OF 40,000

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Jim Londos of Greece, recognized in some states as heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Ray Steele of Glendale, Cal., at the Yankee stadium tonight before a crowd estimated at 40,000. Londos used a double arm lock to throw Steele in one hour 9 minutes 12 seconds.

Shields, Wood in Semi-Finals at Wimbledon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—Victory for a pair of Americans in the quarter finals of the men's singles championship at Wimbledon today sidetracked for another year the hopes for an all British final.

The French threat had been partly squelched by the first round defeat of Henri Cochet and the elimination of Christian Boussus. Today the United States and Great Britain opened a three cornered fight to determine who would dominate three of the next four matches.

Frank Shields defeated Bunny Austin, British star, and Syd Wood whipped G. O. Hughes. Fred Perry, third British Davis cup player in the fifth round, trounced Johnny Van Ryn in three straight sets, and Jean Borotra carried France into the semi-finals in a four set win over Jiro Satoh of Japan. Wood meets Perry and Shields is confronted with the bounding Basque.

Shields beat Austin 6-3, 2-6, 5-7, 7-5 and 6-1 before a partisan crowd which was obviously a drag on his game in critical stages of the match.

Wood underrated Hughes. Aces in the first set made him overconfident and he started rushing the net. Wood's superior service and backhand was more than the Briton could master. The score was 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

Perry's service and mastery at the net beat Van Ryn. His passing strokes killed Van Ryn's net game, and his smashes ruined his lobs. The Yankee fought on even terms for a while in the second set, but Perry fought off the rally, winning, 6-4, 8-6, and 7-5.

George Lott and Mrs. Harper won the mixed doubles in 6-1, 6-3, and 6-0 from C. G. Frames and Fraulein Goldschmidt.

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—James Butler's first colorbearer of the year, aside from Questionnaire, made his appearance at Aqueduct today and turned in such a winning performance that he must be regarded as a formidable contender in the approaching Empire City handicaps and perhaps other specials. The horse was Stormy Dawn, a Butler homebred by Vulcain-Dawn Star, which won the Cirrus handicap by five lengths.

Raymond Workman was in the saddle and had little to do but keep Stormy Dawn about his business. Even under 126 pounds the five year old Butler horse finished the seven furlongs in 1:26, and he was not half trying. Billour, Eddie Ahearn, and Peake were the only ones to contest Stormy Dawn's seasonal debut, and they finished in the order named.

When word got around that E. J. Bennett, Mr. Butler's new trainer, had Stormy Dawn ready for a race there was steady support for Stormy Dawn, and he closed favorite at 7 to 5.

The running proved Stormy Dawn as tough a horse as he was last year when he was put to the test of being a work mate for Questionnaire. Billour made the early pace, with Eddie Ahearn close up for the first furlong. Stormy Dawn was permitted to race along easily until the bend. There Workman clucked to him and he easily passed Billour.

HISTORY REPEATS AS HERTZ ENTRY WINS FIRST RACE

Folks at Arlington rubbed their eyes, wondering if they had been dreaming for a year as the opening race of the season got under way yesterday. Just a year ago they watched a yellow and black jacket flying out in front as the Arlington season opened. And yesterday they again saw the same yellow and black jacket flying around in front of more than a dozen very stylish 2 year olds.

A year ago it was Outbound, which carried the yellow and black silks of Mrs. John Hertz to victory. Yesterday it was Pair by Pair carrying the jacket of Mrs. Hertz to the first triumph of the season.

Do you know how Pair by Pair got his name? Well, he's a son of Noah and didn't the folks scramble into the ark pair by pair?

Three of the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney horses, which have been performing brilliantly in Canada, arrived at Arlington yesterday and joined the main division of the stable, just arrived from New York. The horses were Bubble and The Bull, two year olds, and Magnifico, a 3 year old, which is to start in the Stars and Stripes handicap Saturday.

Arthur B. Hancock, who is serving as an honorary steward for the first ten days with Christopher Fitzgerald and George Brown Jr., is one of the most successful producers of thoroughbreds in America. From his Claiborne and Ellerslie studs of Kentucky and Virginia have come a bunch of such successful horses as St. James [daddy of Jamestown], Blazes Nimba, Cleopatra, Careful, Embroidery, etc. He markets from 50 to 125 horses annually at Saratoga. From the coming sales he has cataloged about 75. Admiral Cary T. Grayson, a producer of Virginia, and Maj. Louis A. Beard, manager of the racing and breeding interests of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and his aunt, Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, will each serve ten days after Hancock's term.

Those 3 year old fillies fighting for the championship will not lose any time here. Risque, generally rated as the best in the east, goes against Cousin Jo, our best western 3 year old filly, in the Chattanooga purse this afternoon. Neither may win, for Molasses Jane and Lady Capulet, two very good and older sprinters, are to compete against them.

Spinach, winner of last season's renewals of the Huron, Potomac, and Havre de Grace handicaps, will try his luck tomorrow in a dash of six furlongs unless Clyde Phillips, trainer of the Ziegler stable, changes his mind. If his performance is satisfactory in that race he will start Saturday in the Stars and Stripes.

Tassel's breakdown in the steeplechase this afternoon was not unexpected. The daughter of Berrildon and Stake and Cap, winner of an Appleton Memorial [at Belmont Park] as far back as 1925, when she was 5, had been away from racing for many seasons. Still she was favored by Mrs. Ambrose Clark over Contrition, which stood up and defeated the 11 year old Autumn Bells. Contrition had won at Belmont Park. Today's was Autumn Bells' first attempt since last fall.

SOX EARLY LEAD WHIPS SENATORS IN FINAL, 9 TO 7

scored. Kerr also hit safely to center. Blue then singled to right for his third straight hit, Frasier scoring and Kerr taking third. Reynolds aimed a grass cutter at short and Cronin let it slip under his hands, Kerr scoring and Blue going to third. Blue scored and Reynolds dashed to third on Fonseca's single. Fonseca hiked down to second on Watwood's foul close to the stand and followed Reynolds home on Cissell's single. Jeff, who started the rally, then ended it by grounding out.

The Senators came through with three hits in the seventh, scoring one run. Kuhel opened with a single to center and Hargrave struck out. Harry Rice batted for Crowder and looped a single into left. Myer singled and Kuhel scored. Sam Rice was tossed out by Cissell and Manush slapped a bad looking liner to right but, happily, it was right into Reynolds' hands. Two more counted in the eighth on West's single, a pass to Hayes and Hargrave's double.

Cronin Hits Homer.

More of Frasier's good lead disappeared in the ninth. Myer opened with a hit, his fourth of the day. Joe Judge, making his first appearance since the extraction of his appendix, batted for Hadley, but couldn't produce. Then Manush, who hadn't made a hit all day, got even with Frasier by cracking him on the knee with a drive. It bounced toward Kerr, who threw out the runner. After making sure the blow hadn't removed his leg, Frasier resumed work and Cronin hit the ball into the left field seats. West then flied to Reynolds to close the show.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Magic Name

WOMAN BURIED IN POTTER'S FIELD FOUND OF WEALTHY FAMILY

A middle aged woman who was buried in potter's field May 14 was identified through a photograph yesterday as Mrs. Nell Cepelka, a well educated Austrian woman believed to have been of a wealthy family. Her body was taken from the lake near the Navy pier on April 23.

Penniless when she died and for the last year or more in ill health and almost destitute circumstances, Mrs. Cepelka three years ago is thought to have inherited approximately $5,000 from a relative in Austria. She could not obtain the fund, however, or any part of it, as she had not the cash necessary to undertake certain legal action, it was said.

Miss Isabel Page of the Hyde Park hotel, 1511 East 51st street, who made the identification at the missing persons bureau when she could not locate Mrs. Cepelka, told the story of the bequest. Mrs. Cepelka was her seamstress.

The seamstress, who was between 55 and 60 years old, was too proud to call upon any of her relatives in Austria or New York, persons of means, according to Miss Page.

POLICE ARREST PAVELY THREAT LETTER SUSPECT

Edward Walls, 35 years old, sought by police since Friday as the man who sent a threatening letter to Andreas Pavely, world famous dancer, shortly before the latter leaped 16 floors to his death at the McCormick hotel, was arrested yesterday as he called for mail at the central postoffice.

Chicago avenue policemen found in his pockets a memorandum book which they said contained handwriting similar to that used in the letter which was sent to Pavley threatening to make a scandalous exposure unless $100 was paid the dancer by yesterday.

Funeral services for the dancer will be held this morning at 11 o'clock from the chapel at 2701 North Clark street. Interment will be at Graceland cemetery.

Dr. Stanley von Martinitz, Veteran Physician, Is Dead

Dr. Stanley Von Martinitz, 86 years old, died yesterday morning in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Kurt Koester, 2249 North Spaulding avenue, after a short illness. Dr. Von Martinitz was a practicing physician in Cedar Rapids, Ia., for more than fifty years. He retired ten years ago and came to Chicago to live. He is survived by three sons and four daughters. Funeral services will be held tomorrow and interment will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

Four Doctors May Face Ban for Work at "Cancer Clinic"

Four Chicago physicians stand in danger of losing their medical licenses as a result of alleged professional association with Lester Tilton, self-styled cancer healer of Clinton, Ia., who conducted a clinic at the Fellician convent, 3800 Peterson avenue, until Cardinal Mundelein banned him from the institution last February.

While the state's attorney's office yesterday was completing preparation of one of the numerous complaints against Tilton for presentation in Felony court this morning, J. E. Edwards, chief of the state department of registration and education, announced he would cite Tilton's alleged associates before the medical advisory board to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

Name Physicians Under Fire.

The physicians under fire are Dr. C. Judson Spruce, 321 North Central avenue; Dr. Charles Loffler, 25 East Washington street; Dr. Otto Holinger, 4632 North Rockwell street, and Dr. Joseph T. Duffy, 5755 North Clark street. Drs. Holinger and Duffy are members in good standing of the American Medical, Chicago Medical and Illinois Medical societies.

Their professional connections not withstanding, Drs. Duffy and Holinger jeopardized their right to practice when, for many months, they carried on professional association with the so-called cancer clinic which Tilton was conducting, Mr. Edwards maintains.

The clinic was abolished and Tilton banned from the convent last February when a committee of physicians appointed by Cardinal Mundelein investigated his cancer treatment and declared it quackery. Tilton has since been arrested on warrants charging the practice of medicine without a license and operating a confidence game, and is at liberty under a $5,000 bond.

Cite Cause for Action.

As for Drs. Duffy, Holinger, Loffler, and Spruce, they will face the medical board under paragraph 10 of section 16 of the medical practice act. The paragraph declares:

"That professional connection with another for the illegal practice by another of the treatment of human ailments shall be deemed sufficient cause for revocation or suspension of the medical license."

"The theory of the law in this province," Mr. Edwards explained, "is that any physician who consults a quack demonstrates by that very act that he has exhausted his own knowledge and holds the quack's skill superior to his own."

Receipts Show Employment.

Dr. Loffler was also associated with the convent clinic, Mr. Edwards declared, but less regularly than Drs. Duffy and Holinger. In the case of Dr. Spruce, the department of registration has receipts showing he was in Tilton's employ at a salary of $600 a month for many months while Tilton was operating a clinic at the Great Northern hotel prior to his contact with the convent, according to Mr. Edwards.

"Whether we win or lose in the criminal case against Tilton, we have sufficient evidence against these four doctors to cite them before the medical board," Mr. Edwards declared. "We expect to have speedy disposition of these cases there."

Meanwhile the case against Tilton himself remained in the state's attorney's office. Fifteen complainants, including several cancer victims who were saved by surgery and relatives of other Tilton patients who did not survive, came to the Criminal court on grand jury subpoenas, only to be told that grand jury action would be deferred.

Wants Test in Court.

"I want to see a test of the merits of the charges in court," said State's Attorney Swanson. "There'll be no use getting a huge batch of indictments if one case won't stand up alone."

The test, Mr. Swanson thought, would be provided immediately, as Tilton is due to go to trial in Felony court this morning on the charges contained in the warrant on which he was arrested. An extended delay was in prospect here, also, it appeared, for Tilton's lawyer, Stuart Krohn, announced he would demand a jury trial, necessitating a transfer to another court.

"I'm not revealing my client's defense," said Mr. Krohn, "but I will state it as my belief that my client's cure works in 90 out of 100 cases where there is no outside interference. We'll have plenty of witnesses in court to back up this claim."

NORTHERN TRUST EXECUTOR FOR BARRETT ESTATE

The Northern Trust company has been qualified by Probate Judge Henry Horner as executor of the estate of Mrs. Frances M. Barrett, it was announced yesterday by Andrew R. Sherriff, attorney for the company.

In a previous hearing Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the judge, gave the opinion that the trust company was not qualified as an executor because William S. Miller, one of its vice presidents, had signed a codicil to the will as a witness. Judge Horner, sitting en banc with his assistant, held on Saturday that Miller's action did not affect the original will or disqualify the trust company as executor.

Mrs. Barrett left an estate estimated to be worth $600,000 in trust, principally for the benefit of Trinity Episcopal church, 26th street and Michigan avenue.

In 1916, after a service of 18 years, he was appointed to the pastorate of the then newly formed parish of St. Dorothy church on the south side. Eight years later he was made pastor of Our Lady of Solace church.

He is a brother of the Rev. James M. Scanlan, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes parish, and of Miss Catherine Scanlan, Mrs. Martha Flanley, and Mrs. Annie Dolan. A solemn high mass will be sung Thursday and interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Killer Flees Michigan City Prison; Hunted by Posse

An armed possé last night was scouring the railroad yards of Michigan City, Ind., in the belief that Ernest Payton, 35 years old, serving a life sentence for murder at the Indiana state prison, from which he escaped yesterday afternoon, was in hiding there preparatory to riding a freight train back to Terre Haute. Payton escaped from an armed guard by ducking between a row of parked automobiles in front of the main entrance of the prison. The guard was unable to fire for fear of hitting a passerby.

CHICAGO STOCKS MEET REVERSAL; TRADING QUIET

Art Metal Shares Advance Against Trend.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Quiet settled over the securities markets yesterday as mild reactionary tendencies developed in the wake of last week's sharp advance. The reverse was not unexpected and in some quarters had been looked for earlier. The street regarded the moderate setback as a natural consequence of Saturday's outburst of enthusiasm and found encouragement in the decline in trading attendant upon the change in trend.

On the Chicago exchange an even 100,000 shares of stock changed hands. Net losses in the shares which bulged sharply last week were held to a point or so. Bendix, which had experienced the sharpest run up in the late dealings last week, was typical of the market. The issue sold off slightly more than a point to 21¾.

Manufactures Novelties.

An exception to the trend was provided by Art Metal common stock. The trade in the issue was light, representing only a few odd lot transactions and the price was bid up to 6¼ from its previous quotations below 5. The company, Art Metal Works, Inc., is engaged in the manufacture of novelties of various types, including metal ornaments and toys as well as ecclesiastical statuary.

The 1931 year book of the Chicago exchange which will be issued today contains an analysis of the stocks listed, showing a broad diversification of shares of major industries. Fifteen major lines are represented as well as specialities and building corporations.

The exchange's chief claim as an important securities market still rests with its position as trading place for utility securities, the analysis shows. There are 119 public utilities securities listed on the exchange having outstanding more than 114,000,000 shares and representing a market value of more than $4,500,000,000 as of June 1, 1931. This, according to the year book, is the largest list of securities of the same class on any stock exchange in the world and constitutes 23 per cent of the total number of issues listed on the exchange.

Cites Most Active Groups.

For the six months ending May 31, the report points out, as measured by the volume of shares traded in the utility group was the most active, with the automotive group a close second. The finance group is third and the amusement and merchandise groups next in line.

Reviewing the last year the report points to the establishment of the Chicago Stock Clearing corporation as the most important step taken during the period. From the point of volume of business done the exchange is said to make a better comparative showing with 1926 and 1929 last year than any other major exchange.

TIME PAYMENTS 'SAFE' FORM OF MERCHANDISING

Delinquencies Seen Less in 1931.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Whatever the arguments both in favor and in condemnation of installment selling of merchandise, the experience of the last year or two goes that it is a safe form of merchandising. Purchasers of goods on the partial payment plan generally make good their contracts. Whether they complete their payments at the expense of other living costs is another and debatable matter.

The volume of installment sales in 1931 has been only slightly lower than in 1930, according to a review by Dominick & Dominick. Moreover, reports from leading finance companies indicate that the percentage of delinquencies and repossessions in the early part of this year actually declined, compared with the corresponding period of 1930.

About 12 Per Cent of Total Sales.

"It has become evident that the belief that total installment purchases would increase to levels out of all proportion to the national income was unfounded," the review continues. "The experience of the large finance companies have shown that installment sales are influenced by the same factors that govern retail sales in general. During periods of prosperity they increase, and during times of depression they diminish.

"At all times, the ratio of installment sales seems to remain fairly constant, with such purchases representing about 12 per cent of total retail purchases. The possible effects of installment selling on general business conditions were apparently overestimated by the earlier critics of the system. Actually, changes in the volume of installment sales appear to be the results of changes in underlying conditions and not causes. The soundness of installment credits has been amply demonstrated during the last year and a half."

Banks to Make Report.

Within the next week the banks of the country will make their mid-year reports. Naturally, the banks wish to make as strong a showing as possible and the weekly statement on the position of reporting member banks of the federal reserve system, issued yesterday by the reserve board, reports that the usual "window dressing" is being done.

During the week ended last Wednesday, these banks sold $43,000,000 of securities, although they bought $1,000,000 of government obligations. The strength of the stock market enabled the banks to accomplish moderate liquidation without disturbing the market. At the same time, these banks reduced their loans on securities by $7,000,000 and they also liquidated $6,000,000 of commercial loans. These operations strengthened the cash position of the banks and they probably will be carried further by the time the calls for reports on condition are issued.

New Air-Rail Service.

Combination air-rail service between eastern seaboard cities and Chicago and points west of Cleveland in connection with the New York Central line was announced yesterday by the Century Air Lines, Inc.

Through the reciprocal arrangement, which goes into effect at once, travel time between New York and Chicago is reduced to 16½ hours, a saving of 9 hours and 15 minutes as compared with all-rail schedules. The combination air-rail rates, it was announced, are comparable with the all-rail fare.

Inauguration of the arrangement makes it possible for travelers from New York to leave the rails at Cleveland and continue by air to Toledo, Detroit, South Bend, Ind., Chicago, Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis at a saving of time increasing with the distance. From west to east the passenger will reverse this procedure, boarding a plane at any of the six connecting cities and transferring to rail at Cleveland.

Western Newspapers Are Alert to Color Printing

BY SCRUTATOR.

Not long after the turn of the century newspaper publishers began experimenting with the use of color in their regular daily editions.

About all that these early attempts accomplished was to demonstrate that it was mechanically possible to print a daily newspaper with more than one color of ink. There was no active demand for color from advertisers, and publishers realized that color for regular use on ordinary presses was not to be had without expensive mechanical alterations. No one appeared to champion the cause of color and lead it to popular acceptance.

In the meantime color was making conquests in other fields. Sales of color advertising in magazines rose from less than $28,000,000 in 1919 to more than $83,000,000 in 1929.

Increases Sales Appeal.

Finding that color in merchandise increased its sales appeal companies used bright hues in their window displays, in posters, and in the goods itself and it wrappings. Customers bought more readily those products that were attractively colored and the people who produced them became aware that color had an economic as well as aesthetic value.

In 1923 THE TRIBUNE took the lead in promoting two color run of paper advertisements. In the following year 14 such pages were sold. In 1930, in the face of reduced business activity, the number of color pages increased to 32, and to date in 1931 42 have been published.

These results have stimulated nation-wide interest among publishers. Advertisers who had tried color in THE TRIBUNE demanded it in newspapers elsewhere. The result has been that many newspapers that had been experimenting became immediately sold on the new product and adopted it. Others that had not tried it were converted. Color came definitely into the daily paper.

Replies to a questionnaire recently sent out by THE TRIBUNE Business Survey to publishers throughout the United States and Canada show that out of 901 newspapers responding 130 used color in regular run-of-paper editions, and that more than 33 per cent of them have adopted it since 1928.

Each time a color page is printed by THE TRIBUNE one more press unit is used and one additional man is added to each crew. This amounts to nine men per run. More labor is required to prepare the presses. Thus the advent of color into newspaper offices throughout the country, in addition to stimulating sales and thereby increasing general business activity, directly creates more employment in the printing trades. It necessitates the building of special color units for presses, which also requires additional labor.

Western newspapers have been quicker to seize upon the new development than those in the east. The Minneapolis Journal has done some noteworthy work in printing full page advertisements in three colors. The Minneapolis Star is likewise active.

The Spokane Spokesman-Review printed its Christmas edition last year in three colors. The Lincoln [Neb.] State Journal has accomplised some artistic effects using yellow, red, and blue with black by employing reversible units with color attachments.

Uses Four Colors.

Down in Jacksonville, Fla., the Times-Union has put out pleasing combinations, using four colors of ink. The Hollywood [Cal.] News uses three colors successfully.

Smaller cities nearby have taken it up. These include the Janesville Gazette, Kewanee Star-Courier, Champaign News-Gazette, Peoria Transcript, and Benton Harbor News-Palladium.

The Des Moines Register, Omaha World-Herald, Rocky Mountain News, and Seattle Daily Times have blossomed into various hues.

At least 16 Canadian papers and two in Hawaii have gone into color. Down east progress has been slower, but some papers have taken it up. The Erie Dispatch is equipped to print three additional colors. The Troy [N. Y.] Times and Wilkesbarre Times-Leader have each appeared in two colors.

U. S. Finance Rainbow Fades as Treasury Deficit Rises

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—A financial rainbow that lasted ten years faded rapidly tonight for the richest government in the world.

Despite a half billion dollars in ready cash, the treasury reached the eve of the last day of the 1931 fiscal year with expenditures apparently topping collections by more than $800,000,000. The last year to close with a deficit was more than a decade ago.

Today's treasury statement, issued for the close of business June 26, showed a deficit of $868,278,858. Receipts for the year were $3,298,833,366 and expenditures $4,167,112,224. The net balance in the general fund was $502,438,034.

Whether any of the cash balance on hand would be applied to reducing the definit no official would say, but it has been the custom in the past to carry over a comfortable balance to meet expenditures until the Sept. 15 tax collections are received. Last year the balance carried over was $400,000,000, but then there was a surplus of $185,000,000.

Take Stock of Decrease.

As the last day of the year approached officials were able to take stock of the decrease in receipts and the increase in expenditures which brought about the deficit. On the receipt side of the ledger, customs taxes for the year had declined $110,000,000 to $374,000,000, while income taxes had dropped off $551,000,000 to $1,854,000,000 as compared with the preceding fiscal year.

Miscellaneous internal revenue dropped $60,000,000 to $564,000,000, a total decrease of $721,000,000 in the three chief items of government income.

Proceeds from the sale of surplus property dropped $13,000,000, Panama canal tolls fell off $1,000,000, payment by foreign governments on principal of their debts were $46,000,000 less, and income from various miscellaneous sources decreased $40,000,000 to $159,000,000.

Expenditures Increase.

On the other side of the ledger there was an increase in general expenditures of $221,000,000 to a total of $2,371,562,065. Chief among the important increases was the postal deficiency, which this year amounted to $133,579,676 as compared with $81,714,204 for the same period last year and the federal farm board, which this year has received $192,932,089 as compared with $137,567,057 last year.

RATIFY CENTRAL TRUST, REPUBLIC BANK COMBINE

Holders of more than two-thirds of the capital stocks of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic have ratified the plans for merging the banks into the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Officials of both banks announced last night that more than the amount of stock necessary to approve the consolidation now has been deposited and that arrangements for the actual physical merger of the banks now are being completed. The National Bank of the Republic will be moved into the present banking quarters of the Central Trust company at 208 South La Salle street within the next few weeks.

Directors of the West Highland State bank and the Auburn Park Trust and Savings bank, which closed on June 9, met in the office of State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday afternoon to discuss plans for reorganization. Following a study of the state bank examiner's report on the condition and assets of the bank, the directors of both institutions expressed the opinion that the loss, if any, to the depositors will be small after the final liquidation. Both bank are in the Bain chain. Deposits in the Auburn Park bank are $690,000 and in the West Highland about $1,000,000.

Around 1,200 depositors of the Albany Park National Bank and Trust company met last night in the Roosevelt High school, Kimball and Wilson avenues, to listen to reorganization plans for the institution. John J. Walsh, 39 South La Salle street, said that the audit had not been completed, as had been expected when the meeting was scheduled, and that definite plans must await its completion. Book value of assets, he said, was approximately $374,000 in excess of deposits. The liquidating value, however, has not yet been ascertained.

Trading in Raw Silk Sets New All Time High Record

New York, June 29.—(AP)—All previous records for volume of trades were broken Monday on the National Raw Silk exchange. A total of 5,730 bales changed hands, against a previous high total of 5,440. The volume of trading for the month so far brings June to second place, the volume being well in excess of 32,000 bales, exceeded only by January, when a total of 40,020 bales changed hands.

ASSERT PENNSYLVANIA GETS TRACKAGE RIGHTS ON NICKEL PLATE ROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29. — The long awaited report of George T. Slade as arbitrator of the demand of the Pennsylvania railroad for trackage rights on the Nickel Plate will be submitted tomorrow to executives of the eastern railroads who are engaged in completing a plan for their consolidation into four systems. The report will call for the allocation of these rights to the Pennsylvania, although on what terms remained undisclosed today.

The question of the Nickel Plate trackage rights has been in the hands of Mr. Slade since early spring. About a month ago he left on his vacation, and it was the understanding in railroad circles that he would not be called on for his report earlier than midsummer. However, a decision by the executives that earlier solution of the consolidation problem was desirable caused a change in plans with the result that Mr. Slade resumed work on his report.

Trackage rights south of Lake Erie have been among the objects for which the Pennsylvania railroad has striven since the project for an eastern consolidation was first discussed. At one time, the Pennsylvania proposed that it obtain these facilities from the New York Central, but these proposals never attained their object. In recent years the Pennsylvania has sought to obtain this concession from the Nickel Plate. At first the Nickel Plate showed the same opposition to the demand as did the New York Central, but in recent months the Nickel Plate has changed its attitude.

As it stands now, the Van Sweringen interests are willing to grant the Pennsylvania the disputed rights on their Nickel Plate in return for transfer of the Lehigh Valley by the Pennsylvania to their Chesapeake and Ohio Nickel Plate system. However, the New York Central has strenuously opposed such a transaction and will now give it consideration only in deference to the principle of arbitration.

The Yount-Lee Pipe Line company has been chartered, with chief executives of the Yount-Lee Oil company as incorporators. It is capitalized at $1,000,000 and will hold interest jointly with the Sun Pipe Line company in a $2,000,000 pipe line to be laid from East Texas to Beumont.

BANKS IN GARY AND BERWYN ARE FORCED TO CLOSE

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday closed the Twelfth Street State bank of Berwyn at the request of the board of directors, who held a special meeting Sunday night. At the last bank call deposits were $560,000. The capital is $100,000 and the surplus is $50,000.

The Gary Trust and Savings bank of Gary, Ind., was closed yesterday and its affairs were turned over to Thomas D. Barr, chief deputy state bank commissioner. The capital stock of the company is $100,000 and the deposits totaled $825,000.

The University State bank has declared its regular dividend of $3, payable July 1 to stock of record June 29. C. W. Hoff, president, states that the bank has increased its deposits by more than $200,000 during the last two weeks.

Canadian Pacific Ry. Shows Gain in Earnings

MONTREAL, QUE., June 29.—(AP)—The earnings of the Canadian Pacific railway for the month of May were $2,446,945, against $1,206,621 in May, 1930. The increase of $239,324 was the first since January.

The gain in net resulted from economies in operation. Gross earnings at $2,464,350 for the month were $2,932,000 below the corresponding month of 1930. Operating expenses were cut from $13,810,281 in May, 1930 to $10,000,000 in May this year.

For the five-month period ended with May, gross earnings were $58,000,000, a decline of $11,148,054.

Ten Years Ago in Finance

Some idea of the financial needs of the railroads was given when a senate investigation committee was informed that $561,000,000 worth of railroad securities, including $411,000,000 worth of bonds, has been issued with the approval of the interstate commerce commission within the past year.

The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee road earned $433,011 applicable to stock last year as compared with $431,839 in 1919.

Total loadings of the Santa Fé railroad for the week were 26,005 cars, compared with 24,660 for the previous week and 28,935 for the same week last year.

Call money advances to six per cent in the New York Stock Exchange. Stocks continue to advance irregularly. U. S. Steel rises to 75.

No change either for the better or worse is indicated in the midweek reviews of the iron and steel trade. The Iron Age says adjustments of wages in the industry tend to keep step with changes in prices. Operations are estimated at 15 to 25 per cent of capacity for independents and 30 per cent for U. S. Steel corporation.

Moderate supplies, extremely hot weather and narrow demand formed the combination that enabled buyers to slash quotations of hogs and lambs again yesterday. The latter dropped to the lowest levels in about 17 years and show losses of $2.50@2.75, compared with the high point early in June.

Cattle receipts were unusually small, but salesmen were hard pressed to hold the market in line with last week's close. High temperatures have cut the demand for almost all classes of meats, particularly fresh meats.

Unevenness in hogs ranged from steady to 25c lower, best lightweights holding almost steady at the opening. The top prices showed only 5c loss at $7.45, while the general average came down 15c at $6.30, although many loads of hogs exceeding 300 lbs in weight, and packing sows showed 25@35c loss at the finish, the low point of the day.

About 10,000 were still in the pens, many almost without bids. The range of prices reached a new wide point, the spread between common rough "packers" and the extreme top sorted light, amounting to $3.35, against $2.70 a week ago and $2.20 two weeks ago. Fancy 170@200 lb. averages topped the market, while prime 400 lb butchers were sold later at $5.25 and odd head of extremely heavy sows down to $4.10.

Summer Hogs Bid $7.50.

Lightweight hogs for delivery during July, August, and September carried bids of $7.50 on the futures market yesterday, but the lowest offer to sell was $8.00. Mediums and heavy for September delivery were also bid $7.50 and offered at $8.00. On the "to arrive" market lightweights for today's delivery were bid $7.25.

Cattle receipts yesterday were smallest for Monday since March. The total at Chicago at 12,000, compared with 20,636 a week ago and with 20,724 two weeks ago. Demand was lacking, however, and prices were largely in line with the close of last week. A few fancy yearlings showed slight gains, but weakness later offset the strength at the opening. Outlet for beef has been narrow since the heat wave started, and all dealers report a good carryover.

There is an accumulation of big carcasses on the wholesale trade and the market is in need of light supplies if prices are to hold steady. Choice 905@1,015 lb yearling steers topped the list at $8.25 yesterday, and 1,237 lb averages brought $8.00, top for medium weights.

Oregon Lambs at $7.75.

Lambs from Oregon ranges headed the price list yesterday when they sold at $7.75, the top for the day, which was also the lowest price for this time of the year since about 1914. Losses of 25@50c were general in the lamb market, sorted strong weight natives going around $7.50, with one lot to a city butcher at $7.75. Supplies cleared quickly after the lower price basis had been established and some strength was noted at the finish.

According to reports there is a good demand for lamb from well finished stock on the wholesale market, but plain carcasses which deteriorate quickly are hard to dispose of. Aged sheep were steady, while yearlings declined 25c. Supplies are moderate for this time of the year but yesterday's total at seven points was second smallest for Monday since last summer.

Jewel Tea Reports Sales; Reorganize Sales Dept.

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales for the four weeks ending June 13 of $1,031,723.53, as compared with $1,136,040.14 for parallel weeks in 1930, a decrease of 9.18 per cent. The average number of sales routes for parallel weeks in 1931 was 1,215 and in 1930, 1,242. Sales for the first twenty-four weeks of 1931 were $6,450,660.23, as compared with $7,341,979.95 for a like period in 1930, a decrease of 11.73 per cent. For these weeks the average number of routes in 1931 was 1,294, and in 1930, 1,229.

Jewel Tea company yesterday announced the reorganization of its sales personnel. Robert F. Walker has been named sales manager and will be named a director and vice president of the firm, it was announced. He succeeds J. C. Regan, resigned. Other new officers named are, C. W. Kaylor, assistant sales manager; Robert W. Muir, director of personnel; George Barrett, director of publications; J. F. Schlipper, Kansas City district sales manager. The shakeup was due to executive dissatisfaction with recent conduct of affairs, it was said. With the exception of Mr. Walker, who has been head of an advertising agency, all of the new appointees come from within the organization.

HEAT WAVE ADDS $400,000,000 TO CORN, OATS VALUE

Both Grains Register Important Gains.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Another day of sizzling weather over the corn and oats belt found a counterpart in the grain markets, with a material expansion in the general speculative interest, which yesterday swept the price of corn up 2@2¼c, and oats 2¼@2¾c over Saturday's finish to the highest level since April 1 on December corn and to the best figures since late in March on oats. Corn at the top showed an advance of 3¾@10¾c from the low figures of less than two weeks ago, while oats have advanced 6⅛@6¾c in about the same period.

December corn, which sold as low as 45½c on June 16, touched 55¾c yesterday and came within ⅝c of the best figure of the season, while December oats at 32¾c were within ⅜c of the outside price of the season. The hot wave which has prevailed for as long as 10 days in some sections of the belt has added around $400,000,000 to the theoretical value of the two crops.

Discount Damage Claims.

Despite the dramatic touch given to the hot weather reports by the sensational advance in the corn market, claims of damage to the latter grain have been few and far between, and numerous messages were received by Board of Trade houses claiming that the heat so far had simply forced the crop to grow 24 hours per day, and that its growth was now somewhat ahead of normal for this season. It was pointed out that corn is a heat and moisture loving plant, and good rains fell over a large part of the belt before the temperatures became extreme.

Apprehension that weather conditions would turn out to be like they were in 1930 in the Ohio valley, when the crop was burnt up by continued heat and drought, has been the basis for the recent buying, according to a number of operators, and it was pointed out that recent government reports had shown a pronounced lack of subsoil moisture over a large area, especially in Iowa. Local crop experts expressed the belief that the crop had not been damaged to any appreciable extent, although rains would be very beneficial within a few days. The critical period of growth comes when corn is in the tassel, and the plant is not that far along in the states of largest production.

Largest in Months.

Trading in corn futures during the day was the largest in months, with commission houses and local professionals aggressive buyers early, but the extreme advance brought in heavy selling by operators who bought lower down, and sufficient pressure was put on the market to cause a reaction of around 1¼c from the top, with the finish well toward the bottom, with net gains of ¼@1c, the July showing the least advance. The latter, was regarded as having been sold by a leading local long and finished at 61½c, while September was 60¾ to 60¾c, and December, 54⅞ to 54½c.

Early oats have been caught in the milk over part of the belt and much light weight grain is anticipated when harvesting starts, but it is regarded as too early to estimate definitely the loss in bushels, according to numerous messages received from various parts of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. In some sections even the early oats have escaped damage so far, but the forecast for continued hot and dry over the belt swept aside opposition from those who thought there had been sufficient advance until the damage could be determined, and the close was 1¼@1¾c higher. July oats closed at 31¾c; September, 31 to 31¼c, and December, 32¾c.

Prove Good Sellers.

Houses with northwestern connections, who were buyers of oat futures recently, were good sellers during the day. Fluctuations were extremely rapid at times, and both corn and oats are expected to be influenced largely by weather conditions.

Prospects that the federal farm board would modify its policy on its method of handling its immense holding of old wheat brought in sufficient buying of futures early to lift prices 1⅝@2c over Saturday's finish, with prices the highest since the middle of May, but hedging pressure and also selling attributed to government agencies, with receipts of around 7,000,000 bu new grain at the various markets, caused a reaction from the best figures and the close was only ⅝@⅞c higher. July finished at 58 to 58¾c; September, 59¾c, and December, 64⅝ to 64¾c.

Lower in Kansas City.

The Kansas City wheat market showed independent action and closed ⅝c lower at 49¼c, being forced to absorb heavy hedging sales, especially as ordinary No. 2 hard winter was quoted at July price, losing the premium which has prevailed for some time past. The basis for cash wheat at the gulf was easier at 1¼@1¾c under Chicago September, with practically no demand from Europe. Winnipeg was ⅛@⅝c higher for the day, with July closing at 62¾c, while Liverpool gained ⅜@⅝d, with July at 61¾c.

Rye was influenced mainly by the action of wheat and closed ⅛@¼c higher, with July 38⅝c; September, 41c, and December, 44¾c.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for North American wheat was distinctly disappointing and was confined to scattered loads of old crop hard winters and Manitobas, with little or no interest displayed in new hard winters at the gulf. Mesages from the seaboard intimated that the basis was easier at 1¼@1½c under Chicago September, although 200,000 bu were said to have been sold Saturday at ¼c under.

Chicago handlers sold 43,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, but no business was claimed in wheat or corn. There was 100,000 bu corn and 300,000 bu rye sold to go to store. Purchases to arrive were 16,000 bu corn and 30,000 bu new oats, with No. 2 white bringing September price to ¼c under. With the exception of a car of weevily No. 1 hard which sold at 63½c, there was no business in local sample wheat market, the bulk of the receipts going direct to mills and elevators. Kansas City quoted prices as unchanged to 1½c lower, with No. 1 hard 1@3c over July and ordinary No. 2 hard July price, with mills and shippers the best buyers, St. Louis was ½@1c lower on hard winter and unchanged on red, while Omaha was quoted as 1@2c lower.

Receipts of corn were the largest in some time and, with only a fair demand, the basis was ¼c lower. No. 1 mixed was ¼c over and white 1¼c over July, with No. 1 and No. 2 yellow ½c over the future. No. 2 mixed brought July price and white 1c over. No. 3 mixed ⅝c under, yellow July price to ¼c under, and white ½c over July. Demand for cash oats was only fair, with the basis ¼c lower. No. 2 white was ⅝@1c over and No. 3 white July to ¼c under. No. 2 rye was nominally 1c under to 4c over July.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

An impression prevails in the wheat trade that so long as the rush of new wheat is on and hedging sales are coming into the market in liberal volume, it will take a greatly increased buying power to absorb them, and at the same time hold prices around the present level. To advance them materially there will have to be a buying power, such as the trade has not seen in a long time, to overcome the handicap of the hedging pressure and the effect of selling that has been going on for several days of late, and attributed to the Farmers National Grain company.

Reports from Topeka, Kas., say that Vice President Curtis has urged the federal farm board to withhold the grain stabilization corporation's wheat from the market until the price advances from 85c to $1.00 in Chicago. Curtis forwarded his request to the farm board and to President Hoover, after a visit into northern central Kansas and after receiving hundreds of letters from wheat growers and others in southwestern Kansas.

Fred Uhlmann of the Uhlmann Grain company, who is considered one of the best informed men in the wheat trade throughout the world, referring to reports about the farm board being urged to hold its wheat off the market, said: "We believe that if the farm board does not choose to sell its wheat all elevators will be filled up within a short time. A statement is expected from the farm board not later than Wednesday as to what its intentions are. In the meantime, it does not matter what they do, there will be plenty of wheat for sale for some time even if they hold theirs. We have a statement about the Kansas crop that they might raise not only 200,000,000 bu, but 20,000,000 bu above that."

BOARD OF TRADE LEADERS MAKE WHEAT PROPOSAL

Two plans for disposal of the farm board's wheat are presented by leaders on the Board of Trade. One is to have President Hoover or Chairman Stone of the farm board announce that old wheat will be held at $1.00 a bushel, which, it is believed, will tend to check declining prices for new wheat in the southwest and eventually restore confidence in the wheat trade, which, the leaders say, will result in prices being maintained at a better level, and possibly work higher in the season, owing to poorer crop prospects for spring wheat in the American and Canadian northwest.

The other plan is to put the 200,000,000 bu of wheat on the market and sell it as fast as the trade can absorb it without depressing prices to any extent. One of the oldest men in the trade says that the only way to help the market is to liquidate the big holdings in the shortest possible time and clean up the whole affair, the sooner the better.

"Wheat is a perishable article," he says, "and the longer it is held the heavier is the loss. In years past millions of bushels held by individuals and joint account traders have been gradually disposed of, sometimes at a profit and other times at a loss, but the trade was not disturbed to any great extent."

RAILROAD NOTES

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad has decided not to renew the experimental 2-cent-a-mile fares put into effect on certain parts of its system. The schedule expires July 1. The cut-rate fares, officials of the road declared, have proved unremunerative.

Examiners of the interstate commerce commission have recommended the commission approve the application of the Texas & Pacific Northern railroad for authority to construct a line extending from Big Springs to Brownfield and from Lubbock Junction to Lubbock, Tex. About 328 miles of new line are involved and most of it will be in what was formerly known as the Stakes Plains area. The road is a subsidiary of the Texas & Pacific, which will own its capital stock when issued.

Canadian National has reduced its passenger trains 14 per cent since the first of 1931, according to Sir Henry Thornton, president. This eliminates about 3,000,000 passenger train miles annually, most of which was unprofitable branch-line operation.

George F. Weston has been appointed industrial commissioner of the Erie system, effective July 1, succeeding the late C. E. Ward.

World Wheat Committee Meets Second Week in July

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—The standing committee named to consider further the feasibility of reconvening the conference of wheat exporting nations will meet the second week in July, it was announced today. The object of the meeting, as outlined by the wheat conference last month, is to consider ways and means of interchanging authentic information concerning wheat and to endeavor to arrive at an agenda suitable for the adoption of exporting nations upon which a second wheat conference might be called.

COTTON PROFIT TAKING BREAKS PRICES SHARPLY

Profit taking was a factor in the cotton market yesterday, resulting in an irregularly lower range of prices, with the close around the inside level. Losses on active months in Chicago were 9@30 points; New Orleans, 32@37 points, and New York, 26@37 points. Liverpool closed 5@6 points net lower, with spot sales 5,000 bales. Spots in American markets were off 35 points in New York at 10.50c; New Orleans 30 points lower at 9.90c; Galveston, 10.50c, and Houston, 9.90c.

The break in stocks, combined with reports of heavy rain in a good part of the cotton belt, with temperatures ranging up to 100, all were important factors in shaping operations by traders. There has been a big advance of late and a reaction is regarded as natural. J. S. Bache & Co. are bullish on breaks. Thomson & McKinnon say it is a nervous market with wide changes with prospects of a hardening tendency should good rains fail to materialize. The Murray Clement Curtis crop report of June 23 makes condition 71.3, compared with 70.5 May 25 and 71 on June 25 last year. The indicated yield is 13,465,000 bales, compared with 12,933,000 bales harvested last year. Prices follow:
